MINUS TIDE UNVEILS MARINE TREASURES

Larkspur Maps Fight To Save Peninsula

City Will Seek Sewer Plan On Prison Land

By PAT PERRY

Faced with the prospect of watching a major, revenue producing development go down the drain if 41 acres on San Quentin Peninsula are seized for a sewage treatment plant, the City of Larkspur will try to get the plant located on San Quentin Prison land instead.

At its Jan. 3 meeting the Larkspur City Council will work on strategy for persuading the state to allow construction of the sub-regional treatment plant on the prison land.

Assist. City Mgr. Harlan Barry today said the Ross Valley Sanitary District's decision to condemn 41 acres of land surrounding its existing plant on the peninsula is "just dynamite."

The sanitary district adopted a resolution of intent to condemn 41 acres of T. I. Properties holdings (the former Remillard lands) at its Nov. 20 meeting. The resolution came amid the city's rezoning of the peninsula for a major apartment development and commercial center proposed by the company — which is the investment corporation for the giant Title Insurance and Trust Co.

The district has stated that the land is necessary for a "buffer zone" around the $28 million ultra-modern sewage treatment plant for central and southern Marin, mandated by the state Regional Water Quali-

Accidents On 101 Claim Petaluman, Corte Maderan

A 3-year-old Petaluma girl on her way to see "The Nutcracker" performed and an 18-year-old Corte Madera youth were killed in accidents on Highway 101 yesterday, the latter fatality the second death of a pedestrian on the freeway within four weeks.

The California Highway Patrol said 18-year-old Randall David Elizondo of 10 Fawn Lane was fatally injured when struck by an atuo as he crossed Highway 101 on foot.

Killed on Highway 101 in Cotati was Christine Peckham, 3-year-old daughter of James and Janice Peckham of 1318 St. Anthony Lane, Petaluma, a passenger in her mother's car, which suddenly swerved off the highway.

Herbert W. Hoffman, 30, of 371 Oak Avenue, San Anselmo, was the driver of the car which hit Elizondo. Hoffman and his wife, Susan, 32, were hospitalized following the accident, injured when their vheicle was struck by a second auto after it spun out of control while trying to avoid the collision, the highway patrol said.

Officers said Hoffman told them he was northbound a half-mile south of the Richardson Bay Bridge at about 11:45 p.m. when suddenly he saw a man on the freeway, slammed on his brakes and was in turn struck by a car driven by William S. Richard, 24, of Cupertino.

Hoffman apparently was unable to avoid striking Elizondo, the highway patrol reported.

He and his wife were reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital. Hoffman suffered broken ribs and cuts and Mrs. Hoffman a broken knee and broken nose.

Elizondo was the 43rd traffic death in Marin this year, com-

A Nixon Missive To Thieu

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon's emissary, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., carried a personal letter from Nixon to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, the White House confirmed today, but declined to disclose its contents.

Saigon sources said that the letter warned Thieu that the United States would cut off all military and economic aid to South Vietnam unless Thieu accedes to a cease-fire agreement if Nixon considers it satisfactory.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Haig, who will report to the Florida White House Friday on his four day Southeast Asian swing, did "carry a letter to" Thieu. "But we have no comment on the contents," he added.

Saigon sources also reported that Nixon told North Vietnam to meet his peace terms within 72 hours after the breakdown of the Paris negotiations, and resumed the bombing when Hanoi did not respond.

The messages to South and North Vietnam indicated that Nixon's patience was wearing thin and he was striving for a settlement before he begins his new term.

It was apparent now that the round of consultations Nixon conducted with his top diplomatic and military advisers last Friday was to inform them of his major decision regarding both Vietnams.

Last Sunday, he dispatched Haig to brief leaders in Saigon, Cambodia, Laos and Thailand on his new tough stand.

Nixon has not publicly discussed the bombing or the chances of peace since his elec-

Three More B52s Are Downed

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command reported the loss of three more B52s today, the most costly day of the air strikes against North Vietnam. It brought to six the number of B52s lost since Monday, and there were indications the B52 effort might be lessening but that the number of fighter-bombers had increased.

Even with the apparent lessened effort by the B52s, the Command confirmed that the massive daily saturation raids by up to 600 planes were continuing in their fourth day today. U.S. military sources said the targets were military but Communist reports from Hanoi told of great loss of civilian life.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim refused Wednesday to embrace the term "terror bombing" to describe the B52 raids. He also said no civilian targets were being aimed at and insisted that mistakes which have resulted in destroying civilian targets have been "extremely rare...isolated instances" throughout the war.

But the B52s have been used commonly against concentrations of enemy troops in the south specifically because they do terrify the men.

Maj. Robert M. Chubbuck of the Strategic Air Command, which operates all 400 B52s in the U.S. arsenal, wrote last year in an official document: "The lack of warning before the normally invisible and inaudible B52s strike leaves no time to take cover, and enemy troops who are not immediate casualties are often in such a state of shock they are completely ineffective.

"Captured enemy troops and documents also stress the psychological impact of these strikes, for they reveal nothing is more feared by the enemy than this unannounced, sudden rain of bombs."

Flying six miles high, the planes are out of sight and beyond hearing. In just 12 seconds a normal mission of three B52s can lay down a carpet of 324 bombs containing 180,000 pounds of explosives.

North Viets Plead For Others To Push U.S. For Bombing Halt

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

North Vietnam called fervently on the Soviet Union, China and other nations tonight to exert pressure on the United States to halt the U.S. bombing which it described as unequalled in the history of war in its scale and devastating intensity.

The official government statement broadcast by Hanoi Radio followed earlier protests by China and the Soviet Union and demands that the bombing be halted. It led the Communist Vietnamese delegations to the Paris peace talks to walk out today in protest.

Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, in a speech commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Union, condemned the bombing and warned that future U.S.U.S.S.R. relations could depend on an end of the war in Indochina.

The Hanoi Radio broadcast of the statement attributed to the "government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam," said:

"The people and government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam fervently call on the people and government of the Soviet Union, China, other Socialist countries, peace and justice-loving countries in the world, (and) the American people to stop in time the crime-laden hand of the Nixon administration, to pressure the Nixon administration into suspending at once its war of aggression against Vietnam and sign immediately the U.S.North Vietnam Oct. 20 Vietnam cease-fire agreement."

The statement described the bombing north of the 20th parallel — resumed at 8 p.m. Monday Hanoi time—and accompanying sea bombardments as "unequalled in the whole history of the war in Indochina in scale and devastating intensity.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in Paris had threatened to boycott today's 171st weekly peace session altogether but showed up just long enough to condemn the bombing and warn that it will not force them into surrender.

Reagan Signs Behr's Rivers Bill; Victory For Marin Senator

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — Environmentalists won a major victory yesterday as Gov. Ronald Reagan signed "wild rivers" legislation by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The signing into law of SB 107 also was a major victory for the freshman senator, who fought for two years to win passage of his proposal over the adamant opposition of the dean of the Senate, Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The powerful chairman of the finance committee, which must pass on virtually all legislation, had introduced a rival measure supported by lobbyists for water developers. Collier's bill, SB 4, was vetoed by Reagan.

In a press statement issued after the signing of Behr's bill, the governor said he favored it over Collier's because it "goes further in solving the problem of protecting the natural state of our north coast rivers."

Behr's bill establishes a permanently-protected waterways system consisting of the Eel, Smith, Trinity, Klamath, and north fork of the American River. It also clamps a 12-year moratorium on new dams on the Eel.

Collier's bill had most of the same provisions, but ordered planning for dams on the Eel while Behr's prohibits even planning.

The governor also said he signed Behr's bill because "we must honor our stewardship and preserve for our children some of the natural beauty that is California, while also providing water for their needs."

Rejecting opponents' arguments that the Eel must be dammed soon to provide water to the rest of the state, Reagan said the river may never be needed because of future reclamation of used water and desalting of sea water.

He stressed that "California will meet its contracted obligations for the supply of water."

Behr praised the governor for "displaying once again the same courage and concern that caused him in 1969 to withdraw the support of the state from the Dos Rios project of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the Eel River." He also credited passage of his bill to the bipartisan backing of the leadership of both houses.

Black Point Man Leaves A Fortune To The State

George Louis Charpentier, who died Dec. 9 on a Novato street at the age of 70, retired from a Marin restaurant about 1952 after amassing a fortune in the stock market, according to his former employer.

Eugene Lochenbach of Eugene's Restaurant in San Rafael said, "he was an outstanding mind on stocks, but he was tight as Scrooge."

Lochenbach said the Black Point man made and lost several fortunes over the years, but "somehow seemed to know what the stocks would do tomorrow."

Charpentier apparently started with little money and built it into a fortune of at least $500,000, the conservative estimate on documents filed with his will in the Marin County Clerk's Office yesterday.

Never married, Charpentier was survived only by his brother, Louis, also of Black Point. The brother was left an undeveloped lot in Novato.

Charpentier also left $10,000 each to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael and Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. His home was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. James B. Sanders of Novato. Another friend, Bessie Parker of Novato, received $1,000.

A state inheritance tax referee in San Rafael said the bequest will not be taxed, but was unsure what the state will do with the windfall.

Friends did not know why he gave his money to California. They said he had always claimed he would probably give it to charity.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Trial Date Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge ruled yesterday that government wiretapping and surveillance were insignificant, and ordered the Pentagon Papers trial to start again Jan. 3.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne cleared the way for the second trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo to begin by ruling that government surveillance did not pertain to the case.

The judge also denied a motion challenging the entire jury selection system in federal courts which contended that persons 18 to 20 years old were underrepresented on the panel.

A Cease-Fire?

DUBLIN (UPI) — An unidentified commander of the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) said today the organization will observe an unofficial cease-fire in Northern Ireland during the Christmas holidays.

Hanoi Reportedly Will Get Arms Aid, But What Route?

LONDON (UPI) —North Vietnam asked China and the Soviet Union in parallel moves in the past 48 hours for arms and assistance and both Peking and Moscow pledged their support, diplomatic sources said today.

But while both countries promised their support, apparently no detailed commitments were immediately made. The sources said some details of any new arms shipments remain unresolved.

The main problem facing all three parties is the route for shipments of any sizable amounts of new arms since the U.S. blockade of North Vietnamese ports has again been tightened.

The sources said China so far maintains its opposition to united action with the Soviet Union on any new major arms lift to North Vietnam.

Nor, they said, was Peking likely to allow Moscow air or port facilities on its territory for the shipments of Russian arms to Hanoi.

The sources stressed that arms supplies to Hanoi have never stopped altogether despite the American blockade and the recent peace moves. Diplomatic reports said that some Communist arms have arrived partly by sea, but largely by an air lift and through increased movements across the China land route.

One Serviceman Lost In Combat

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. command announced today that one American serviceman died last week in combat and six others were wounded, two seriously.

The death raised to 45,916 the total number of Americans killed in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961. The figure for this year is 289.

In addition, another 270 Americans have died from causes not connected with the fighting.

Diplomatic sources said China has allowed an increased flow of Russian arms shipments through China following the U.S. blockade, but has been keeping a close watch on these movements, reportedly anxious not to further any Soviet influence in Hanoi.

Arms supplies to North Vietnam, the sources said, have fallen off considerably and lately even slowed beyond the limitations imposed by the blockade. Peking's shipments, according to the sources, fell considerably more than the Soviet shipments in recent months.

The reports said that China and the Soviet Union each continue to favor a peace settlement in Vietnam. But neither wants to appear to be pressuring Hanoi into concessions.

Officially, both back the Hanoi policy line and its peace terms against United States demands and any compromise proposals.

Nine Killed As Airliners Crash At Chicago Airport

CHICAGO (UPI) —A North Central Airlines DC9, taking off in fog at O'Hare International Airport Wednesday night, struck the tail section of a Delta Airlines Convair 880 and burst into flames, killing nine of 45 persons aboard.

At least 15 persons were injured, nine of them seriously. Two of the injured were aboard the Delta jet, which carried 93 persons.

Visibility at the airport was reduced to one quarter mile in the fog, and the smaller North Central jet was taking off when it struck the Delta plane. The Delta plane had crossed the North Central plane's path at an insecting runway after landing.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said that, under normal circumstances, the Delta plane should not have been on the taxi way on the side of the terminal where the accident occurred. However, the FAA spokesman said it was not certain what instructions the ground controller had given the crew.

An air traffic controller at O'Hare said it was highly unusual for a Delta plane to be on that side of the terminal, but that it was not unprecedented.

FAA officials were flown in from Washington to attempt to determine if the crash was pilot error, caused by the tower or the result of the weather. North Central officials flew in from Minneapolis, Minn., to investigate the crash.

After the crash, the North Central jet skidded to a flaming halt on the runway and those who survived made their way to safety through the front exit of the plane.

Crew members led the passengers through the smokefilled plane by shouting, "Come forward. Come forward." One survivor told newsmen he had to keep his head down in order to breath aboard the plane.

Survivors who were not injured were questioned for several hours after the crash, then hustled away from newsmen and taken to an unnamed hotel or motel for the night or taken by bus or plane to their destinations.

One man said he had been instructed not to talk to newsmen. Another said, "The North Central people were great. Without them a lot more people might have died."

The Cook County coroner's office said the bodies of the dead were badly burned, making identification difficult. However, by early today, identification of the dead was complete.

Richard Ojakangas, 40, Duluth, Minn., and his 13-year-old son were sitting about one third of the way back on the North Central plane.

"It seemed to me to be a slightly steep takeoff," he said. "It kind of rumbled. I don't know if the tail left the ground. I just don't know.

"I told Greg to get his head down because we're going to go bang. And then it hit and there were flames on the left side of the plane."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Trial Date Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge ruled yesterday that government wiretapping and surveillance were insignificant, and ordered the Pentagon Papers trial to start again Jan. 3.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne cleared the way for the second trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo to begin by ruling that government surveillance did not pertain to the case.

The judge also denied a motion challenging the entire jury selection system in federal courts which contended that persons 18 to 20 years old were underrepresented on the panel.

German Treaty

BERLIN (UPI) — The two rival German states founded 23 years ago on the ruins of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich today signed a treaty for the first time promising good neighborly relatins.

The pact among other things brings East Germany closer to membership in the United Nations.

Egon Bahr, West German minister without portfolio who signed for Chancellor Willy Brandt and Michael Kohl, state secretary, signed for East German Prime Minister Willi Stoph.

Market Toll 15

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Guanabara State authorities today reported 15 persons dead and 228 injured in the collapse of the roof of a supermarket jammed with Christmas shoppers yesterday.

Police said owners of the hastily built store had never obtained a state building permit.

The Legal Medical Institute Morgue said that among the dead was a woman identified as Juanua Reis Cardoso, who gave birth to a boy shortly after being struck by debris. The child died later.

A Cease-Fire?

DUBLIN (UPI) — An unidentified commander of the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) said today the organization will observe an unofficial cease-fire in Northern Ireland during the Christmas holidays.

"For all practical purposes," he said, "there will be a halt to our offensive operations, but we have no plans at the moment to announce a cease-fire."

Critical Flu Days

ATLANTA (UPI) — The next few weeks will be "critical" in determining the impact of an influenza outbreak across the nation, the federal Center for Disease Control (CDC) said yesterday.

The center reported a fourth outbreak of the London flu yesterday in two colleges in southern Massachusetts, bringing to about 40 the number of strains reported in the United States this year.

CRASH WRECKAGE — Firemen search the smoldering wreckage of the North Central Airlines DC9 which collided yesterday with a Delta 880 Convair on takeoff at O'Hare International Airport, killing nine persons and injuring 15 others. More than 100 in the two planes escaped unharmed.

Hanoi Reportedly Will Get Arms Aid, But What Route?

LONDON (UPI) —North Vietnam asked China and the Soviet Union in parallel moves in the past 48 hours for arms and assistance and both Peking and Moscow pledged their support, diplomatic sources said today.

But while both countries promised their support, apparently no detailed commitments were immediately made. The sources said some details of any new arms shipments remain unresolved.

The main problem facing all three parties is the route for shipments of any sizable amounts of new arms since the U.S. blockade of North Vietnamese ports has again been tightened.

The sources said China so far maintains its opposition to united action with the Soviet Union on any new major arms lift to North Vietnam.

Nor, they said, was Peking likely to allow Moscow air or port facilities on its territory for the shipments of Russian arms to Hanoi.

The sources stressed that arms supplies to Hanoi have never stopped altogether despite the American blockade and the recent peace moves. Diplomatic reports said that some Communist arms have arrived partly by sea, but largely by an air lift and through increased movements across the China land route.

One Serviceman Lost In Combat

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. command announced today that one American serviceman died last week in combat and six others were wounded, two seriously.

The death raised to 45,916 the total number of Americans killed in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961. The figure for this year is 289.

Episcopal Diocese Has A Surplus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Northern California Episcopal Diocese is not facing a financial "catastrophe" and in fact has a surplus of $150,000, a spokesman for Bishop C. Kilmer Myers says.

Rev. Canon William Geisler, diocesan controller, said yesterday the church's finances are "excellent" and said reports the diocese is facing a crisis were "slanted."

Canon Geisler acknowledged that pledges from local parishes to the diocese have declined from $800,000 a year to $475,000 since 1966. He said this is a "serious problem for all dioceses.

"But since Bishop Myers came here six years ago we have converted the accumulated deficit of $100,000 to a surplus of $150,000," said Geisler. "Not everyone agrees this is a catastrophe."

He was responding to remarks Tuesday by Rev. Jerome Pollitzer of Monterey that. "We are facing a catastrophe here and we ought to acknowledge it."

Our diocese is in a state of crisis," Pollitzer said. "For the past six years there has been a steadily dwindling financial picture."

Federal grants are planned to test the double-decker bus concept in Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Oakland and Pittsburgh.

Guitar Case To Superior Court

A Fairfax man, arrested because his brother pawned a guitar, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of grand theft and concealing stolen property.

Fairfax police arrested him Dec. 1 after his brother, Larry, pawned the guitar in San Rafael, then told officers who questioned him that his brother gave it to him.

The guitar was stolen in Fairfax the day before from the car of Bruce McDonald, a resident of the town

Your Chances With An Octopus Is Good

CHICAGO (UPI) —In an underwater fight with an octopus you probably would win —depending on the octopus.

There are 36 varieties of these widely distributed mollusks, according to Encyclopaedia Brittannica, and some have an arm spread of only 1 ½ inches. The larger specimens, however, could be troublesome. One, found in Alaskan waters, had an arm spread of 32 feet.

Apollo 17 Team Returns To Houston — 'Best Part Of All'

Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Jack Schmitt —who made the final Apollo landing on the moon —landed at Ellington Air Force Base near the Houston space center at 10:44 a.m. EST, ending a 6,300-mile journey from their South Pacific splashdown point.

"This is the best part of all, right now," said a beaming Barbara Cernan as the Air Force C141 jet transport bearing her husband and his crewmates taxied in under leaden clouds.

The three astronauts, clad in orange flight suits and dark blue baseball-style flight caps, stepped briskly off the plane — Cernan first, then Evans and Schmitt.

"We'd like to thank God for bringing these men back to the planet Earth," Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, said as the spacemen mounted a bunting-draped platform.

A brisk wind, which made the 52-degree temperature seem even colder to approximately 1,000 cheering well-wishers, whipped the U. S. and space agency flags behind the astronauts.

"There's just no place like home," Cernan told the crowd. "You people out there make it what it is."

"Everybody on this flight was a big man," Cernan said, adding that the mission's success —greatest of any Apollo flight —was a tribute to the many people.

"We stood on the shoulders of giants," he said, "and I thank you for those shoulders. We've taken mankind into a new era. The United States has led us into this era and into the future."

Joking about the cold, damp Houston weather, Evans said "the best part of it is coming home and being with the people here in Houston."

He said he only wanted to leave one serious thought —that "we of the U. S. A., I feel, can be proud that we culminated the beginning of man's exploration with Apollo 17."

The final crewmember, civilian geologist Schmitt, also took note of the cold before turning to serious thoughts.

"I've never felt that Houston was home until today," Schmitt said. "Finally, I can say it feels like I'm coming home. We've evolved into space, and let's keep going there."

In contrast to the two who greeted Schmitt, there were 30 in Cernan's official welcoming party and 27 in Evans' party.

Appointments Made By Novato Council

The Novato City Council last night appointed two new planning commissioners, George McDaniel, a veterinarian, and Robert Glascock, a construction superintendent.

Richard L. O'Connell and Gail Wilhelm were reappointed to the commission, but James F. Picchi was dropped.

Glascock, who applied for a seat on the Plan Review Committee, was appointed by a 4-1 vote with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting.

Glascock, of 1524 Hill Road, is a construction supervisor for Condiotti Enterprises, which is engaged in projects in Novato.

The council also shook up the city parks and recreation commission, reappointing Walter Vater and appointing Lois Winterhalder and Sandra Karlovic in place of Commissioners Lou Johnson and Dr. John Kassenbrock. Robert Bliss was appointed to fill a vacant seat.

Appointed to city committees were:

Plan Review — John Haff, John Revelle and Mundhir K. Eljumaily.

Citizens Advisory Committee on Human Needs —Gail Meblin, Joseph Talarico and Thomas Anderson.

Solid Waste Committee — Donald Wilhelm, Susan Stompe, Barbara Munden, Peter Ferrero, James Scott and Kenneth Sablik, first appointees to a newly approved committee.

Chilling Beginning To Winter

Winter came to the Bay Area at 10:13 a.m. today, enshrouded in a damp chilling fog that has hung on for several days.

Winter's official beginning in North America occurs when the sun reaches its farthest point south of the equator, and that, according to astronomers, took place at 10:13.

The period of daylight today will be the shortest of the year.

The National Weather Service, as it has previously this week, predicted rain today and tonight, with small craft warnings posted for high winds from Cape Mendocino south to Point Arena.

Mild temperatures are to continue, with highs in the mid 50s to low 60s.

PLAN

ty Control. T. I. Proprties, on the other hand, intends to put in recreational, office and high density apartments on the site. Larkspur businessman, Robert H. Lee, has already announced plans to turn the Remillard brick kiln into a restaurant and museum.

"It doesn't seem to make sense to take so much prime land," Barry said, "and we intend to approach the state to see what we can do on a cooperative basis with the sanitary district."

Larskpur's city manager, Kent B. Bathurst, has suggested the sanitary district build the plant on a site east of the San Quentin prison's gate.

The sanitary district, according to president Eugene Ostaggi, would accept the alternative site only if it meets four conditions:

1. It must be available in time to permit construction to start by mid-1974.
2. Development cannot cost more than at the present site.
3. The state agrees.
4. The site is on solid ground.

At Monday's meeting of the sanitary district board, Ostaggi announced that the state Department of Corrections had rejected the alternative site proposition.

"The department of corrections said the land would not be available for a number of years," he said, "and they're under various pressures from various groups for different types of developments, some want a park, others want something else."

But the City of Larkspur is undeterred.

Holding that the Department of Corrections "isn't high enough on the totem pole" the council will approach other state departments, according to Barry.

The sanitary district's engineer, J. Warren (Ed) Nute told this week's district meeting that some decision on the site for the multimillion-dollar plant should be made by April.

By that time the project report must be submitted to the state Regional Water Quality Control Board, he said, "and we should be able to say where the plant is going to be built."

As to whether the City of Larkspur can get a decision from the state by that time, Barry said, "I think there's an excellent chance of knowing by April. We're working on a really cooperative basis with the sanitary district on this, because we know they're under pressures from the water people — but we don't think a sewage treatment plant is exactly what passengers arriving at the ferry terminal expect to

Suit Seeks Spending Ban On Dam

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Seven Sonoma County residents have filed a lawsuit to enjoin the county from spending more money on the Warm Springs Dam project without a vote of the people.

The suit claims the Sonoma County Water Agency has violated county debt limits by obligating taxpayers to the $12.5 million county share of the project. Plaintiffs are Clement Vanoni, Walter Foppiano, Clarence Foppiano, Florence McCord, Charles McCord, Edward Waltenspiel and Frank Nervo.

The county board of supervisors has directed the county counsel's office to contest the suit on the basis the water agency is not bound to debt limitations. The supervisors sit as water agency directors.

The $100 million dam project north of Healdsburg is planned by the Army Corps of Engineers as a flood control dam on Dry Creek, a tributary of the Russian River.

Airman Struck In Parking Lot

S/Sgt. Edgar A. Flores, 25, of 1250 Palmer Drive, Novato, suffered a fractured left cheek bone and two fractured ribs when struck by an unidentified man in the parking lot at Pinky's Pizza, 5460 Redwood Highway, last night, Novato police reported.

Flores said he was hit after the man asked him for a cigarette and he refused. Police said the incident occurred between 11:30 p.m. and midnight.

Flores was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base and then transferred to Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco.

Author Jailed For Taking Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Norman Wexler, 46, author of the screenplay for the 1970 movie hit "Joe," was back in jail Wednesday.

Last week Wexler was arrested by FBI agents after he allegedly threatened to shoot President Nixon. The writer was aboard a jetliner at the time.

Wexler was freed on bail, but jailed again for making an unauthorized trip to Los Angeles. He said he traveled to Southern California to do "some shopping."

However, federal authorities said the trip was a violation of his $2,000 bail set by U.S. Magistrate Richard S. Goldsmith.

Santa's Present: Search Warrant

HAWYARD, Calif. (UPI) — The only present Santa Claus had for Richard K. Hughes was a search warrant.

A Santa, complete with red suit and beard, showed up at Hughes' front door a week early and asked to be let inside. After Hughes admitted him, Santa pulled out a badge and a search warrant.

A search of the house turned up marijuana, hashish, LSD and other drugs, said officers who arrested Hughes and two companions.

Police said an officer donned a Santa suit so he could get into the house before its occupants disposed of the drugs.

To Run Again

OAKLAND (UPI) — Mayor John Reading said today he has decided to run for re-election because otherwise Oakland could swing towards radical government as Berkeley has.

Man Booked For Probe Into Attack

A San Jose waitress reported she was raped last night by a man who picked her up while she was hitchhiking in San Francisco, drove her around for nearly 12 hours and even had dinner with her in Novato.

Howard Farr, 30, of San Jose, was booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of rape and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

The woman told sheriff's deputies that Farr picked her up in downtown San Francisco about 10:30 a.m. and that they drove around for more than five hours, before having dinner at the Sizzler restaurant in Novato.

She said Farr then promised to take her to her boy friend's home in Contra Costa County, but instead drove her up into the hills above Marin City and raped her.

She reported that the man did not threaten her but had "such a wild, frenzied look," that she became frightened and complied with his wishes.

They drove around for about an hour after that, the woman said, then started back across the Golden Gate Bridge toward San Francisco about 11 p.m.

She jumped out of the car at the toll plaza, and began screaming, according to deputies, and Farr was arrested immediately at the toll gate.

Undergrounding Funds Increased

Some $370,510 will be spent in 1973 by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for undergrounding electric lines in Marin and Southern Sonoma.

The utility company has increased its allocation for undergrounding from $10 million this year to $11 million for 1973.

Amounts allocated to local incorporated cities are: Belvedere, $4,200; Corte Madera, $13,900; Cotati, $3,100; Fairfax, $12,300; Larkspur, $16,800; Mill Valley, $21,000; Novato, $35,800; Petaluma, $41,110; Rohnert Park, $8,600; Ross, $3,600; San Anselmo, $21,000; San Rafael, $63,800; Sausalito, $15,800; and Tiburon, $10,000.

The unincorporated area of Marin County will get $99,500 and Sonoma County, $198,900.

Reagan Delivers Yule Message

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —In a Christmas message, Gov. Ronald Reagan has called on Californians to "reaffirm our faith in the Divine Being, hope in the salvation of mankind, and love for our fellow man."

"As we celebrate this most joyous and holy season of the year," the governor said Wednesday in a statement, "I ask my fellow Californians to join me in comtemplating the one real gift we have received the legacy that the Christ Child of Bethlehem left us —love.

"As we celebrate the birth of the Child Jesus, let's reaffirm our faith in the Divine Being, hope in the salvation of mankind, and love for our fellow man," he said.

Suit Settlement Terms Clarified

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —In reporting an out-of-court $58.5 million settlement of six lawsuits against Boise-Cascade Corp. Monday, United Press International erroneously said that the company and California attorney general's office agreed that some of Boise-Cascade's land sale practices were illegal.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said the question of illegality of the practices was not a part of the settlement agreement.

Boise-Cascade was accused in the suits, two in federal court and four in state court, of misrepresenting lots in its recreational subdivisions in some cases with questionable advertising.

Weather For Inauguration

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When President Nixon takes the oath for his second term in the White House Jan. 20, the U.S. Weather Service says the temperature should be 37 degrees with winds of 10 miles an hour under partly cloudy skies.

"These figures are climatological probabilities, not forecasts, and are based on records of Washington, D.C., weather on Jan. 20 for the past 100 years," the Weather Service said in a statement today.

She and her mother, 29, were northbound on Highway 101 en route to see a performance of the "Nutcracker" in Santa Rosa when the accident occurred at 12:25 p.m.

The California Highway Patrol said Mrs. Peckham's car swerved across the center divider strip and plunged down a 40-foot embankment into a tree. Officers said she may have swerved to avoid an oncoming car and asked that witnesses contact the patrol office in Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Peckham was reported in good condition at Hillcrest Hospital with a back injury, cuts and suffering from shcok.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

On Nov. 24, another pedestrian, Allen Stewart Taylor, 28, of San Francisco, died when hit by a car while crossing Highway 101 near the Tiburon turnoff in predawn darkness.

NIXON

tion eve address to the nation, but he had wanted peace proclaimed by Thanksgiving Day, then Christmas. Now it appears that even on inauguration day, Jan. 20, the chances of a cease fire are remote.

American officials say they believe Hanoi may soon make a decision on the one fundamental point that hamstrung the talks. It involves acceptance of some vague reference to a demarcation between two Vietnams.

Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, who accompanied him, laughed off reports of a rift with Nixon over Vietnam policy. Ziegler said Wednesday that the President and Kissinger have a "unity of point of view" on settlement terms. He blamed "diplomatic rumors" for speculation that differences had arisen between the two.

Nixon awaits the return of Kissinger's deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Thursday evening or Friday morning after consultations with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other Southeast Asian leaders.

The President planned to work quietly on his second inaugural address and the new federal budget he will submit to Congress next month.

He planned to announce several new appointments and resignations today. Among the changes expected is the removal of CIA director Richard Helms and his appointment as ambassador to Iran.

Home Burglary Suspect Is Held

A 23-year-old San Rafael man, out on parole after serving time for burglary, was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of committing another.

Robert Louis Arnett Jr., of 22 Sirard Lane, was booked into Marin County Jail with bail not set and a hold was placed on him as a parole violator. He is scheduled to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police suspect him of burglarizing the home of William Craddock at 20 Sirard Lane on Dec. 12 taking stereo equipment and cash.

He was tied to the burglary by fingerprints in the Craddock home, according to police. He also had been observed going up to doors in the neighborhood, police reported.

Charged With Injuring Auto

Authorities said Wilson rolled down the windows of a small foreign car and proceeded to fill it full of snow with a snowblower.

Wilson, who was identified by photographs taken by witnesses of the incident, said he didn't know the window of the car was down while he was operating his snowblower up and down the sidewalk along which the car was parked.

The owner of the car, Dana Sweeney, 22, a secretary, said Wilson's actions appeared to have been deliberate. Miss Sweeney had to have her car cleaned and dried out at a garage.

Emergency Room Pact Is Signed

District Administrator Joseph M. Horner said the board approved a one-year contract with the Bernstein Medical Group to provide physicians at a cost of $15 per hour or $2,520 per month. The emergency room now has a doctor on duty 12 hours on weekdays and full-time on weekends.

Horner said the medical group serves other Bay Area hospitals and will also be responsible for responding to emergencies within the hospital, emergency training programs and health care programs for hospital employees.

Horner said the service will begin Jan. 15.

The hospital district board also approved a committee of radiologists and pathologists to study ways of expanding X-ray facilities at Hillcrest through both private and public funds and heard Horner report an independent audit has shown Hillcrest employees perform at a 93 per cent efficiency rate as compared to the state average of 77 per cent in hospitals of similar size.

The 46-year-old Wright replaces Chief Howard Clark of Larkspur, who had served three terms as president. Wright will serve for one year in the post.

Novato Chief Allen W. Klemme was chosen secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Appointments Made By Novato Council

The Novato City Council last night appointed two new planning commissioners, George McDaniel, a veterinarian, and Robert Glascock, a construction superintendent.

Richard L. O'Connell and Gail Wilhelm were reappointed to the commission, but James F. Picchi was dropped.

Glascock, who applied for a seat on the Plan Review Committee, was appointed by a 4-1 vote with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting.

Glascock, of 1524 Hill Road, is a construction supervisor for Condiotti Enterprises, which is engaged in projects in Novato.

The council also shook up the city parks and recreation commission, reappointing Walter Vater and appointing Lois Winterhalder and Sandra Karlovic in place of Commissioners Lou Johnson and Dr. John Kassenbrock. Robert Bliss was appointed to fill a vacant seat.

Appointed to city committees were:

Plan Review — John Haff, John Revelle and Mundhir K. Eljumaily.

Citizens Advisory Committee on Human Needs —Gail Meblin, Joseph Talarico and Thomas Anderson.

Solid Waste Committee — Donald Wilhelm, Susan Stompe, Barbara Munden, Peter Ferrero, James Scott and Kenneth Sablik, first appointees to a newly approved committee.

Chilling Beginning To Winter

Winter came to the Bay Area at 10:13 a.m. today, enshrouded in a damp chilling fog that has hung on for several days.

Winter's official beginning in North America occurs when the sun reaches its farthest point south of the equator, and that, according to astronomers, took place at 10:13.

The period of daylight today will be the shortest of the year.

The National Weather Service, as it has previously this week, predicted rain today and tonight, with small craft warnings posted for high winds from Cape Mendocino south to Point Arena.

Mild temperatures are to continue, with highs in the mid 50s to low 60s.

ty Control. T. I. Proprties, on the other hand, intends to put in recreational, office and high density apartments on the site. Larkspur businessman, Robert H. Lee, has already announced plans to turn the Remillard brick kiln into a restaurant and museum.

"It doesn't seem to make sense to take so much prime land," Barry said, "and we intend to approach the state to see what we can do on a cooperative basis with the sanitary district."

The sanitary district, according to president Eugene Ostaggi, would accept the alternative site only if it meets four conditions:

1. It must be available in time to permit construction to start by mid-1974.
2. Development cannot cost more than at the present site.
3. The state agrees.
4. The site is on solid ground.

At Monday's meeting of the sanitary district board, Ostaggi announced that the state Department of Corrections had rejected the alternative site proposition.

"The department of corrections said the land would not be available for a number of years," he said, "and they're under various pressures from various groups for different types of developments, some want a park, others want something else."

But the City of Larkspur is undeterred.

Holding that the Department of Corrections "isn't high enough on the totem pole" the council will approach other state departments, according to Barry.

The sanitary district's engineer, J. Warren (Ed) Nute told this week's district meeting that some decision on the site for the multimillion-dollar plant should be made by April.

By that time the project report must be submitted to the state Regional Water Quality Control Board, he said, "and we should be able to say where the plant is going to be built."

As to whether the City of Larkspur can get a decision from the state by that time, Barry said, "I think there's an excellent chance of knowing by April. We're working on a really cooperative basis with the sanitary district on this, because we know they're under pressures from the water people — but we don't think a sewage treatment plant is exactly what passengers arriving at the ferry terminal expect to

Suit Seeks Spending Ban On Dam

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Seven Sonoma County residents have filed a lawsuit to enjoin the county from spending more money on the Warm Springs Dam project without a vote of the people.

The suit claims the Sonoma County Water Agency has violated county debt limits by obligating taxpayers to the $12.5 million county share of the project. Plaintiffs are Clement Vanoni, Walter Foppiano, Clarence Foppiano, Florence McCord, Charles McCord, Edward Waltenspiel and Frank Nervo.

The county board of supervisors has directed the county counsel's office to contest the suit on the basis the water agency is not bound to debt limitations. The supervisors sit as water agency directors.

The $100 million dam project north of Healdsburg is planned by the Army Corps of Engineers as a flood control dam on Dry Creek, a tributary of the Russian River.

Airman Struck In Parking Lot

S/Sgt. Edgar A. Flores, 25, of 1250 Palmer Drive, Novato, suffered a fractured left cheek bone and two fractured ribs when struck by an unidentified man in the parking lot at Pinky's Pizza, 5460 Redwood Highway, last night, Novato police reported.

Flores said he was hit after the man asked him for a cigarette and he refused. Police said the incident occurred between 11:30 p.m. and midnight.

Flores was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base and then transferred to Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco.

Author Jailed For Taking Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Norman Wexler, 46, author of the screenplay for the 1970 movie hit "Joe," was back in jail Wednesday.

Last week Wexler was arrested by FBI agents after he allegedly threatened to shoot President Nixon. The writer was aboard a jetliner at the time.

Wexler was freed on bail, but jailed again for making an unauthorized trip to Los Angeles. He said he traveled to Southern California to do "some shopping."

However, federal authorities said the trip was a violation of his $2,000 bail set by U.S. Magistrate Richard S. Goldsmith.

Santa's Present: Search Warrant

HAWYARD, Calif. (UPI) — The only present Santa Claus had for Richard K. Hughes was a search warrant.

A Santa, complete with red suit and beard, showed up at Hughes' front door a week early and asked to be let inside. After Hughes admitted him, Santa pulled out a badge and a search warrant.

A search of the house turned up marijuana, hashish, LSD and other drugs, said officers who arrested Hughes and two companions.

Police said an officer donned a Santa suit so he could get into the house before its occupants disposed of the drugs.

To Run Again

OAKLAND (UPI) — Mayor John Reading said today he has decided to run for re-election because otherwise Oakland could swing towards radical government as Berkeley has.

Man Booked For Probe Into Attack

A San Jose waitress reported she was raped last night by a man who picked her up while she was hitchhiking in San Francisco, drove her around for nearly 12 hours and even had dinner with her in Novato.

Howard Farr, 30, of San Jose, was booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of rape and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

The woman told sheriff's deputies that Farr picked her up in downtown San Francisco about 10:30 a.m. and that they drove around for more than five hours, before having dinner at the Sizzler restaurant in Novato.

She said Farr then promised to take her to her boy friend's home in Contra Costa County, but instead drove her up into the hills above Marin City and raped her.

She reported that the man did not threaten her but had "such a wild, frenzied look," that she became frightened and complied with his wishes.

They drove around for about an hour after that, the woman said, then started back across the Golden Gate Bridge toward San Francisco about 11 p.m.

She jumped out of the car at the toll plaza, and began screaming, according to deputies, and Farr was arrested immediately at the toll gate.

Undergrounding Funds Increased

Some $370,510 will be spent in 1973 by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for undergrounding electric lines in Marin and Southern Sonoma.

The utility company has increased its allocation for undergrounding from $10 million this year to $11 million for 1973.

Reagan Delivers Yule Message

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —In a Christmas message, Gov. Ronald Reagan has called on Californians to "reaffirm our faith in the Divine Being, hope in the salvation of mankind, and love for our fellow man."

"As we celebrate this most joyous and holy season of the year," the governor said Wednesday in a statement, "I ask my fellow Californians to join me in comtemplating the one real gift we have received the legacy that the Christ Child of Bethlehem left us —love.

"As we celebrate the birth of the Child Jesus, let's reaffirm our faith in the Divine Being, hope in the salvation of mankind, and love for our fellow man," he said.

Suit Settlement Terms Clarified

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —In reporting an out-of-court $58.5 million settlement of six lawsuits against Boise-Cascade Corp. Monday, United Press International erroneously said that the company and California attorney general's office agreed that some of Boise-Cascade's land sale practices were illegal.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said the question of illegality of the practices was not a part of the settlement agreement.

Boise-Cascade was accused in the suits, two in federal court and four in state court, of misrepresenting lots in its recreational subdivisions in some cases with questionable advertising.

Weather For Inauguration

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When President Nixon takes the oath for his second term in the White House Jan. 20, the U.S. Weather Service says the temperature should be 37 degrees with winds of 10 miles an hour under partly cloudy skies.

"These figures are climatological probabilities, not forecasts, and are based on records of Washington, D.C., weather on Jan. 20 for the past 100 years," the Weather Service said in a statement today.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Daphne Funerals in Corte Madera.

She and her mother, 29, were northbound on Highway 101 en route to see a performance of the "Nutcracker" in Santa Rosa when the accident occurred at 12:25 p.m.

The California Highway Patrol said Mrs. Peckham's car swerved across the center divider strip and plunged down a 40-foot embankment into a tree. Officers said she may have swerved to avoid an oncoming car and asked that witnesses contact the patrol office in Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Peckham was reported in good condition at Hillcrest Hospital with a back injury, cuts and suffering from shcok.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

On Nov. 24, another pedestrian, Allen Stewart Taylor, 28, of San Francisco, died when hit by a car while crossing Highway 101 near the Tiburon turnoff in predawn darkness.

NIXON

tion eve address to the nation, but he had wanted peace proclaimed by Thanksgiving Day, then Christmas. Now it appears that even on inauguration day, Jan. 20, the chances of a cease fire are remote.

American officials say they believe Hanoi may soon make a decision on the one fundamental point that hamstrung the talks. It involves acceptance of some vague reference to a demarcation between two Vietnams.

Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, who accompanied him, laughed off reports of a rift with Nixon over Vietnam policy. Ziegler said Wednesday that the President and Kissinger have a "unity of point of view" on settlement terms. He blamed "diplomatic rumors" for speculation that differences had arisen between the two.

Nixon awaits the return of Kissinger's deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Thursday evening or Friday morning after consultations with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other Southeast Asian leaders.

The President planned to work quietly on his second inaugural address and the new federal budget he will submit to Congress next month.

He planned to announce several new appointments and resignations today. Among the changes expected is the removal of CIA director Richard Helms and his appointment as ambassador to Iran.

Home Burglary Suspect Is Held

A 23-year-old San Rafael man, out on parole after serving time for burglary, was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of committing another.

Robert Louis Arnett Jr., of 22 Sirard Lane, was booked into Marin County Jail with bail not set and a hold was placed on him as a parole violator. He is scheduled to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

He was tied to the burglary by fingerprints in the Craddock home, according to police. He also had been observed going up to doors in the neighborhood, police reported.

Charged With Injuring Auto

Authorities said Wilson rolled down the windows of a small foreign car and proceeded to fill it full of snow with a snowblower.

Wilson, who was identified by photographs taken by witnesses of the incident, said he didn't know the window of the car was down while he was operating his snowblower up and down the sidewalk along which the car was parked.

The owner of the car, Dana Sweeney, 22, a secretary, said Wilson's actions appeared to have been deliberate. Miss Sweeney had to have her car cleaned and dried out at a garage.

Emergency Room Pact Is Signed

District Administrator Joseph M. Horner said the board approved a one-year contract with the Bernstein Medical Group to provide physicians at a cost of $15 per hour or $2,520 per month. The emergency room now has a doctor on duty 12 hours on weekdays and full-time on weekends.

Horner said the medical group serves other Bay Area hospitals and will also be responsible for responding to emergencies within the hospital, emergency training programs and health care programs for hospital employees.

Horner said the service will begin Jan. 15.

The hospital district board also approved a committee of radiologists and pathologists to study ways of expanding X-ray facilities at Hillcrest through both private and public funds and heard Horner report an independent audit has shown Hillcrest employees perform at a 93 per cent efficiency rate as compared to the state average of 77 per cent in hospitals of similar size.

Noted Architect Is Dead At 80

LA JOLLA (AP) — Architect John Lloyd Wright, 80, son of famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright, has died at Scripps Memorial Hospital after a prolonged illness.

Wright, a student of his father, was a licensed architect in Texas, Indiana and Nevada and is credited with inventing Lincoln Logs and Wright Blocks for children. He died Wednesday.

Born in Oak Park, Ill., Wright attended the University of Wisconsin and went on to teach and write a book about his father in addition to his designing work. In 1959 the American Registered Architects honored him with their annual gold medal as the country's most outstanding architect.

He is survived by the widow, a son, a daughter, a stepson, three brothers and a sister. Cremation is planned.

Wright Heads Police Chiefs

The group, composed of police chiefs from the county's 11 cities, the sheriff and the district attorney, is responsible for coordinating the efforts of all law enforcement agencies in Marin.

The 46-year-old Wright replaces Chief Howard Clark of Larkspur, who had served three terms as president. Wright will serve for one year in the post.

Novato Chief Allen W. Klemme was chosen secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Wrong Sizes

The Independent-Journal erred Tuesday in reporting lot sizes of homes planned by Qantas Development Corp. in Petaluma. Company officials reported lot sizes of 6,000 square feet, not 5,000, are proposed.

Board Hires Sewage Plant Chief

The San Rafael Sanitation District board last night hired Ross Tidwell, currently sewage plant manager in Benecia, as plant superintendent for the San Rafael district.

Norris M. Rawles, district administrator, said the former plant superintendent, Louis W. Kennedy, left after only three months to take a better paying job in the East Bay.

Tidwell will be paid $1,201 a month, he said.

The board last night also formally awarded a $590,777 contract for construction of connection lines in the Bayside Acres Sewer Assessment District to the low bidder, Prodanovich Inc. of Oakland.

Work necessary to hook up about 160 homes in the district to the San Rfael sewage system will start within 30 days, Rawles said.

Hopeful For Vacancy On Hub's Planning Panel Views The Issues

(One of several stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for the vacant seat on the San Anselmo Planning Commission.)

Mary Sue Hulpke, wife of San Anselmo School District trustee John Hulpke, has applied for appointment to the San Anselmo Planning Commission seat vacated by the resignation of Allen J. Creighton.

The council has declared it will fill the seat at 8 p.m. Jan. 9.

Mrs. Hulpke, nominated for the post by Councilman Lewis W. Stewart, said the major problem facing San Anselmo today is the dilemma of preserving the environment and acquiring open space while dealing with problems of jobs and moderate income housing. She said she advocates a "controlled growth" concept that requires both a local and regional approach.

"Housing is an issue we can't handle alone on the local level," she said. "The city just doesn't have the money. The housing problem must be approached on the state and federal levels."

She said that all nonconforming uses in the city, or second lots on parcels zoned for single-family residences, must be reviewed in light of density, parking, traffic patterns, health and safety standards and ability to fill the need for moderate-income housing. Second units that don't conform to the criteria should be abated, she said.

"We need to ask if a nonconforming use fills a moderate-income housing need," she said, adding that though "we can't let those units get out of hand" future nonconforming uses should be allowed on a limited and individual basis if they meet strict criteria.

Mrs. Hulpke, a member of the city's general plan committee, said she supports the city's building and zoning moratorium as a means "to give us time to decide where to go from here." She called for flexible zoning patterns that will allow mixed residential uses.

MARY SUE HULPKE
Advocates controlled growth

She said she didn't support the countywide general plan's proposal to widen city throughfares, saying widened roads "would divide the Ross Valley in half."

Mrs. Hulpke, 31, attended Westmont College in Santa Barbara and graduated from California State University at San Francisco with a degree in social science. She has also taken post graduate courses in anthropology and Spanish culture.

She tutored blind children in the Springfield, Mass., public school system in 1966 and was a member of that state's Commonwealth Service Corps in 1967. She was chairman of the San Rafael Methodist Church Social Concern Commission and a member of the San Anselmo School District's citizen advisory committee last year.

She is a volunteer art instructor in the city's elementary school system.

Six-Month Jail Term For Burglar

A 23-year-old Sonoma County man arrested walking down a Novato street with stolen property in his arms, was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail on a burglary charge.

Superior court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed James David McClearn on probation in accord with a plea bargain struck by a visiting judge last month.

Probation Officer Jesse W. Johnson noted McClearn had a lengthy record of burglary and forgery arrests, but said his crimes reflect "pathetic amateurism."

McClearn was arrested Sept. 24 in the 600 block of San Marin Drive, Novato, shortly after he broke into the home of Carl W. Lowry on El Sereno.

He was carrying a television set, tape recorder and trousers taken from the house, police said. Lowry's checkbook was found in McClearn's pocket, according to police.

State Records Show Hike In Marriages

BERKELEY (AP) — The number of marriages and divorces both are up this year in California, the state Department of Public Health said yesterday.

The department estimated that the year's end will see 176,000 marriages in the state for 1972 — 8,000 more than the knots tied in 1971.

But dissolutions are up too, though not to the same extent, said the record-keepers. Through September, 79, 737 final divorce decrees were registered, compared with 79,682 in 1971. In the first nine months of 1970 — the first year of the state's non-adversary divorce law, 81,991 dissolutions were recorded.

Los Angeles County, the state's most populous, led in both marriages and dissolutions from January through September of this year. Marriages numbered 46,647, dissolutions 27,226.

Orange and San Diego counties were about even with a little more than 10,000 marriages and 6,000 divorces each.

Third in the marriage department was Santa Clara County with just over 6,500, followed by Alameda and San Francisco counties with 6,158 and 5,156 marriages respectively.

Divorce statistic rankings for these counties: Santa Clara 4,500; Alameda 4,400, and San Francisco 2,700.

Sacramento County reported 3,771 marriages and 2,751 divorces.

Public health officials said the slight rise in the state's population this year does not completely explain the apparent 1972 increases in knots tied and untied.

Safe Is Looted

The North Marin County Water District reported Tuesday that someone took $176 from an unlocked safe at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, between 5 and 5:40 p.m. Friday.

Terra Linda Shops Hit By Burglars

A barber shop and jewelry store in the Terra Linda Shopping Center were looted Tuesday by burglars who cut through a wall between the shops, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Taken from Terra Linda Jewelers at 633 Del Ganado Road were approximately 45 watches selling for $25 to $55 each, other watches and jewelry of undetermined value, and $50 cash, deputies said.

Cash totaling $115 was stolen from the Terra Linda Barber Shop, through which the burglars gained entry, according to deputies.

A glass door was smashed to gain entry to the barber shop, then a hole was cut in the wall to the jewelry store, officers said.

The burglary was discovered at 1 a.m. when deputies responded to an alarm at the jeweler's.

4 Churches Plan Yule Dinners

Four San Rafael churches will see that persons without families will have a Christmas Day dinner with all the trimmings.

The dinner will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Whistlestop — located in the old San Rafael depot at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

Use of the Whistlestop facilities has been donated by the Senior Citizens Coordinating Council. The dining room and kitchen were also used for a similar feast on Thanksgiving Day.

The dinner, the second annual feast, will be served by members of St. Raphael's Catholic Church, First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the First Presbyterian Church.

Also special delivery service will be provided for those who cannot leave their room or apartment.

Marvin Ford, of the First Presbyterian Church who is head of the laymen's dinner committee, said "the concern is not only to provide food, but also some sort of friendship for the lonely people living in downtown San Rafael."

Horse Worming Clinic Scheduled

A horse worming clinic will be held Saturday at 9 a.m. in the horsemen's ring in Sleepy Hollow, sponsored by the Horsemen's Association of Sleepy Hollow, and administered by the Marin Veterinary Clinic.

Horses will be tube wormed and flu and tetanus shots will be available, said association secretary Maggie Mercer. Reservations must be made in advance by calling Miss Mercer.

Hopeful For Vacancy On Hub's Planning Panel Views The Issues

(One of several stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for the vacant seat on the San Anselmo Planning Commission.)

Mary Sue Hulpke, wife of San Anselmo School District trustee John Hulpke, has applied for appointment to the San Anselmo Planning Commission seat vacated by the resignation of Allen J. Creighton.

The council has declared it will fill the seat at 8 p.m. Jan. 9.

Mrs. Hulpke, nominated for the post by Councilman Lewis W. Stewart, said the major problem facing San Anselmo today is the dilemma of preserving the environment and acquiring open space while dealing with problems of jobs and moderate income housing. She said she advocates a "controlled growth" concept that requires both a local and regional approach.

"Housing is an issue we can't handle alone on the local level," she said. "The city just doesn't have the money. The housing problem must be approached on the state and federal levels."

She said that all nonconforming uses in the city, or second lots on parcels zoned for single-family residences, must be reviewed in light of density, parking, traffic patterns, health and safety standards and ability to fill the need for moderate-income housing. Second units that don't conform to the criteria should be abated, she said.

"We need to ask if a nonconforming use fills a moderate-income housing need," she said, adding that though "we can't let those units get out of hand" future nonconforming uses should be allowed on a limited and individual basis if they meet strict criteria.

Mrs. Hulpke, a member of the city's general plan committee, said she supports the city's building and zoning moratorium as a means "to give us time to decide where to go from here." She called for flexible zoning patterns that will allow mixed residential uses.

MARY SUE HULPKE
Advocates controlled growth

She said she didn't support the countywide general plan's proposal to widen city throughfares, saying widened roads "would divide the Ross Valley in half."

Mrs. Hulpke, 31, attended Westmont College in Santa Barbara and graduated from California State University at San Francisco with a degree in social science. She has also taken post graduate courses in anthropology and Spanish culture.

She tutored blind children in the Springfield, Mass., public school system in 1966 and was a member of that state's Commonwealth Service Corps in 1967. She was chairman of the San Rafael Methodist Church Social Concern Commission and a member of the San Anselmo School District's citizen advisory committee last year.

She is a volunteer art instructor in the city's elementary school system.

Six-Month Jail Term For Burglar

A 23-year-old Sonoma County man arrested walking down a Novato street with stolen property in his arms, was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail on a burglary charge.

Superior court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed James David McClearn on probation in accord with a plea bargain struck by a visiting judge last month.

Probation Officer Jesse W. Johnson noted McClearn had a lengthy record of burglary and forgery arrests, but said his crimes reflect "pathetic amateurism."

McClearn was arrested Sept. 24 in the 600 block of San Marin Drive, Novato, shortly after he broke into the home of Carl W. Lowry on El Sereno.

He was carrying a television set, tape recorder and trousers taken from the house, police said. Lowry's checkbook was found in McClearn's pocket, according to police.

State Records Show Hike In Marriages

BERKELEY (AP) — The number of marriages and divorces both are up this year in California, the state Department of Public Health said yesterday.

The department estimated that the year's end will see 176,000 marriages in the state for 1972 — 8,000 more than the knots tied in 1971.

But dissolutions are up too, though not to the same extent, said the record-keepers. Through September, 79, 737 final divorce decrees were registered, compared with 79,682 in 1971. In the first nine months of 1970 — the first year of the state's non-adversary divorce law, 81,991 dissolutions were recorded.

Los Angeles County, the state's most populous, led in both marriages and dissolutions from January through September of this year. Marriages numbered 46,647, dissolutions 27,226.

Orange and San Diego counties were about even with a little more than 10,000 marriages and 6,000 divorces each.

Third in the marriage department was Santa Clara County with just over 6,500, followed by Alameda and San Francisco counties with 6,158 and 5,156 marriages respectively.

Divorce statistic rankings for these counties: Santa Clara 4,500; Alameda 4,400, and San Francisco 2,700.

Sacramento County reported 3,771 marriages and 2,751 divorces.

Public health officials said the slight rise in the state's population this year does not completely explain the apparent 1972 increases in knots tied and untied.

Safe Is Looted

The North Marin County Water District reported Tuesday that someone took $176 from an unlocked safe at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, between 5 and 5:40 p.m. Friday.

Terra Linda Shops Hit By Burglars

A barber shop and jewelry store in the Terra Linda Shopping Center were looted Tuesday by burglars who cut through a wall between the shops, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Taken from Terra Linda Jewelers at 633 Del Ganado Road were approximately 45 watches selling for $25 to $55 each, other watches and jewelry of undetermined value, and $50 cash, deputies said.

Cash totaling $115 was stolen from the Terra Linda Barber Shop, through which the burglars gained entry, according to deputies.

A glass door was smashed to gain entry to the barber shop, then a hole was cut in the wall to the jewelry store, officers said.

The burglary was discovered at 1 a.m. when deputies responded to an alarm at the jeweler's.

4 Churches Plan Yule Dinners

Four San Rafael churches will see that persons without families will have a Christmas Day dinner with all the trimmings.

The dinner will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Whistlestop — located in the old San Rafael depot at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

Use of the Whistlestop facilities has been donated by the Senior Citizens Coordinating Council. The dining room and kitchen were also used for a similar feast on Thanksgiving Day.

The dinner, the second annual feast, will be served by members of St. Raphael's Catholic Church, First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the First Presbyterian Church.

Also special delivery service will be provided for those who cannot leave their room or apartment.

Marvin Ford, of the First Presbyterian Church who is head of the laymen's dinner committee, said "the concern is not only to provide food, but also some sort of friendship for the lonely people living in downtown San Rafael."

Horse Worming Clinic Scheduled

A horse worming clinic will be held Saturday at 9 a.m. in the horsemen's ring in Sleepy Hollow, sponsored by the Horsemen's Association of Sleepy Hollow, and administered by the Marin Veterinary Clinic.

Horses will be tube wormed and flu and tetanus shots will be available, said association secretary Maggie Mercer. Reservations must be made in advance by calling Miss Mercer.

ONCE UPON A TIME IS STILL THE BEST

Wonder is mirrored in the wide, wide eyes of Larkspur children as they listen intently to a Christmas story read by Shay Walling at the Larkspur Library. The story hour yesterday and a little puppet show were arranged by the Friends of the Larkspur Library. And anyone who worries that the 20th Century is breeding a race of television-watching cabbages has only to see the children's expressions to regain their faith in the power of imagination — and the magic of childhood.

Capitol Building Plans Laid Out

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Architects yesterday formally laid out for a legislative committee proposed plans for a twin-tower skyscraper state capitol for the legislature.

At the same time, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, who spearheads the campaign for the new structure, said he doesn't "understand" Gov. Ronald Reagan's newly announced opposition to the proposal.

"I think that he is in the best position to know what his needs are and that we are in the best position to know what our needs are," said Collier, crusty dean of the legislature and powerful chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Reagan said last week he didn't believe the lawmakers "need 30 or 40 stories of new building" and that the current 102-year-old golden-domed Capitol should be preserved as a "working building."

"I don't understand that statement," Collier told newsmen. "The governors traditionally have respected our needs and we've respected the governors' needs."

The proposed plans for a new state capitol were outlined for the Joint Legislative Space Needs Committee by architects Harry J. Devin and Erwin E. Novak at a special meeting.

Basically, the proposal calls for constructing a new legislative building east of the existing structure in downtown Sacramento. The skyscraper towers, one for the Assembly and the other for the Senate, would total 15 to 17 stories each and be connected by a three-floor structure.

Unlike earlier proposed plans for offices of lawmakers, the latest drawings contained rooms considerably larger than the ones legislators now occupy.

The office suites of the speaker of the Assembly and president pro tem of the Senate would be located on the ground floor in corners restricted to public access.

But Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, said he believed they should be moved elsewhere.

"I don't think they should be on the first floor available to all those nit-wits that come in and demonstrate and wave banners," he said.

Collier, who first proposed such a structure in 1967, has roughly estimated cost of the new building at $50 million, but architect Devine refused to estimate a figure until the plans were firmed up.

"Until we get it down in black and white, we'd be stupid to give one out," he said, noting that the building would take about two years to build. Final plans should be ready next autumn.

Collier also said he would not favor legislative action on financing the project until "we get the plans ready. I don't think we'll be ready in 1973 to put in a bill."

A Watchdog Health Panel Sets Study

The Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council, concerned about possible cutbacks in county medical programs, yesterday created a committee to examine proposed reorganization of Marin's public health division.

The 10-member committee, composed of council members and others will meet at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday to consider proposals by Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, the county's chief medical officer, to reshuffle the health division.

The committee will report its findings to the council's executive committee next Thursday, according to board president Michael L. Harris. In turn, the executive committee will make recommendations to the board of supervisors, which is slated to consider Cooke's proposals on Jan. 2.

Cooke's proposal calls for the closing of the county chest clinic, tuberculin minifilm X-ray program and health clinic laboratory. It also suggests increasing various fees, consolidating all public health division offices in downtown San Rafael and a new program of charging Marin's 11 cities for services previously offered free.

Cooke has claimed the cutbacks will save the county up to $100,000 annually, through taxpayers' burdens would not be eased since much of the saving is a shift of cost from the county to the cities.

Some Comprehensive Helath Planning Council members have eyed the reshuffling warily, saying they had not been informed it was in the works.

SMOG-PROOFED

Yes, Joey, Santa's Reindeer Are Fine

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A state legislator has reassured a worried seven-year-old boy that Santa Claus' reindeer will not be bothered by air pollution because they will be wearing "special devices making them smog-proof."

Republican Assemblyman Richard Hayden of Sunnyvale said Wednesday he received a letter signed by a youngster named Joey who was afraid Santa might not make it to his apartment on Christmas Eve.

"My teacher told us many animals are endangered species," the boy said. "I am afraid that Santa's reindeer will not survive our smog, since they are not used to it. What can you do to make sure they will be all right?"

Hayden said he answered the letter and told Joey:

"I have checked with William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, and his office has informed me that Santa's reindeer, including Rudolph, will be equipped with special devices making them smogproof."

Lassie's First Master Nabbed On Pot Charge

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) —Tommy Rettig, the former child actor who was Lassie's first master when the television series began in 1954, was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of cultivating a large quantity of marijuana.

Authorities said Rettig, 30, and his wife, Darlene, 28, were growing the illegal weed on their "Daisy Hill" farm two miles east of Arroyo Grande. They were held in the San Luis Obispo County Correctional Facility here.

Rettig played Jeff Miller on the long-running Lassie series for four years until he became too tall and old for the part.

Bus Service Will Be Expanded To Handle Rush

Bus service for Marin and Sonoma commuters will be expanded after noon tomorrow to handle those lucky enough to get an early start on the Christmas weekend.

Golden Gate Transit buses will start leaving from the Transbay Terminal at noon. Passengers for San Rafael and points north of San Rafael will board on Fremont Street. Those going to destinations south of San Rafael will board on Natoma Street.

All early afternoon expanded service will follow the Civic Center route out of San Francisco.

Commuter service also will be provided after 4 p.m., but with fewer buses than usual.

Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White cautioned commuters against driving themselves to San Francisco in the morning, and predicted heavy northbound congestion throughout the afternoon.

Star's Makeup Kit Is Stolen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Thieves made off with Phyllis Diller's $500 makeup kit at Los Angeles International Airport Wednesday, forcing a delay in shooting of her new movie.

Police said the kit was stolen from Western Airlines' luggage rack at the airport after Miss Diller arrived on a flight from Las Vegas, Nev.

Police said they later recovered the kit in a car near the airport and arrested two men on suspicion of grand theft.

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) —Actor James Arness, star of television's Gunsmoke series, has donated his $2 million ranch here to the Brandeis Camp Institute, the Jewish youth organization announced Wednesday.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) —Tommy Rettig, the former child actor who was Lassie's first master when the television series began in 1954, was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of cultivating a large quantity of marijuana.

Authorities said Rettig, 30, and his wife, Darlene, 28, were growing the illegal weed on their "Daisy Hill" farm two miles east of Arroyo Grande. They were held in the San Luis Obispo County Correctional Facility here.

Rettig played Jeff Miller on the long-running Lassie series for four years until he became too tall and old for the part.

Nixon's Christmas Trip To Florida Causes Grief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — When 10-year-old Phillip Robst learned his father would be away on Christmas guarding President Nixon in Florida, he "cried himself to sleep," his mother said.

"Please daddy, I don't want you to have to be gone for Christmas and not see us open the presents," the youngster said.

Mrs. Joan Robst telephoned UPI Wednesday and complained that her husband, Air Force Maj. Paul Robst, and about 100 other Sacramento-based pilots and crewmen were ordered to fly reconnaissance missions over Florida and Cuba because Nixon plans to spend Christmas day at Key Biscayne.

"I got them most upset," Mrs. Robst said, "when I saw my 200-pound Notre Dame football player husband walk out of the bedroom with tears in his eyes after he told Philip he wouldn't be home for Christmas."

"Why can't Nixon stay in the White House on Christmas?", she asked.

Mrs. Robst said her husband, a 40-year-old navigator who recently returned from Vietnam duty, departed Wednesday from McClellan AFB for the Florida reconnaissance mission.

However, she said they decided to open the Christmas presents early for Philip and their two older children after the youngster cried himself to sleep.

"I don't think Nixon knows that so many families will be apart for Christmas just because he is going to Florida," Mrs. Robst said. "I think there's been enough suffering from this confounded Vietnam war without his (Nixon's) adding to it."

Robst, an 18-year Air Force veteran, is attached to the 194th "early warning" reconnaissance squadron. When Nixon travels to his Key Biscayne home, the squadron and several others like it must fly missions over Florida and Cuba, Mrs. Robst said.

She said the security precaution isn't necessary if the President stays in Washington. If Nixon went to his San Clemente, Calif., home, Mrs. Robst said, the Sacramento pilots could fly out of McClellan and be home for Christmas.

"California is just as good as Florida," she said. "Why couldn't he come to the Western White house?"

"Maybe I'm nutty as a fruitcake for doing this (telling a newsman the story)," Mrs. Robst said. "But it's not just for my family but for all of the other families of the Air Force pilots.

"None of the rest of them have enough guts to speak up about it."

Christmas Feed For 3,000 Set

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Red Andrews is busy making preparations for a turkey dinner for anyone in town who has no place else to spend Christmas Day.

He said he expects 3,000 guests to show up at the Oklahoma Hotel banquet room for his traditional free feast.

"I look for this to be one of the biggest I have ever had. All this bad weather and laborers haven't been able to work and all," said Andrews, 72, a former state legislator.

Strike Agreement Denied By Union

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Federal mediators said Wednesday that CBS and striking technicians had reached tentative agreement on a new pact, but a union spokesman denied it.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service announced late Wednesday that CBS-TV and negotiators for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had reached tentative agreement on a new contract, subject to ratification of union members.

But Arthur Korff, a spokesman for the union in Washington, told UPI: "There is no agreement." He refused to elaborate.

Drunk Patrol

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police Chief Donald Scott announced today that a special force of 40 policemen will patrol San Francisco's streets Friday from 3 p.m. to midnight looking for drivers who have imbibed too heavily at office Christmas parties.

A GM Device Halts The Tippling Driver

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. today explained a new 10-second test aimed at preventing an intoxicated person from being able to start and drive his car.

Dr. Jean A. Ennant of GM's Electronic Control Systems Department unveiled the system at the GM technical center in suburban Warren.

The experimental system makes use of the car's steering wheel and requires the driver to pass a 10-second test by controlling the movement of a needle on an instrumental panel dial.

If the driver, by moving the steering wheel, cannot hold the needle within a certain range, the car cannot be started. Ennant said the needle control action is like steering a car to keep it on the road.

If a driver passes the sobriety test, a green light marked "pass" comes on and the vehicle can be started. If the needle wavers outside the designated area, the driver is determined to be too drunk to drive and a red light turns on and the starter is immobilized.

The National Safety Council has blamed drinking as a factor in about half of all fatal traffic accidents.

Earnings Rise For Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wages and other earnings of Americans rose $8.7 billion in November, the Commerce Department reports.

The department said Wednesday that this compared with an unusually large increase of $17 billion in October. About half of the October increase came from a 20 per cent boost in Social Security benefits.

The November increase included a $4.6 billion rise in wages and salaries, compared with a $7 billion rise in October. The slowdown in wages and salaries was in private industry, since government payrolls in November went up.

Schlesinger Picked As Director Of CIA

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — James R. Schlesinger has been chosen by President Nixon as director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and L. Patrick Gray III will be appointed to a full term as director of the FBI, informed administration sources said today.

Schlesinger, now chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, will succeed Richard M. Helms as CIA chief, with Helms being given a diplomatic assignment —after more than a quarter century of intelligence work —as ambassador to Iran.

Gray, who was named by Nixon to be acting FBI director after J. Edgar Hoover died last May, is scheduled to get a full-term nomination early in the new year.

Gray is still recuperating from an operation to remove an intestinal obstruction. He was stricken last month at his Connecticut home. Before moving to the FBI on Hoover's death, he was an assistant attorney general in the Justice Department.

Helms discussed his status with Nixon at Camp David, Md., some weeks ago during the President's conferences with virtually all top-level government appointees, and was said to have suggested himself that he step down.

Helms was reported to have told Nixon that he felt the CIA director should not be over 60. Helms will be 60 in March. He has been with the CIA since it was created in 1947.

It was disclosed that Nixon also intends to reappoint Romana Banuelos as U.S. treasurer. Mrs. Banuelos, 47, of Los Angeles, assumed her post in December, 1971, one of Nixon's first appointees of Mexican-American heritage. A businesswoman, she turned her firm, Ramona Mexican Food Products Inc. at Gardena, Calif., into a successful enterprise.

Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint, also is being asked to serve in Nixon's second term. She is former vice chairman of the Republican National Committee and widow of Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois.

Helms has headed the CIA since June, 1966. A former newspaperman, who got into intelligence work with the Navy during World War II before becoming a CIA agent when the agency was created 25 years ago.

In Iran, Helms will succeed Joseph Farland, a veteran member of the U.S. foreign service, as Washington envoy. Farland is to get a new assignment.

Schlesinger, 43, has been AEC chairman since last year. He is a former university professor (Virginia 1955-63) and formerly was with the Rand Corp., a research organization which does considerable work for the government.

Tax Break To Some Parents

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan reported today signing a bill into law giving a state income tax break to middle and low income families who send their children to private schools.

The new law would apply to the 1973 calendar year and is estimated to cost the state about $16 million a year.

Families with an adjusted gross income of less than $19,000 a year would be eligible for the tax credit.

Board Says McGovern Aides Due Back Wages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two aides in Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign are entitled to more than $2,000 in back wages, a wage board ruled Wednesday.

The wages had been withheld in the final weeks of the campaign because of a shortage.

Joseph Mohbat, press aide to McGovern's campaign manager Lawrence J. O'Brien, and Susan Davis, a secretary, contended that the campaign committee paid off debts and loans to big donors at the expense of staff workers.

Mohbat said $1,730 was due him for the final three weeks, and Miss Davis said $726 was due her. They filed formal complaints with the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Board.

Martin Katz, representing the McGovern committee, argued before the board that Mohbat and Miss Davis were administrative workers and thereby exempt from laws governing wage collection.

The board's chief wage investigator, Louis J. Lamanna, ruled for Mohbat and Miss Davis and said that if the committee failed to pay by Dec. 27 it could be prosecuted in court. But the committee was allowed the opportunity to appeal.

One Santa Has A Rough Time

BOVILL, Idaho (UPI) — George Pingel, an Idaho Department of Highways employe, is recuperating from his brief stint as Santa Claus.

He donned a white beard and red suit to carry out a tradition of delivering sacks of candy to this northern Idaho town's youngsters.

He was bitten on one leg by a German shepherd dog shortly after beginning his round. But he forged on—and slipped on the ice, spraining the ankle on his other leg.

"I've had it," said Pringle as he gave up his short career as St. Nick.

Driver In Fatal Crash Admits Drunken Driving

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A driver involved in an accident that killed a Larkspur physician was placed on probation and fined $500 yesterday after pleading guilty to a reduced charge.

Leonard Lundgren III, 39, of San Francisco, originally had been charged with felony drunken driving, manslaughter and speeding after a collision on Aug. 10 that killed Dr. Steven Michael Sydow, 26, of Larkspur, near the Golden Gate Bridge.

Municipal Court Judge John A. O'Kane allowed Lundgren to change his plea to guilty of misdemeanor drunken driving, dismissed the other two counts and gave Lundren a suspended 90-day jail sentence, fined him $500 and placed him on two years' probation. Judge O'Kane made no recommendation on suspension of Lundgren's driver's license, court aides reported.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Schlesinger Picked As Director Of CIA

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — James R. Schlesinger has been chosen by President Nixon as director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and L. Patrick Gray III will be appointed to a full term as director of the FBI, informed administration sources said today.

Schlesinger, now chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, will succeed Richard M. Helms as CIA chief, with Helms being given a diplomatic assignment —after more than a quarter century of intelligence work —as ambassador to Iran.

Gray, who was named by Nixon to be acting FBI director after J. Edgar Hoover died last May, is scheduled to get a full-term nomination early in the new year.

Gray is still recuperating from an operation to remove an intestinal obstruction. He was stricken last month at his Connecticut home. Before moving to the FBI on Hoover's death, he was an assistant attorney general in the Justice Department.

Helms discussed his status with Nixon at Camp David, Md., some weeks ago during the President's conferences with virtually all top-level government appointees, and was said to have suggested himself that he step down.

Helms was reported to have told Nixon that he felt the CIA director should not be over 60. Helms will be 60 in March. He has been with the CIA since it was created in 1947.

It was disclosed that Nixon also intends to reappoint Romana Banuelos as U.S. treasurer. Mrs. Banuelos, 47, of Los Angeles, assumed her post in December, 1971, one of Nixon's first appointees of Mexican-American heritage. A businesswoman, she turned her firm, Ramona Mexican Food Products Inc. at Gardena, Calif., into a successful enterprise.

Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint, also is being asked to serve in Nixon's second term. She is former vice chairman of the Republican National Committee and widow of Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois.

Helms has headed the CIA since June, 1966. A former newspaperman, who got into intelligence work with the Navy during World War II before becoming a CIA agent when the agency was created 25 years ago.

In Iran, Helms will succeed Joseph Farland, a veteran member of the U.S. foreign service, as Washington envoy. Farland is to get a new assignment.

Schlsinger, 43, has been AEC chairman since last year. He is a former university professor (Virginia 1955-63) and formerly was with the Rand Corp., a research organization which does considerable work for the government.

Tax Break To Some Parents

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan reported today signing a bill into law giving a state income tax break to middle and low income families who send their children to private schools.

The new law would apply to the 1973 calendar year and is estimated to cost the state about $16 million a year.

Families with an adjusted gross income of less than $19,000 a year would be eligible for the tax credit.

Board Says McGovern Aides Due Back Wages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two aides in Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign are entitled to more than $2,000 in back wages, a wage board ruled Wednesday.

The wages had been withheld in the final weeks of the campaign because of a shortage.

Joseph Mohbat, press aide to McGovern's campaign manager Lawrence J. O'Brien, and Susan Davis, a secretary, contended that the campaign committee paid off debts and loans to big donors at the expense of staff workers.

Mohbat said $1,730 was due him for the final three weeks, and Miss Davis said $726 was due her. They filed formal complaints with the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Board.

Martin Katz, representing the McGovern committee, argued before the board that Mohbat and Miss Davis were administrative workers and thereby exempt from laws governing wage collection.

The board's chief wage investigator, Louis J. Lamanna, ruled for Mohbat and Miss Davis and said that if the committee failed to pay by Dec. 27 it could be prosecuted in court. But the committee was allowed the opportunity to appeal.

One Santa Has A Rough Time

BOVILL, Idaho (UPI) — George Pingel, an Idaho Department of Highways employe, is recuperating from his brief stint as Santa Claus.

He donned a white beard and red suit to carry out a tradition of delivering sacks of candy to this northern Idaho town's youngsters.

He was bitten on one leg by a German shepherd dog shortly after beginning his round. But he forged on—and slipped on the ice, spraining the ankle on his other leg.

"I've had it," said Pringle as he gave up his short career as St. Nick.

Driver In Fatal Crash Admits Drunken Driving

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A driver involved in an accident that killed a Larkspur physician was placed on probation and fined $500 yesterday after pleading guilty to a reduced charge.

Leonard Lundgren III, 39, of San Francisco, originally had been charged with felony drunken driving, manslaughter and speeding after a collision on Aug. 10 that killed Dr. Steven Michael Sydow, 26, of Larkspur, near the Golden Gate Bridge.

Municipal Court Judge John A. O'Kane allowed Lundgren to change his plea to guilty of misdemeanor drunken driving, dismissed the other two counts and gave Lundren a suspended 90-day jail sentence, fined him $500 and placed him on two years' probation. Judge O'Kane made no recommendation on suspension of Lundgren's driver's license, court aides reported.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office: Take Anacin.

A Knife-Point Attack Reported

A 25-year-old San Rafael married woman was raped at knife point last night in Gerstle Park, police reported.

According to police, she was walking her dog past the park at 9:50 p.m. when a man grabbed her from behind. He forced her into the rest room, and made her undress holding the knife at her throat. After raping her, he fled into the foggy night. The woman dressed and called police from a nearby friend's home.

The man was described as 20 to 25 years old, medium build, weighing about 150 pounds and having neck length brown hair and a full beard. He was wearing a lightweight, grey jacket, according to police reports.

Suspect In A Robbery Is Arrested

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of robbery was William E. Jackson, 19, of Brooklyn, N.Y. Jackson also was held as absent without leave from the Marine Corps for military authorities.

Police said that Brandon L. Persinger of 175 St. Thomas Way, Tiburon, told them he was robbed Tuesday at about 10:45 p.m. in the abandoned railroad yard at Tiburon Boulevard and Mar West.

Persinger said he was walking through the yard with a friend, but they parted while he waited for the friend to get his car. He said three men approached him, asked him for money and when he refused to give them any, one grabbed him and hit him across the face.

The other two joined in, Persinger told police, and they knocked him down, rolled him over and took his wallet and removed $17 from it.

Jackson was picked up the next morning after a policeman decided he matched the description of one of the robbers. The other two men, described as white and about 20 years old, were still being sought.

Jackson was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Development Vote Results To Be Delayed

The Petaluma Development Allotment board certified its votes last night, but agreed to withhold public notice of the results until Dec. 29.

The board finsihed its voting last Friday and certified results as correct, but said neither the public nor developers will be given results until Dec. 29. The votes will determine which of 16 proposed developments can be built next year under the 500 living unit limitation.

Planning Director William C. McGivern said the Dec. 29 release date was chosen so the required 15-day appeal period will conform with the previously set appeals hearing on Jan. 10. He said if results were released sooner the board would have to hold the appeal hearing at an earlier date.

John Joslyn of Qantas Development Corp. asked the board for a special dispensation and said if given a copy of the results he would use them only for business purposes and not make them public. Board members rejected his request.

Developers may appeal the voting results and ask members to reconsider votes at the hearing Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

RIDGECREST, Calif. (UPI) —A moderate earthquake, followed by more than a dozen aftershocks, shook this small desert community in eastern California Wednesday but there were no reports of damage.

College Finance Bill Is Vetoed By Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed an omnibus community college finance bill because it would have conflicted with the legislature's $1.1 billion property tax relief and school aid program, it was learned today.

In a veto message, the governor said the legislature should "fully review the issue of community college financial aid during the 1973 legislative session."

The community colleges bill, carried by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, proposed pumping an additional $43.4 million in state aid into the community colleges and an additional $14.3 million in state support for high schools.

At the same time, however, the Alquist measure would have resulted in an unintended $31 million windfall for the community colleges because of technical conflicts with the $1.1 billion property tax relief and school aid bill signed by Reagan Monday.

Representatives of the California Junior College Association, sponsor of the Alquist measure, recommended that Reagan sign the measure anyway and promised to sponsor a measure next month that would prevent the windfall. "We don't want the windfall," said Leland Meyers, an association official.

Reagan said as it was enacted by the Legislature. The Alquist bill was expected to cost approximately $60 million. But he said if he signed the bill it would supersede provisions of the property tax relief-school finance legislation and cost $111 million.

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 22-year-old Mill Valley man has been sent to federal prison for five years for his part in a $40,000 hashish deal.

Kenneth Michael Stevens was sentenced by Judge Samuel S. Conti in U.S. District Court. The judge also said Stevens was to be placed on parole for two years after serving the prison sentence.

Stevens had earlier pleaded guilty to possessing hashish with intent to distribute it.

He and four other persons were arrested in a raid on a Bolinas house last February. Twenty-two pounds of hashish was seized by federal agents.

Stevens is the second of the five to be sentenced in the case. A woman, Barbara Lynn Coffman, 27, of Bolinas, is serving a six-month federal penitentiary sentence after pleading guilty to a misdemeanor count of possessing hashsh.

Peter B. Erlebron, 29, also of Bolinas, is due to be sentenced tomorrow. He has pleaded guilty to a felony count of possessing the drug with intent to distribute it.

A fourth person, Carl Sheldon Wolfe, 29, of Mill Valley, was acquitted last month by a jury in U.S. District Court, and a fifth defendant, William Paul Wyler, 24, of Baltimore, Md., jumped bail and is missing.

Lockheed Draws On Loan Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has been authorized to draw another $20 million from the $250 million government-backed loan fund Congress authorized to bail the big company out of financial trouble.

The new withdrawal was authorized Wednesday by the federal Emergency Loan Guarantee Board, bringing the total Lockheed has drawn from the fund to $150 million.

Tots Place Orders With Santa

"We had a baby sister but God thought she was so good he took her back to be with him," the child said.

Another caller, told by Santa Claus not to build a fire in the fireplace because he would get burned, responded that she would be ready with first aid.

And another caller asked Santa to bring her the full contents of a toy catalogue — except the things aimed at boys.

The comments and requests were noted last night as Santa Claus received more than 1,500 telephone calls from Marin youngsters through an annual project of the Mill Valley Jaycees and the Independent-Journal. Phones at the I-J office in San Rafael and at the Frank Howard Allen Realty office in Mill Valley were used.

Price Of Beef On The Climb

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The price of beef in Northern California has jumped and will increase more because of a shortage of cattle, an industry spokesman said Tuesday.

"The demand for beef between Thanksgiving and now has just been tremendous," said George Strathearn, the California Beef Council manager.

Department of Agriculture statistics show retailers are paying from four to eight cents per pound more for beef this week than they did last week.

New Method Of Feeding Tried On Ailing Truman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman was fed today through a rare intravenous method designed to nourish him while bypassing his failing kidneys.

Truman, 88, hospitalized 18 days ago, was in "very serious" condition, sufdering from a weak heart, hardening of the arteries, lung congestion and the buildup of poisons in his system because of the inadequately functioning kidneys.

At a midmorning briefing a medical spokesman said the new feeding process had not had enough time to prove its effectiveness.

"There has been no change in President Truman's condition," said Research Hospital spokesman John Dreves. "Doctors say that it is too soon to know how effective the new feeding process will be. At 7 a.m. (CST) blood pressure was 130 over 60, pulse 90, respiration 18 and temperature 98."

Dreves said kidney output was 530 ccs for the past 24 hours and Truman was given 1,500 ccs of high carbohydrate feed and 200 ccs of essential amino acid solution.

Fearful that the buildup of poison in his system would eventually prove fatal, doctors devised what Dreves called "a new approach to feeding designed to provide essential amino acids normally supplied but without the waste byproducts given off in the normal metabolic process."

Dreves said Wednesday the method is "not on the open market," and is being used under the control of the Food and Drug Administration.

Previously, Truman was fed liquid food through a tube to his stomach.

New Zones Worked Out To Check Sausalito's Growth

In an attempt to limit population growth in Sausalito, the city planning commission decided last night to increase the parcel size required for dwelling units in each of the city's five residential zones.

The commission's recommendation will be forwarded to the city council, according to City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr. If ultimately approved by the council, the change would mean that most existing homes and apartments in Sausalito would become legal nonconforming units.

Should this happen, St. Cyr said persons who wish to expand their dwelling would have to seek variances from the city to do so, but could repair and maintain their homes without city approval.

The commission recommended these increases in required lot size for the various residential zones:

1. R-16, from 6,000 to 8,000 square feet for each single-family home.
2. R-18, from 8,000 to 10,000 square feet for each home.
3. R-120, from 20,000 square feet to one acre for each home.
4. R-2.25, from 2,500 to 5,000 square feet for each duplex and from 5,000 to 7,500 for each duplex unit in the R-2.5 zone.
5. R-3, from 1,500 to 2,500 square feet for each apartment unit in the multiple family zone.

St. Cyr said the planning commission agreed that other zones — like the waterfront zone — which permit residential uses should require 2,500 square feet, rather than the current 1,500 for each unit.

The planning commission's suggestions were in response to a recommendation from the council that the city might control future growth by abolishing the multiple family residential zone in the city.

In other business, the commission approved a conditional use permit to allow David Hunter to construct an 18-unit single-family home planned unit development on about 3.2 acres at the corner of Santa Rosa Avenue and Glen Drive.

The commission also granted a request from the Golden Gate Bridge District to extend its conditional use permit to operate a ferry in Sausalito for 90 days.

FATAL CONSTRUCTION FLAMES

Firemen hose down a bulldozer that ruptured a gas line and touched off an explosion and fire at an Interstate 680 construction site at Youngstown, Ohio, leaving one dead and seven injured. One of those is critical. The explosion occurred yesterday and temporarily disrupted gas and electrical service to a section of the city's south side.

The Middle Class Gets Involved

By DAVID HOLMSTROM
The Christian Science Monitor News Service
(Third of four articles)

SAN FRANCISCO — Ellsworth Culver is dressed in a dark business suit. Plucked out of a downtown crowd, he could be a typical corporate executive on his way to a lazy lunch at the local men's club.

Solomon (Scooter) Akins has on flare pants and a soft sweater. Plucked out of the same downtown crowd, he could be a black militant or a "cool dude" on welfare looking for work, but not very hard.

So what are they doing in the same office together with almost $500,000 in foundation money ready to back them up?

What they are doing is guiding a nonprofit organization known as the Involvement Corps, which utilizes employees of business firms in aiding community projects. The aim is to involve middle-class people who do not usually work in this type of activity.

The two men — Culver is executive director of the Involvement Corps and Akins an associate director — are also living examples that whites and blacks can reach across racial and cultural barriers and understand each other to the point of love, a noun both men use fearlessly.

The measure of the Involvement Corps' success and promise, aside from almost $500,000 in recent foundation money, is exemplified by Michelle Heisler, a legal secretary at Foremost-McKesson, Inc., here.

Never before involved in volunteer work, Mrs. Heisler joined the company's Involvement Corps Task Force at Centro Latino, a community center in San Francisco's tough Mission district.

In need of an English tutor, the center welcomed Mrs. Heisler one night with three little non-English speaking Mexican children seated quietly in the room. "I didn't speak a word of Spanish, said Mrs. Heisler. "Just being there was a shock to me. I was brought up in private schools all my life."

The object was to teach English. Now, six months later, a total of 47 children and adults are taking the "course," and Mrs. Heisler's husband, Jerry, is there too, five nights a week. You can find both husband and wife laughing, learning, and sharing like members of the student's families.

"I probably would have gone on the rest of my life the way I was," said Mrs. Heisler, her blue eyes sparkling, "and that was prejudiced with a closed mind. Now I love these children and people like my own nephews and relatives. They hav to be the friendliest people anywhere. The change in me . . . I just can't put it into words."

Exactly how does the Involvement Corps bring people together who would not ordinarily meet in an urban society and harness the onten illusive energy needed for positive change?

First, take a big corporation like Foremost-McKesson or Crown Zellerbach or Levi Strauss. Sell them on the idea that they should allow an Involvement Corps task force to be formed among, say, 200 employees.

Connect the task force to an existing community project of their choice — a tutorial project, a halfway house, a community center — and hire a task force corpsman, like an ex-Peace Corps member, to be the liaison between the project and the task force.

Pay the corpsman around $300 a month out of the pockets of the task force (with maybe some help from the corporation). And ask the corporation to chip in $250 a month to help defray the administrative and staff costs of the Involvement Corps itself.

The result, most often, is that everybody "wins." The corporation takes on genuine "social involvement" (at a low cost), the employees become involved in varying degrees of volunteer work, the corpsman or woman, usually a young person dedicated to social change, works with the project and the corporation in a positive way, and most important, the community project is supported and benefited.

In three years, operating mainly in northern California and Denver, the Involvement Corps has grown from one corporation involved to nearly 25. Recently the W. K. Kellogg Foundation gave the corps $346,342 for expansion into other cities. The Arca Foundation donated another $96,500.

"Corporations have Ralph Nader coming at them from one side," said Scooter Akins, "and the Black Panthers and others coming at them from the other side. What can they do?" Answering his own question, Akins said, "Turn to us. We have a proven program and we are mighty cheap."

Peripheral benefits for the corporation include changes in employee attitudes toward work and the company. Statements offered by employees include: "I have no love for this company, but if they are willing to do this, I'd rather work here than somewhere else." Or, "I'm proud of my company." Or, "Once we got involved on the project the morale among the employees seemed to improve."

"A Gallup Poll taken a few years back," said Culver, "indicated that 61 per cent of the middle-class people polled said they would become involved one way or another n worthwhile community projects. We tap that reservoir of energy by helping people take the first step, and then staying with them."

What really makes the Involvement Corps tick is the "hidden agenda" — the continuing process of change that occurs when human beings from different social and economic backgrounds come together in a non-threatening environment.

"This builds new awareness in people," said Culver, "and they realize, maybe slowly, that they cannot fall back on their old judgments or biases about classes of people. Often this new understanding has to be interpreted so that it can be accepted."

Thus, the Involvement Corps sees itself as an "agent for change."

"There is a cycle to a task force," said Doug Carver, a corpsman for nearly two years on several task forces. "They begin with enthusiasm, but then start bumping into reality and the enthusiasm fades . . . Pretty soon he asks himself, "What the heck am I doing?' "

The answer for Carver is that he is involved in "a demanding, rewarding, frustrating, hateful, growing experience."

The range of task force projects is wide. It includes: backing a food store operated by and for blacks, establishing a free podiatry clinic for the elderly, donating books to a prison education program, obtaining large grants for home kitchen equipment, aiding a halfway house for the mentally troubled, providing equipment and time in refurbishing and painting homes, providing funds through food and bake sales, tax counseling for low-income families, placing juvenile offenders with volunteers, etc.

Yule Eve Meditation Planned

Marin County will be doused with "rainbows of joy" Christmas Eve, according to a Kentfield woman who plans to transform the Veterans Memorial Building auditorium into an arena for mass meditation exercises on the holy night.

The event - aimed at increasing worldwide love and self-awareness - is sponsored by New Opportunities Worldwide and the House of Man, a non profit group headed by Elga Hindin of Kentfield. Residents who participate in the happening, which begins at 8 p.m., will witness a "production of perfect love on stage," she said. Singers, dancers and an Indian begger who chants will spice the event.

"Marin County will become the focal point of divine energy to be transmitted to all spiritual groups and peoples throughout the planet," she said.

Highlighting the occurences will be a presentation of meditation and Indian mythology, she said.

"There's a force far greater than you and I at work," she declared, saying the performance will "turn the world on with a rose."

Donations collected at the door will be used to finance a self awareness center, perhaps in San Rafael, she said.

Higher Court To Hear Drug Case

A 21-year-old Mill Valley resident has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of having methamphetamine and injecting equipment.

Duerner was arrested Nov. 20 by the California Highway Patrol after his car was stopped for erratic driving on Highway 101 near Paradise Drive and California Park Hill.

The patrol said they found 16 packets of white powder, needles, syringes and a spoon in the car.

The Middle Class Gets Involved

By DAVID HOLMSTROM
The Christian Science Monitor News Service
(Third of four articles)

SAN FRANCISCO — Ellsworth Culver is dressed in a dark business suit. Plucked out of a downtown crowd, he could be a typical corporate executive on his way to a lazy lunch at the local men's club.

Solomon (Scooter) Akins has on flare pants and a soft sweater. Plucked out of the same downtown crowd, he could be a black militant or a "cool dude" on welfare looking for work, but not very hard.

So what are they doing in the same office together with almost $500,000 in foundation money ready to back them up?

What they are doing is guiding a nonprofit organization known as the Involvement Corps, which utilizes employees of business firms in aiding community projects. The aim is to involve middle-class people who do not usually work in this type of activity.

The two men — Culver is executive director of the Involvement Corps and Akins an associate director — are also living examples that whites and blacks can reach across racial and cultural barriers and understand each other to the point of love, a noun both men use fearlessly.

The measure of the Involvement Corps' success and promise, aside from almost $500,000 in recent foundation money, is exemplified by Michelle Heisler, a legal secretary at Foremost-McKesson, Inc., here.

Never before involved in volunteer work, Mrs. Heisler joined the company's Involvement Corps Task Force at Centro Latino, a community center in San Francisco's tough Mission district.

In need of an English tutor, the center welcomed Mrs. Heisler one night with three little non-English speaking Mexican children seated quietly in the room. "I didn't speak a word of Spanish, said Mrs. Heisler. "Just being there was a shock to me. I was brought up in private schools all my life."

The object was to teach English. Now, six months later, a total of 47 children and adults are taking the "course," and Mrs. Heisler's husband, Jerry, is there too, five nights a week. You can find both husband and wife laughing, learning, and sharing like members of the student's families.

"I probably would have gone on the rest of my life the way I was," said Mrs. Heisler, her blue eyes sparkling, "and that was prejudiced with a closed mind. Now I love these children and people like my own nephews and relatives. They hav to be the friendliest people anywhere. The change in me . . . I just can't put it into words."

Exactly how does the Involvement Corps bring people together who would not ordinarily meet in an urban society and harness the onten illusive energy needed for positive change?

First, take a big corporation like Foremost-McKesson or Crown Zellerbach or Levi Strauss. Sell them on the idea that they should allow an Involvement Corps task force to be formed among, say, 200 employees.

Connect the task force to an existing community project of their choice — a tutorial project, a halfway house, a community center — and hire a task force corpsman, like an ex-Peace Corps member, to be the liaison between the project and the task force.

Pay the corpsman around $300 a month out of the pockets of the task force (with maybe some help from the corporation). And ask the corporation to chip in $250 a month to help defray the administrative and staff costs of the Involvement Corps itself.

The result, most often, is that everybody "wins." The corporation takes on genuine "social involvement" (at a low cost), the employees become involved in varying degrees of volunteer work, the corpsman or woman, usually a young person dedicated to social change, works with the project and the corporation in a positive way, and most important, the community project is supported and benefited.

In three years, operating mainly in northern California and Denver, the Involvement Corps has grown from one corporation involved to nearly 25. Recently the W. K. Kellogg Foundation gave the corps $346,342 for expansion into other cities. The Arca Foundation donated another $96,500.

"Corporations have Ralph Nader coming at them from one side," said Scooter Akins, "and the Black Panthers and others coming at them from the other side. What can they do?" Answering his own question, Akins said, "Turn to us. We have a proven program and we are mighty cheap."

Peripheral benefits for the corporation include changes in employee attitudes toward work and the company. Statements offered by employees include: "I have no love for this company, but if they are willing to do this, I'd rather work here than somewhere else." Or, "I'm proud of my company." Or, "Once we got involved on the project the morale among the employees seemed to improve."

"A Gallup Poll taken a few years back," said Culver, "indicated that 61 per cent of the middle-class people polled said they would become involved one way or another n worthwhile community projects. We tap that reservoir of energy by helping people take the first step, and then staying with them."

What really makes the Involvement Corps tick is the "hidden agenda" — the continuing process of change that occurs when human beings from different social and economic backgrounds come together in a non-threatening environment.

"This builds new awareness in people," said Culver, "and they realize, maybe slowly, that they cannot fall back on their old judgments or biases about classes of people. Often this new understanding has to be interpreted so that it can be accepted."

Thus, the Involvement Corps sees itself as an "agent for change."

"There is a cycle to a task force," said Doug Carver, a corpsman for nearly two years on several task forces. "They begin with enthusiasm, but then start bumping into reality and the enthusiasm fades . . . Pretty soon he asks himself, "What the heck am I doing?' "

The answer for Carver is that he is involved in "a demanding, rewarding, frustrating, hateful, growing experience."

The range of task force projects is wide. It includes: backing a food store operated by and for blacks, establishing a free podiatry clinic for the elderly, donating books to a prison education program, obtaining large grants for home kitchen equipment, aiding a halfway house for the mentally troubled, providing equipment and time in refurbishing and painting homes, providing funds through food and bake sales, tax counseling for low-income families, placing juvenile offenders with volunteers, etc.

Yule Eve Meditation Planned

Marin County will be doused with "rainbows of joy" Christmas Eve, according to a Kentfield woman who plans to transform the Veterans Memorial Building auditorium into an arena for mass meditation exercises on the holy night.

The event - aimed at increasing worldwide love and self-awareness - is sponsored by New Opportunities Worldwide and the House of Man, a non profit group headed by Elga Hindin of Kentfield. Residents who participate in the happening, which begins at 8 p.m., will witness a "production of perfect love on stage," she said. Singers, dancers and an Indian begger who chants will spice the event.

"Marin County will become the focal point of divine energy to be transmitted to all spiritual groups and peoples throughout the planet," she said.

Highlighting the occurences will be a presentation of meditation and Indian mythology, she said.

"There's a force far greater than you and I at work," she declared, saying the performance will "turn the world on with a rose."

Donations collected at the door will be used to finance a self awareness center, perhaps in San Rafael, she said.

Higher Court To Hear Drug Case

A 21-year-old Mill Valley resident has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of having methamphetamine and injecting equipment.

Duerner was arrested Nov. 20 by the California Highway Patrol after his car was stopped for erratic driving on Highway 101 near Paradise Drive and California Park Hill.

The patrol said they found 16 packets of white powder, needles, syringes and a spoon in the car.

Attack By FTC Clouds Future Of Xerox

News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) attack on Xerox Corporation's alleged monopoly in the office copying machine market has thrown a cloud of uncertainty over one of Wall Street's favorite growth stocks.

"There were rumors that the FTC was preparing a complaint," noted one brokerage firm analyst. "But no one anticipated the severity of the proposed remedies." After the FTC charges were made public Dec. 12, the high multiple stock tumpled 8 points to 149¼ in a flurry of selling by nervous investors.

The FTC accused Xerox of achieving a dominant position in the $1.7-billion-a-year copying machine industry through the use of unfair marketing and patent practices.

The proscribed practices, the FTC alleged, range from Xerox's refusal to sell its newest models outright, rather than lease them, to maintaining a tight monopoly on patents relating to plain-paper copying technology.

In addition, the agency charged the office equipment giant with an attempt to carve up world market for copying machines between itself and Rank Xerox, Ltd., a British affiliate.

Investors are less perturbed by the FTC's allegations of unfair practices than the sweeping goals of the antitrust suit. If implemented, analysts agree, they would produce a major restructuring of the copying machine industry, with a significantly diminished role for Xerox.

Two of the FTC's potentially most damaging demands, says Peter Labe of Smith Barney & Co., are the divestiture of Rank Xerox and the granting of royalty-free patents to competitors.

Rank Xerox, which is 50 per cent owned by Xerox, had pretax profits of $196 million on revenues of $500 million in 1971, and accounted for more than 30 per cent of total corporate income of $213 million.

Rank Xerox's rapidly growing earnings, which have climbed at better than a 20 per cent annual rate recently, are one reason why Xerox has enjoyed a favored status among institutional investors. "Just the threat of splitting off Rank Xerox," says Dean Witter office equipment analyst Richard Schwarz, "will probably dampen the stock's high multiple."

Without its ties to Xerox, the British organization would be severely handicapped in expanding its office copier operations outside the U.S. and Canada. Rank Xerox relies largely on the parent company's $80-million-a-year research and development program to provide it with new products. And many of its successful marketing plans have evolved as a result of close cooperation with Xerox.

The FTC challenge to Xerox's traditionally invulnerable patent position in an "open invitation" to vastly increased competition in the copying machine industry, analysts say.

Xerox owns more than 2,000 patents in th U.S. and abroad on the Xerography process, which it first acquired from the Battelle Memorial Institute in 1956.

The key patents protect the company's know-how for making photo-copies on standard paper that users can buy anywhere. In the past, Xerox has vigorously defended these patents against infringers and has been highly reluctant to make them available under royalty licenses.

As a result, the company now controls more than 90 per cent of the market for "plain paper" copiers, which many users find much more convenient than machines using chemically coated paper.

There are two dozen companies in addition to Xerox that have a stake in the office copying business. Most of the machine makers like Pitney-Bowes and Dennison Company produce low-speed electrostatic copiers, which sell for $1,500 or less. The most popular Xerox models sell for upward of $2,000 and as high as $30,000. Since IBM introduced its first plain paper copier over a year ago, competition has heated up, analysts say. Several business machine firms soon plan to import Japanese-made copiers that don't require chemically coated paper.

Although competitive with Xerox machines to some extent, the imports are not high-speed copier-duplicators. These "second-generation" high-speed copiers currently are the mainstay of Xerox's business. Although they produce copies for as little as two cents a sheet, these high-volume machines can generate billings of about $8,000-$10,000 a year in a large office.

While analysts are inclined to take a more cautious approach to Xerox's stock in view of the FTC complaint, few view it as an "outright sale." "I'd say the stock is a hold at this point," comments Peter Labe, who removed the company from Smith Barney's recommended list earlier this year.

Wall Street expects Xerox to fight the FTC action vigorously in the courts — all the way up to the Supreme Court, if necessary. "They'd never negotiate a consent settlement on these terms," asserts Schwarz.

Money Haul At Center Foiled

When nurse Donna MacLean confronted him, he retorted: "Don't go in there. Can't you read?"

Mrs. MacLean called hospital authorities, who asked the "doctor" for his identification.

He fled out of the building, leaving behind the money changing machine, which contained about $500.

Coit Tower Is Lighted Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The sailors from the Aircraft Carrier Coral Sea have once again decorated the top of Coit Tower with Christmas lights.

It is the third year the sailors have climbed to the top of the tower to put up the light display as a gift to San Francisco, the carrier's adopted city.

The giant Christmas tree consists of 288 red and green lights, topped by a rotating beacon.

Tuesday night when Mayor Joseph Alioto participated in the lighting ceremony he called the annual event a sign of "the love affair going on between the Coral Sea and San Francisco."

Burton In Race For State Chairmanship

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Liberal Assemblyman John L. Burton formally announced his candidacy for state Democratic chairman yesterday and said his ardent support of Sen. George S. McGovern should not be held against him.

"I don't think because a person supported Sen. McGovern he should be ruled out of the party any more than anyone who supported Sen. Humphrey or Sen. Muskie or anyone else," the San Francisco lawmaker told a news conference.

"What we are trying to do is bring all Democrats—as many as we can--back together."

Burton, co-chairman of McGovern's California campaign, also shrugged off an unfriendly resolution adopted by the party's state executive committee last Saturday. The resolution, approved 26-22 by the 150-member ruling committee, sought to bar partisan public officials from becoming state chairman.

But Burton noted the resolution was not binding on the full State Democratic Central Committee, which will elect a new chairman at its convention Jan. 27-28 in Sacramento.

"I personally feel the resolution was kind of a divisive thing at a time when we're trying to bring the party back together," he said.

Burton, 40, an attorney by profession, is considered the leading candidate to replace Van Nuys lawyer Charles T. Manatt as chairman. Manatt's term will expire after the convention.

Other announced candidates are northern women's chairman Pat Nisbet of Berkeley and northern division chairman of John Merlo of Chico, who contends Burton "represents the errors of the past which have lost us the big one"—the presidential election.

Charles O'Brien of Danville, former chief deputy state attorney general who won the Democratic nomination for attorney general in 1970, also is considering entering the race.

Burton said for Democrats "to be united, we have to draw not only on the young voter but the old voter, not only the hilltop liberal but the flatland blue collar worker. We have to draw on the pensioners and every segment of society."

Burton said he supports the controversial "quota" system of choosing national convention delegates as it was implemented in California. Under that system, traditionally underrepresented women and minorities were placed on the delegation in proportion to their numbers in the population. This irritated many old-line Democrats who were excluded from the delegation.

A LOOK AT 1972

Politics, Equal Rights In The Year's Spotlight

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —It was Right On with the women's liberation movement in 1972. And it'll be the same in 1973.

Granted, there were fewer screaming headlines about activists, fewer demonstrations and marches for assorted causes. The biggest news-making events were in politics and in finally getting an equal rights amendment through Congress.

But the progress goes deep in the many areas in which women are especially active.

"This is a behavioral revolution we're in," is the way Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW) put it. Mrs. Heide is a behavioral scientist, lecturer, consultant, writer and former commissioner of the Pennsylvania Human Relations Committee.

"IT'S A mushrooming, cumulative thing," she continues. "Hard to measure, though, because how do you measure what's in one's head? How do you know when a woman decides, 'I think I'll assert myself.'

"I believe in '72 we made enormous gains in self-awareness, self-determination."

Maybe the overt actions were fewer, but the noise has not subsided by any means. "I do not countenance violence," said Mrs. Heide in a telephone interview from her Vernon, Conn., home. "I don't believe in an eye for an eye. But if our commitment is serious, we must be heard. We will march if necessary. We must do everything to prevent violence to the spirit.

"ACTIVISM WORKS. Only when we have taken action have we gotten results in some cases."

She points to the women who interrupted a Senate subcommittee hearing back in 1970 "to get the equal rights legislation moving." The year marked the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage and one of the most headline-making years for the liberationists.

Congress finally in March 1972 ratified the 27th amendment which prohibits discrimination based on sex by any law or action of federal, state or local government. Now, it's up to the states in sufficient number—38—to ratify it. Some already have but there still are many to go.

Mrs. Heide says when 1973 state legislatures go into session, NOW and other organizations will be working at state level to force favorable action.

Feminist groups, of which NOW is the largest, cite other legislative breakthroughs. Among them is a change in the Civil Rights Act which adds a ban on sex discrimination to the ban on racial bias; strengthening powers of the Equal Employment Commission to enforce non-discrimination in employment; extension of the Equal Pay Act which gives additional economic benefits to an estimated 15 million women executives, administrative and professional employes.

ONE OF the major gains Mrs. Heide counts for women is in the world of religion — not only with more women in leadership and ministerial roles (the Jewish faith ordained its first woman rabbi in '72) but in a new awareness that "religion has to become more humane."

By contrast, however, women of the Catholic Church were barred from even the smallest formal role in the ministry in an edict from Pope Paul in 1972. "I sent him a sympathy card," said Mrs. Heide.

NOW, with its 400 chapters around the nation (and a few overseas) is looking in several directions for '73. Ms. Heide said that all told there are about 30 crash programs underway at local and national levels.

First off, scheduled in New York in early May, is an international conference of feminist groups. Mrs. Heide believes it will be the first such session.

IN THE year ahead, women will push for child care legislation — President Nixon vetoed a child care development bill a year ago, calling it fiscally irresponsible, administratively unworkable.

The NOW president sees a need also for further advances in education to get rid of "sexism" and provide education with stress on programs for the individual.

And the organization will push for more women in broadcasting, pressuring the Federal Communications Commission to withhold licenses if stations practice sex discrimination in hiring.

To the question of whether women's activist groups had created a backlash, Mrs. Heide said, "A backlash was predictable. But I like to think of a frontlash. We've had the status quo for centuries.

Women, with 52.5 per cent of the nation's voting strength, reaped the rewards of persistence in the campaign by being named top advisers to the candidates, having their problems considered as important issues and putting more women candidates in the field than ever before. More women than ever before were delegates to both national conventions.

There were three women on minor presidential party tickets but the results of their efforts were obscured by President Nixon's landslide.

Women fared better in the races for House of Representatives. Fourteen were elected or reelected, three of them blacks.

PARENT AND CHILD

Uproar Looms Over School Counseling

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Most public schools and a few private ones are recommending special psychiatric counseling for some students. A noted school psychologist, who must remain anonymous because of his position, declares that parents should exercise their right, if they wish, to refuse any and all such help. He recommends further that parents should refuse all types of help provided by public authorities if they don't agree with the diagnosis or don't wish to use that particular "cure."

Frequently, school officials will, on the basis of a superficial diagnosis, recommend some special program for a child they think is "difficlt." For example, schools have recommended that certain youngsetrs from Spanish speaking homes be assigned to special classes for retarded children on the basis of results on an English-language test.

For many children, this could prove disastrous. Due to the type of schooling in most special-education programs, the normally intelligent, but possibly functionally illiterate child, becomes a victim and not a product of his education. Too often, the child who is tracked or selected for such a program, regardless of lip service to the contrary by school authorities, is stuck in it for the remainder of his schooling years.

WHAT MANY parents do not realize is that they have the right to refuse to have their children placed in such a program. This is particularly true for parents whose native language is not English. Since the school authorities send home reports in English, hold school conferences in English, and many appear to the parents to know what's "best," parents may unknowingly agree to that which is not progressive for their children.

Some communities are getting around this problem by providing translators at every school conference. And some school systems hire well-educated, bilingual community members to make home visits and talk over school problems with parents. Unfortunately, they seldom explain to parents that they have the option to refuse the recommended help.

It's not just the non-English-speaking children who are ill-served by some achievement and intelligence tests. The so-called IQ tests purport to tell a school about the ability of a specific child to learn. But even the designers of the tests know that the tests do no such thing. The fact that there is some correlation between scores on IQ tests and "success" in school is not due so much to native learning ability as to the fact that school programs are based often on those few skills that IQ tests do measure.

Children who misbehave in school are also subject to a battery of tests. School authorities have even been known to tell parents that their children could not stay in school unless they first underwent certain tests and secondly accepted the psychiatric counseling and whatever else was perscribed.

BUT THE SCHOOL psychologist quoted in the opening of the column, who works with deviant youngsters in a large inner-city high school, insists adamantly that parents have the right to refuse to have their children counseled by him — or by any other psychologist or psychiatrist.

A Class In Beginning Chinese Cooking Is Set

Nancy Lee Jue is offering a beginners' series of five Chinese cooking lessons beginning Jan. 10 at the Marin Jewish Community Center in San Rafael. Sessions will begin at 10 a.m.

Because of the strange ingredients and utensils and unusual preparations, Chinese cookery, more than any other, demands demonstrations, according to Nancy Lee Jue.

Over the five-week period she will give a working familiarity with Chinese cooking that she learned at her mother's side and over 25 years of cooking and teaching.

Courses in flower arranging, folk dancing, babysitting and exercising are also offered at the center. All are five or six-week courses and begin in January.

Pierre Bitterer will teach instant gourmet cooking Thursdays at 10:30 a.m.

Flower arranging, taught by Mickey Collins, will meet Tuesdays at 10 a.m. She will demonstrate how to assemble party centerpieces, arrangements of pods, seeds, dried flowers, greens and fresh flowers.

Yvonne Rich will teach Israeli dances Wednesdays at 8 p.m. Sylvia Boorstein will combine music, movement and yoga in an exercise class Fridays.

The babysitter training class has two purposes. Teen-aged boys and girls will be trained in first aid, educational activities and basic concepts of child psychology to improve babysitting techniques. Babysitters who have completed the course will be put on a list for parents who need sitters.

Mail Early

Formal invitations to a large wedding and reception are usually mailed three to four weeks in advance.

Easy Desserts With Gelatin

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make your own natural fruit-flavored gelatin desserts as easily as you prepare a box of commercial fruit-flavored gelatin. No presoftening of unflavored gelatin is needed if you first mix it well with an equal measure of sugar, or more to taste.

Heat canned or fresh fruit juice to boiling — 2 cups for each envelope, or tablespoon, of gelatin — and pour all at once over dry ingredients. Stir until crystals dissolve. Pour into mold and chill until set.

Foil Shouldn't Block Air Flow

If you use aluminum foil in the oven, make sure it is not blocking circulation from vents or the oven will lose heat. Foil directly under a pan will divert heat from the pan.

Instead, place a slightly larger pan or piece of foil on the next lower rack to catch spillovers, suggests the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association.

Ideas On Gifts For Bicyclists

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gift suggestions for boys and girls and men and women with bicycles:

A light generator set with extra large tail light. A six volt generator operates the lights. Easy to install and fits all bicycle handle bars.

Round or oblong rearview mirror.

A new bicycle pump. A speedometer, an odometer. A touring bag that hitches to the saddle.

A water bottle to clamp on frame.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

School Rules Are Not Helpful In Learning How To Grow Up

HELEN AND SUE:

I have a good, steady girlfriend. When we meet in the hall at school we think it's okay to hold hands, but our principal has a rule that says there can be no physical contact between boys and girls. Heck, I wouldn't kiss her madly or anything, but what's wrong with walking down the hall hand-in-hand? Yet the teachers watch us like hawks.

They keep preaching "maturity" at high school and how we should act grown up. Well, adults show these little signs of affection and everyone thinks it's great that they care. Wjhy not us? — SLAPPED DOWN FOR HOLDING HANDS

SDFHH:

Good point! Why not make it to your principal? Like with a letter to the editor of your school paper? If the principal and teachers still thumbs-down hand-holding, then ask them nicely to knock off the "grown-up" jargon. — SUE

DEAR SLAPPED DOWN:

Principals who waste time enforcing silly rules subtract valuable time from the learning process. They end up with resentful students and teachers-turned-hall monitors (often against their wills).

I suspect hand-holding isn't the big issue here, but rather the general "Big Brother is watching you" attitude.

Good luck with your campaign. —HELEN

DEAR RAP:

This is a different kind of question. I have a dog that I want mated to the male dog of a good-looking man friend. No problem —he gets one of the pups. But we're both kind of shy — and kind of attracted to each other, though we haven't dated yet.

It's going to be very embarrassing, taking my dog over to get her married. Could you give me some kind of bright little offhand quip to say as we (the guy and I) meet at the door? — NEW WORKING GIRL

DEAR GIRL:

How about: "Well, here's my dog to meet her maker."? — HELEN

DEAR N.W.G.:

Why be embarrassed? Just hope the guy will take you out for dinner during the doggie honeymoon. — SUE

HELEN AND SUE:

Here's one way of teaching these chicks that women's liberation has its drawbacks.

My girl figures she can do anything a man can do, and to prove it she's operating a fork lift in a manufacturing plant. She doesn't look like the truck-driver type.

The other night I asked her over to meet my folks, but I told them only that I was bringing a fork lift operator from the plant. Then I sat back and guffawed at the startled looks on my parents' faces.

Lemme tell you, even the most liberated girl doesn't want to be introduced as "My friend, the truck driver." She spent the whole evening showing us all how feminine she was. — CHUCK THE TRUCK DRIVER'S FRIEND

DEAR CHUCK:

We'll bet she spent the next week making you repentant for practical jokes. Right? — HELEN AND SUE

The Graceful Look

Some fashion observers are using the word "grace" to describe spring looks being served up by American designers. The clothes are the ultimate in romantic and feminine looks.

Invite Clergy

If there is to be a wedding reception, even just for the immediate families and close friends, the clergyman (and his wife, if applicable) should always receive an invitation.

What To Wear

For a semiformal-day-time wedding the bride wears a white or pale pastel floor-length or shorter gown with an elbow-length or shorter veil.

It's Party Time In Marin During Yuletide Holidays

By MOLLY MARIN

The next few days are party time in Southern Marin.

Old fashioned decorations will deck the Belvedere Lagoon home of Mrs. Cort Majors when she and her sister, Mrs. John Stanford Brown of Belvedere, entertain 70 friends on Thursday evening, Dec. 21. Assisting Mrs. Brown will be her granddaughter, Jennifer Stice, a University of California student.

Mrs. Majors has just returned from a three month tour of the East.

She saw Broadway productions of "Peppin," "Godspell," and particularly enjoyed seeing Ruby Keeler perform in "No, No, Nanette." and then visiting with her old friend.

Next she went to Washington, D. C. and toured the White House.

Mrs. Majors plans to visit another daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Voorheis of LaJolla after Christmas.

ONE HUNDRED friends and family members will gather at an afternoon open house on Saturday at the Belvedere residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Westberg. The family moved from Mill Valley to the old Belvedere home in August.

A TRADITIONAL "Christmas Eve Chowder and Marching Society" party will be held at the Belvedere home of Mr. and Mrs. William Main. The 24 guests will be the friends of their sons, Bill and Rob, and their friends' parents.

Guests will gather after religious services for egg-nog, followed by chowder and "Buche de Noel," a chocolate Yule log cake.

Attending with their children will be Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Elbert, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Moody, Mrs. David Mushet and Mrs. Eugene Rauscher.

MR. AND Mrs. Robert Marshall, who moved to Belvedere last year when their ranch home became part of Point Reyes National Seashore, plan a cocktail party tonight.

Mrs. Marshall has invited 50 friends and relatives to enjoy soup and sandwiches from her buffet with houseguests Col. and Mrs. Edward Serrem of Lakewood, Wash., her parents, and Lt. and Mrs. John Reitz, her brother and sister-in-law.

A COCKTAIL party for a few neighbors will be held at the Tiburon home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rutkowski tomorrow evening.

A DINNER for 16 relatives and neighbors will celebrate the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coyne of Kennilworth, Ill., at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison of Belvedere tomorrow. They will be Christmas visitors.

Class Offered On Nutrition And Health

The classes are scheduled weekly for four sessions to help parents and day care home operators and instructors learn the nutritional needs of children, according to Frances Dahl, nutrionist, who will be the instructor. She is nutritionist with the Marin Department of Health Services.

Classes will be held in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium in San Rafael.

Explains It

There's no need for a bride to panic about something going wrong at her wedding. The clergyman will explain what everyone must do during the ceremony at the wedding rehearsal which should be held before rather than after the traditional dinner.

Ring Moved

Before the wedding, preferably that morning, the bride places her engagement ring on her right hand, leaving the third finger on her left hand bare for the wedding ceremony. Of course it is proper for her to slip the engagement ring over the wedding ring on her left hand before the reception.

Sealing Cracks Cuts Fuel Cost

Sealing off cracks and openings around doors and windows can save you from 10 to 30 per cent of your heating costs, advises the American Gas Association.

It also suggests closing draperies at night to keep heat in and keeping the furnace thermostat no higher than 72 degrees for maximum heat without exceptional cost.

In Static Society, No Room At The Inn

The woes of the world, we are told, result in large part from "growthmania" (a word coined by Herman E. Daly, associate professor of economics at Louisiana State University).

The only answer to increasing crowding and increasing pollution, we are told by planners, demographers, sociologists and environmentalists, is a stationary state, with zero population growth.

To achieve this, they propose an assortment of controls. Among them is limitation on population in any given locality by planning. If each county, for instance, would place a limit on the number of households it would permit (as is proposed in Marin County), it could prevent growth by in-migration.

But that would not be enough. The control might still be ruptured by large families. And so the birth control advocates urge that somehow limitations be imposed on family size. One of their most ingenious suggestions is that of Kenneth Boulding, an economist, to require licenses for having children — as we have now for owning dogs or driving automobiles. Each couple would be licensed at marriage to have two children — no more.

SUPPOSE THE GOALS of these advocates of the stationary state were realized. Growth was halted by planning. Only enough births were licensed to replace those who died. Theoretically, zero population growth would be achieved — and with it, the stationary state.

But there are always some who will not abide by the rules.

Despite the most earnest enforcement efforts, there would be some who refused to fit the plan. Some married couples would have illegal children; so would some unmarried couples.

But these could not be absorbed by the pre-planned communities. There would be no homes for them, for the planners would permit only enough homes for the pre-ordained population.

So what would we have?

WE WOULD HAVE a strange, nomadic population outside of the controls —a sad reminder of the "hippy communes" of today. It would not be by choice of the members of these nomadic tribes, however. They simply would have no place to go.

They would be, permanently, like many people of the Roman Empire were temporarily nearly 2,000 years ago, when the Emperor Augustus ordered that all families go to designated cities to pay their taxes.

Among those ordered to go to Bethlehem to be taxed were a man named Joseph and his pregnant wife, Mary, from Nazareth.

They were no different from thousands of others who made the trip, except that while in Bethlehem, Mary gave birth to a son, and, as related in Luke 2:7:

"And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn."

JOSEPH HAD a home in Nazareth to which, after paying his taxes, he could return with his wife and their new-born son, whom he named Jesus.

The nomads created by "zero population growth" planning would have none. There would be no room for them in the inn — ever.

Should State Help Train For Non-Existent Jobs?

By EARL G. WATERS

In his discussion with the University of California Board of Regents over costs of higher education, State Finance Director Verne Orr pointed to a disturbing tendency on the part of those in charge of running the university.

"In auditing and budgeting," Orr said, "it sometimes seems we do not have a single university, but nine autonomous campuses competing with each other for the largest share of available dollars with no regard for duplication or the welfare of the whole."

The same thing might apply to the 19 state colleges.

The thought provokes the question of what should be the main objective of higher public education? Obviously one of the principal goals should be to equip the young for productive endeavors.

Is this being done?

WITH EDUCATIONAL costs skyrocketing and tax sources being strained, perhaps it is time for some serious review of the college and university programs.

One question which deserves study is the validity of open enrollments in fields of study which lead to occupations already overcrowded.

Should there be a correlation between courses offered and the employment market?

There will be those who immediately challenge such a suggestion. Who, they will ask, is to play God with the desires and ambitions of individuals? If someone wants to become an engineer, is it proper to bar him by establishing restrictions upon enrollment in courses leading to that fulfillment?

But there is another side to that coin.

THERE IS AT PRESENT an oversupply of teachers in this state. There is also a declining enrollment, so the overabundance will become more so. Yet, we keep on training teachers without limit at all of the state-supported schools.

Is it fair to the taxpayers to ask them to pay for the training of people for jobs that don't exist? Is it fair to the students to encourage them in taking educational programs for which there are no jobs?

This same oversupply exists in other fields.

The college people will tell you the labor markets are unstable. They fluctuate. Limiting courses because of transitory oversupplies would result in disrupting shortages.

Those arguments don't seem valid. Certainly such things are predictable. Would it not be better to direct students into programs with brighter prospects?

THE IDEA of restricted enrollments is not new. The fact is it exists of necessity in fields where there are shortages. The medical schools have always limited enrollments.

As for depriving a student with a burning desire to achieve in his chosen field, limited enrollments won't stop that fellow. He'll get there one way or another. Many an aspiring medical doctor has overcome that barrier.

Whether limiting enrollments in crowded fields would reduce the overall costs of higher public education, the responsibility of those managing the schools seems clear. They should make the most of the educational dollar and not waste it training people for jobs that don't exist.

"What do you mean, it's obsolete? I just put it together."

The first day of winter is a reminder that it's later than you think sooner than you thought.

It's time for all you happily married men to stop arguing with your wives and start complaining about the weather.

This is the time of year when used-car salesmen are as honest as the day is long.

Campaign Contribitions Fully Reported

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Peterzell did not direct his questions regarding my campaign spending report to my treasurer, Mrs. Miriam Beall of San Anselmo, or to me personally.

My statement included the names of every contributor-even those who gave $1 to my recent campaign for supervisor. These individual contributions added up to the $3,431 figure which he said was "missing". In addition, Mr. Peterzell had received these figures as the campaign progressed. All these many names were listed in my report with pride, as those names represented the essence of my campaign . . .

'Zoning By Loophole' In Marin County Areas

Few people know that our neighborhood is zoned for private country clubs as well as single family residences, therefore making it legal to say you are subdividing land for one acre residences when you really intend to rip out thirty-five large trees and two hillsides, fill, grade and pave for three tennis courts and a 35-car parking lot, and dump the run-off directly onto an already flood-tormented neighborhood. It is legal for the planning department to notify adjacent residents that the land is to be used for homes, even when their maps show the name of a tennis club. In fact, notices are not actually required, as no variance is involved. It is entirely legal for the Planning Department to tell questioners that the land will indeed be used for homes and that no courts are planned. It is legal for the planners to approve the land for home use, when they know a tennis club is proposed.

It is legal, but it is also frightening. Law by loophole is threatening at any level. As environmental concerns increase and land use agencies multiply in number and complexity, developers must become even more skillful at working the loopholes. If Marin County is serious about protecting its superb environment, loopholes must be closed. Citizens must be able to get at the truth easily. Perhaps someone at Civic Center should be designated to help inexperienced protesters through the land agency maze.

Many Fail To Report Abuse Of Animals

The article on the front page of the Independent Dec. 16 with a picture of a dog being fed by an employee of the Sausalito Post Office was not only beautifully written by Jay Goodwin, but made me aware, as I'm sure others, why is this abuse to animals allowed to go on? The two five-year-old dogs were half starved and thrown out of a car on Bridgeway.

If everyone made it a point to observe and report animal abuse to the humane societies, and made sure these societies investigated, maybe the human societies wouldn't have the rather "careless" reputation they have. Too many people take the attitude, "It's not my concern," and are too cowardly, afraid they might be involved. So the poor helpless animals suffer unnecessarily.

Birthright Official Describes Policies

Communications are so important and we welcome the chance to make clear our position at Birthright in response to the letter from Barbara George of Planned Parenthood.

Since we are a pro-life group we naturally think and act in a manner that will convince our clients of the value of two human lives, theirs and their baby's.

There are many difficulties that can occur in a pregnancy and our volunteers are committed to the ideal that problems can be solved in a less violent way than killing a human life in utero.

Our philosophy concerning an unwanted child is that every child conceived has a right to life, and given the opportunity to live will be wanted by himself if by no one else.

We thank Planned Parenthood for the referrals, assuring them that we are fully aware of the nature and scope of their services.

Businessmen Not All For Shopping Center

Pat Parry's article, "Corte Madera Maintains Center Spirit" (Dec. 1) sounds more like an advertisement for the firm of Bartels, Norville and Hahn or, possibly, it's affiliate, Sedway and Cooke. . . . . .It is interesting to note that Mr. Bartels is getting the "feeling" from public meetings that there is little opposition. With an approximate 90 per cent attendance record at those meetings, I am forced to conclude that we are either attending different meetings or Bartels has lost the faculty for hearing or his capacity for sorting out the difference between truth, fiction and/or fantasy.

It goes on to cite the C of C's "enthusiastic endorsement" of the redevelopment agency and the proposed new shopping center. It fails to make mention of a recent private canvass of in excess of 90 per cent of the local businesses where 82 per cent of the owners/managers indicated opposition to the proposed shopping center.

The chamber's president is then quoted (courtesy of Town Hall) concerning "a sprinkling" of people who don't understand the immense advantageous impact of the agency and the new center. Quite the contrary, Mrs. Valk, "parrots" do not understand, informed, intelligent people do. There are one heck of a lot more of them in this town than the council, the expensive consultants or the vested interests realize.

Mrs. Valk also (again, courtesy of Town Hall) cites the fantastic revenues that will be forthcoming from the proposed center. It is rather disheartening to consider that the chamber, which is supposed to represent the business establishment, doesn't approach it's public pronouncements in a more businesslike manner. In order to produce the kinds of revenues being quoted, Hahn's center has to produce additional, equivalent sales that approximate one third of the total taxable sales for the entire County of Marin for last year. . .

New Resurgence Of Racism Worries Kennedy, Other Leaders

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy sent a shock wave through the ranks of the divided Democrats when he came out with praise for President Nixon and the pledge of full cooperation in the Congress. Did this mean that the leader whom many of the faithful see as the champ in 1976 had capitulated in the face of the landslide with only his own state of Massachusetts failing to join the parade?

At the Pearson Foundation awards lunch, Averell Harriman interpreted it as meaning that Kennedy was merely setting up the target to knock it down. But it is more than that.

Kennedy sees as surely as perhaps anyone in his party the perilous dilemma Democrats face. He understands that the public doesn't relish the idea of the opposition coming out fighting at the opening bell when the new Congress convenes. Mere obstructionism is not going to win any prizes.

THE SICKNESS, as Kennedy sees it, goes much deeper than the tactics of Congress vs. the President; deeper than Robert Strauss vs. Jean Westwood. It can be put in one word: racism.

The most disturbing aspect of the campaign and the aftermath was the way in which racism won respectability of a sort. At a wide level, integration of the races had begun to be accepted. Now the current has been reversed and the evidence comes from a variety of sources.

Leonard Woodcock, head of the United Auto Workers, was dismayed to find members who openly expressed their racial antagonism. They may have been submerged George Wallaceites at the beginning of the 1968 campaign when the union went to work to bring them back into the Democratic fold. They certainly contributed to Wallace's 50 per cent-plus majority in the Michigan primary this year. Woodcock's impression was that they had moved beyond this to a declared hostility toward any easing of the racial barriers.

That same racism, as Kennedy observed it, occurred at the levels of Little League football coaches and ward and precinct workers. They seemed to be saying, "No more, we've had enough."

PUBLIC CONVEYANCES were integrated, so were lunch counters, theaters and other places of normal public access. But none of this touched the fundamental grievance of blacks locked in the core cities and ringed around by white suburbs. With a radical approach in housing and land use, that lock must be broken if the Democratic party is to have a chance of pulling itself together; or it should be added in a far more serious vein if we are to be one nation indivisible.

The odds against this happening are considerable. The issue of busing to integrate the schools used so insidiously by the Nixon strategists scared the life out of many liberal Democrats. In Michigan, Rep. James G. O'Hara, once rated liberal on civil rights, told all and sundry at every rally that he was against busing. He barely squeaked through.

A LOOK at the black side of the dilemma is equally dismaying. Increasingly, the militants are also separatists. They want no truck with Whitey; they intend to go their own separate way, and this can mean a separate black presidential ticket in 1976.

Recent all-black movies are loaded with antiwhite racism. Their theme is that Whitey may be vicious but we can be twice as vicious and overcome him. Pauline Kael, the discerning movie critic of the New Yorker, writes of how M-G-M and Warner Brothers are exploiting this type of film to save the downtown theaters and their own bacon. Super Fly with a black hero who is a cocaine seller and a pimp puts down two black civil rights workers by telling them he will support them only if they buy guns to shoot Whitey. This scene, according to Miss Kael, drew cheers when she saw the film. The low-budget picture, about a half million, has already grossed $12 million.

Here is peril, imminent peril, not for some remote time but for the day after tomorrow. Crime in the streets is another code expression for racism. It is being generated by both sides of what is rapidly becoming a great divide.

No Chance For Tidy Frontier In Any Vietnam Settlement

No matter what happens now in the form of an agreement for ending the Vietnam war (if there is one), the result will not be like Germany or Korea.

In both of those cases the settlement was at least geographically tidy. There are clear, elaborately marked and massively armed frontiers which separate the two Germanies and the two Koreas. Nothing seems likely to change those frontiers for a long time ahead. The longer they last, the more fixed they seem to become.

It was always an American hope that a similar geographic tidiness could be had in Vietnam. That sort of thing was certainly in Lyndon Johnson's mind when he used to talk about "nailing the coonskin to the door." And that sort of thing is something President Thieu of South Vietnam still yearns to have. But his chances are negligible.

THE MOST President Thieu can possibly hope for now is that he and his armed forces will be in reasonably firm control of the cities and of the highway and rail lines connecting the cities after the American forces pull out.

But in the countryside between the cities, and all along the road and rail lines, there still will be units of the Viet Cong tilling the fields by day, but ready on call to toss a grenade or lay an ambush at night.

And will there also be substantial units of the regular army of North Vietnam holding important mountain areas in which will be ample supplies of all the things that guerrilla armies need to keep up their activities indefinitely?

Henry Kissinger won a lot from Le Duc Tho in his long negotiations. There is not going to be any coalition government which the Communists might be able to control in short order. And President Thieu will have a veto in the new council to be set up to supervise an election.

But, so far as we know at this writing, Mr. Kissinger could not get the one last thing President Thieu needs to gain security. Mr. Kissinger could not get agreement by Hanoi to pull all of its regular troops out of the South and bring them back above the old so-called demilitarized zone (DMZ.)

If all the North Vietnamese troops were to go home and if the DMZ were to be respected, then the result would be something like the tidy geographic division which exists in Germany and Korea. But one cannot expect to gain at the peace table something which the armed forces were unable to gain on the battlefield.

IT IS ONLY a military fact of today that Hanoi has deployed an army of 14 divisions into South Vietnam and that it has been able to stay there in spite of everything which the Saigon army, backed by air and sea forces of the United States, could do to drive it out.

Obviously, Hanoi will not want to keep the bulk of its regular forces south of the DMZ after a formal peace is signed, if it is. But it would not take much of those 14 divisions to hang on to the mountain enclaves which are now firmly in their control.

The result is bound to be that "leopard skin" type of condition which President Thieu has so often warned against.

And so long as there are the spots of North Vietnam bases there will be an opportunity for linking those spots together into ever bigger blotches of Viet Cong control.

BOTH IN KOREA and in Germany the dividing line between the two parts was fixed by the movements of great armies. Where the armies came to rest the lines were drawn.

But there has never been a single battle line in Vietnam. The armies have been mixed up. There hasn't been a war like this since the French and Indian wars on the American frontier. And the fighting is tapering off now in this inconclusive and geographically mixed-up condition.

In other words, don't be surprised by anything that happens in Vietnam.

We have no recent precedent. The results will certainly not be like those in Germany or Korea. It is highly unlikely that all fighting will cease even if there is a formal cease-fire. And political stability may be a decade away. Besides, no one can possibly foresee what will be the eventual political pattern.

Kennedy sees as surely as perhaps anyone in his party the perilous dilemma Democrats face. He understands that the public doesn't relish the idea of the opposition coming out fighting at the opening bell when the new Congress convenes. Mere obstructionism is not going to win any prizes.

THE SICKNESS, as Kennedy sees it, goes much deeper than the tactics of Congress vs. the President; deeper than Robert Strauss vs. Jean Westwood. It can be put in one word: racism.

The most disturbing aspect of the campaign and the aftermath was the way in which racism won respectability of a sort. At a wide level, integration of the races had begun to be accepted. Now the current has been reversed and the evidence comes from a variety of sources.

Leonard Woodcock, head of the United Auto Workers, was dismayed to find members who openly expressed their racial antagonism. They may have been submerged George Wallaceites at the beginning of the 1968 campaign when the union went to work to bring them back into the Democratic fold. They certainly contributed to Wallace's 50 per cent-plus majority in the Michigan primary this year. Woodcock's impression was that they had moved beyond this to a declared hostility toward any easing of the racial barriers.

That same racism, as Kennedy observed it, occurred at the levels of Little League football coaches and ward and precinct workers. They seemed to be saying, "No more, we've had enough."

PUBLIC CONVEYANCES were integrated, so were lunch counters, theaters and other places of normal public access. But none of this touched the fundamental grievance of blacks locked in the core cities and ringed around by white suburbs. With a radical approach in housing and land use, that lock must be broken if the Democratic party is to have a chance of pulling itself together; or it should be added in a far more serious vein if we are to be one nation indivisible.

The odds against this happening are considerable. The issue of busing to integrate the schools used so insidiously by the Nixon strategists scared the life out of many liberal Democrats. In Michigan, Rep. James G. O'Hara, once rated liberal on civil rights, told all and sundry at every rally that he was against busing. He barely squeaked through.

A LOOK at the black side of the dilemma is equally dismaying. Increasingly, the militants are also separatists. They want no truck with Whitey; they intend to go their own separate way, and this can mean a separate black presidential ticket in 1976.

Recent all-black movies are loaded with antiwhite racism. Their theme is that Whitey may be vicious but we can be twice as vicious and overcome him. Pauline Kael, the discerning movie critic of the New Yorker, writes of how M-G-M and Warner Brothers are exploiting this type of film to save the downtown theaters and their own bacon. Super Fly with a black hero who is a cocaine seller and a pimp puts down two black civil rights workers by telling them he will support them only if they buy guns to shoot Whitey. This scene, according to Miss Kael, drew cheers when she saw the film. The low-budget picture, about a half million, has already grossed $12 million.

Here is peril, imminent peril, not for some remote time but for the day after tomorrow. Crime in the streets is another code expression for racism. It is being generated by both sides of what is rapidly becoming a great divide.

No Chance For Tidy Frontier In Any Vietnam Settlement

No matter what happens now in the form of an agreement for ending the Vietnam war (if there is one), the result will not be like Germany or Korea.

In both of those cases the settlement was at least geographically tidy. There are clear, elaborately marked and massively armed frontiers which separate the two Germanies and the two Koreas. Nothing seems likely to change those frontiers for a long time ahead. The longer they last, the more fixed they seem to become.

It was always an American hope that a similar geographic tidiness could be had in Vietnam. That sort of thing was certainly in Lyndon Johnson's mind when he used to talk about "nailing the coonskin to the door." And that sort of thing is something President Thieu of South Vietnam still yearns to have. But his chances are negligible.

THE MOST President Thieu can possibly hope for now is that he and his armed forces will be in reasonably firm control of the cities and of the highway and rail lines connecting the cities after the American forces pull out.

But in the countryside between the cities, and all along the road and rail lines, there still will be units of the Viet Cong tilling the fields by day, but ready on call to toss a grenade or lay an ambush at night.

And will there also be substantial units of the regular army of North Vietnam holding important mountain areas in which will be ample supplies of all the things that guerrilla armies need to keep up their activities indefinitely?

Henry Kissinger won a lot from Le Duc Tho in his long negotiations. There is not going to be any coalition government which the Communists might be able to control in short order. And President Thieu will have a veto in the new council to be set up to supervise an election.

But, so far as we know at this writing, Mr. Kissinger could not get the one last thing President Thieu needs to gain security. Mr. Kissinger could not get agreement by Hanoi to pull all of its regular troops out of the South and bring them back above the old so-called demilitarized zone (DMZ.)

If all the North Vietnamese troops were to go home and if the DMZ were to be respected, then the result would be something like the tidy geographic division which exists in Germany and Korea. But one cannot expect to gain at the peace table something which the armed forces were unable to gain on the battlefield.

IT IS ONLY a military fact of today that Hanoi has deployed an army of 14 divisions into South Vietnam and that it has been able to stay there in spite of everything which the Saigon army, backed by air and sea forces of the United States, could do to drive it out.

Obviously, Hanoi will not want to keep the bulk of its regular forces south of the DMZ after a formal peace is signed, if it is. But it would not take much of those 14 divisions to hang on to the mountain enclaves which are now firmly in their control.

The result is bound to be that "leopard skin" type of condition which President Thieu has so often warned against.

And so long as there are the spots of North Vietnam bases there will be an opportunity for linking those spots together into ever bigger blotches of Viet Cong control.

BOTH IN KOREA and in Germany the dividing line between the two parts was fixed by the movements of great armies. Where the armies came to rest the lines were drawn.

But there has never been a single battle line in Vietnam. The armies have been mixed up. There hasn't been a war like this since the French and Indian wars on the American frontier. And the fighting is tapering off now in this inconclusive and geographically mixed-up condition.

In other words, don't be surprised by anything that happens in Vietnam.

We have no recent precedent. The results will certainly not be like those in Germany or Korea. It is highly unlikely that all fighting will cease even if there is a formal cease-fire. And political stability may be a decade away. Besides, no one can possibly foresee what will be the eventual political pattern.

It's All Paris' Fault That Peace Talks Get Nowhere

WASHINGTON — Everyone has his own theory as to why the Paris peace talks bogged down so badly. My theory is they failed because they were held in Paris.

If anyone is to blame for the disastrous course the peace negotiations have taken, it's the French. When France invited all parties to Paris to work out a settlement of the war in Indochina, she unknowingly set the stage for one of the longest stalemates in history.

THIS IS WHAT happened: As soon as the French made their offer, both sides accepted with alacrity. Is there a peace negotiator alive who wouldn't want to work out a just and honorable end to a war, any war, in Paris?

Where else are there so many diversions when the talks get tough and the going is hard? Where else can you invite the enemy to your villa for dinner and then go to his chateau for lunch the next day? Waht other city offers three-star restaurants to discuss the finer points of a treaty, and plus hotel suites to button down the conditions for a cease-fire?

The French in their ignorance have provided the most luxurious surroundings for the representatives of North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Viet Cong and the United States.

Is it any wonder that although everyone has been struggling for five years, we're still no closer to an agreement than we were at the beginning?

If you were from Hanoi or Saigon, would you be in a hurry to work out a settlement, when there are so many things in Paris to take your mind off the war? While American diplomats complain about the intransigence of the other side, there isn't one of them who isn't secretly thrilled to spend two or three weeks haggling at the peace table and dining at the Rothschilds'.

THE UGLY TRUTH of the matter is that if we ever hope to reach any sort of peace in Indochina, we have to move the talks out of Paris and hold them either in the Arctic Circle or the Sahara Desert.

We must make the scene of the negotiations as primitive and as uncomfortable as possible. The negotiators should be exposed to extreme heat, with despicable food, bug-ridden accommodations, and the threat of frostbite or malaria hanging over them every day.

Instead of long, black limousines to take them to and from the conference, they should be supplied with dog sleds or camels, and their own camps should be 50 miles from the site of the talks.

Instead of meeting once a week in the ballroom of the Majestic Hotel, they should be required to sit in an igloo or a tent seven days a week, 16 hours a day, exposed to each other's body odors.

No more comfortable walks in the garden in the Paris suburbs for Le Duc Tho and Henry Kissinger. Let them sit in the middle of a sandstorm and work out their differences. Or, if they prefer, let them squat over a hole in the ice in the Arctic and talk while they're fishing for their supper.

IT IS TIME world pressure is put on the French to kick the peace talks out of Paris. We can thank them for their hospitality and their good intentions, but now it is obvious to everyone that ever since the talks began in the French capital neither side has had any sense of urgency to reach a final agreement.

The North and South Vietnamese, the Viet Cong and the American delegations may protest at being so unceremoniously booted out, but it is now clear they'll never see a light at the end of the tunnel as long as they have so many lights in Paree.

Contract For 101 Overpass Is Awarded

The state has awarded for $886,713 contract for construction of a new four-lane overpass for Highway 101 at East Washington Street, Petaluma.

Wilmac Constructors Inc. of Sacramento received the contract and was the lowest of seven bidders when bids were opened Nov. 22.

The new structure will replace the present two lane bridge. The lanes will be separated by a 12-foot median strip and include a five foot walkway on the southside. Plans also call for a barrier railing to prevent pedestrians from dropping objects onto the freeway.

The contractor has 290 working days to finish the project.

San Anselman Admits Burglary

A 26-year-old San Anselmo man had admitted a burglary charge on condition he receives no more than six months in jail.

Edward Calvin Hunt pleaded guilty after a sentencing agreement was arranged between Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court, Hunt's attorney and the district attorney.

Hunt was arrested Oct. 17 after the Western Sport Shop in San Rafael reported he sold two guns at the store. The weapons were stolen from a San Anselmo residence Oct. 6, police said.

Pair To Prison In Fraud Case

MODESTO (UPI) — Former Justice Court Judge Lowell Jensen, 46, of Newman, and his business partner Robert Griffiths, 46, were sentenced to prison Tuesday by Alpine County Superior Court Judge Hiliary Cook.

The two men previously pleaded guilty to 12 counts including defrauding investors in their investment service company, misrepresenting securities and violating state cease and desist orders.

The pair was indicted by the county grand jury after a state audit revealed their investment service company had taken in $2.2 million from 350 investors but only had $400,000 in assets.

Two Guilty In Cooper Fraud Case

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Two men were found guilty by a federal court jury Wednesday of defrauding a former Newsweek magazine writer of $30,000 for a fake interview with the legendary skyjacker, D.B. Cooper.

William "Jack" Lewis, 33, ad Donald S. Murphy, 49, both of the Bremerton, Wash., area where they have engaged in real estate development, were found guilty on all three counts of fraud and conspiracy to defraud.

They claimed the writer, Karl P. Fleming, knew he was buying an interview from a man impersonating Cooper, who is wanted for the 1971 Thanksgiving eve hijacking of a Northwest Airlines jet and extorting $200,000 in marked currency.

Lewis was accused of setting up an interview for Fleming with Murphy impersonating the skyjacker. Testimony showed that Murphy obtained $9,000 of the $30,000 Fleming paid for the interview. Murphy said Lewis deducted $3,000 for expenses and split the rest with his father, William J. "Bill" Lewis. Lewis denied his father had obtained any of the money.

The jury received the case Tuesday evening but was unable to reach a verdict immediately and was sent home by Judge Walter Mc Govern. The nine men and three women returned their verdict about two hours after resuming deliberations.

Fleming said he originally sought the story for Newsweek, of which he was a contributing editor, but later obtained it for the new Los Angeles weekly, La, of which he became editor.

Australia Is Now Under Labor Rule

CANBERRA (UPI) —Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and members of the first Labor government in 23 years were sworn into office Tuesday by Governor-General Sir Paul Hasluck.

The 27 new ministers actually constituted Whitlam's second cabinet. He was sworn in first on Dec. 5 as head of a two-member interim cabinet which ran the country until final vote counts were in.

He resigned today and was sworn in again as prime minister with Lance Barnard as his deputy.

Boy, 6, Saved In Dog Attack

SAN JOSE (UPI) — A 6-year-old-boy was savagely attacked by a dog and would have been killed if a neighbor had not rescued him, police reported yesterday.

Officers said the child, Warren Laughlin, apparently wandered into a back yard where he was attacked by a powerful pit bull terrier.

Mrs. Dennis O'Neil, next door, heard screams. She and her husband rushed out and O'Neil battled the animal while his wife grabbed the youngster and rushed him to a hospital.

The boy was reported recovering from serious bites on his head, arms and body.

Plane Lagoon Will Be Filled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Airport Commission approved a plan Tuesday to fill in an unused seaplane lagoon at San Francisco International Airport.

The lagoon once was used by Coast Guard seaplanes, since replaced by land based search and rescue planes and helicopters.

The commission voted to spend $358,000 on preparation of construction plans. The lagoon covers a 160-acre site ad its filling is part of an airport expansion program.

Current Cocktail Patter: The Post's Social Snub

By RICHARD L. STROUT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Under headline "White House Bans Post from Parties" the society page of the Washington Post charges that it is being penalized for the paper's Watergate coverage by being excluded from three social events given by President and Mrs. Nixon.

Society news is important in the capital, and exclusion of the morning paper, or even the threat of it, must be weighed by editors.

Veteran Washington Post reporter Dorothy McCardle was assigned to cover three events — two of the paid for by taxpayers — but was restricted to the press lobby, according to the newspaper, while a "pool" covered the affairs.

Nixon administration spokesmen have been harsh toward the paper for its energetic coverage of the Watergate bugging episode, in which the White House charges that the paper drew unfair inferences. The trial of the case starts next month and there may be a congressional investigation. The issue involves espionage and sabotage efforts in the election with alleged links to the White House.

The Washington Post's managing editor, Howard Simons, commented, "I'm dismayed . . . if this is true . . . that the White House would act this way toward the Washington Post when social events at the White House are so much a part of the community of news."

Few cities give so much attention to society as does Washington, and often international events find their first airing in these columns.

Others discuss astronauts and Vietnam. But today many Washington families debate whether Mrs. McCardle was, or was not, "restricted."

It began last Friday when the veteran Mrs. McCardle arrived to cover a White House reception for so-called "new majority" supporters. She was told that a "pool" (a representative group) of five reporters had been picked to cover the affair, and that she and five other reporters were not. The pool is supposed to report back to the excluded reporters after the event.

The White House said that with 600 guests they had to limit coverage.

On Saturday evening Mrs. McCardle arrived to cover a formal dinner the Nixons were giving to past, present and future Cabinet members.

Mrs. McCardle found that a pool of six was covering that affair without her. She was the only reporter excluded, says the Post which printed the story discreetly inside. Nothing personal, a White House spokesman explained graciously.

Mrs. McCardle wanted, however, to be in the swim.

Mrs. McCardle began to feel persecuted when she arrived Sunday to cover a worship service at the White House, at which John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia officiated.

"Sorry", the White House spokesman said. She had not been included in a pool of 10 reporters. She sat out the services in the press lobby along with one other reporter who had failed to pick up his credentials in time.

Mrs. McCardle has been covering White House social events for years. A "pool" is not uncommon but, normally, reporters from all Washington papers are included.

Mrs. McCardle says she also was informed that she would be excluded from a Monday affair at the White House at which the Nixons entertain children of foreign diplomats.

Washington is watching Mrs. McCardle with interest.

President Nixon gave a spectacular scoop to the Washington Star, an afternoon rival of the Washington Post, in a frank preelection hour-long interview published right after the landslide. This was the interview in which Nixon referred to Americans as "children" who could be spoiled by permissiveness.

The Star has recently merged with the tabloid Washington News and tends to be less liberal than its competitor, the Post.

Some have seen a post-election White House policy of deliberate exclusives going to the Star. The latter, however, maintains an independent political stance, though it supported Nixon for re-election.

Cruise of the Challenger

One hundred years ago this month, the HMS Challenger set out on a 4-year voyage to study the oceans. The steam-assisted sailing ship, commissioned by the Royal Society of London for Improving Natural Knowledge, had been converted to a scientific laboratory by removing most of its guns. On its journey over 7,000 species of animals were collected. Over half of these species were new to science. The ship visited many remote places in the Atlantic and Pacific. It was the first steam ship to cross the Antarctic Circle. As a result of the Challenger's voyage, much was learned about the depth and character of the seas.

Others discuss astronauts and Vietnam. But today many Washington families debate whether Mrs. McCardle was, or was not, "restricted."

It began last Friday when the veteran Mrs. McCardle arrived to cover a White House reception for so-called "new majority" supporters. She was told that a "pool" (a representative group) of five reporters had been picked to cover the affair, and that she and five other reporters were not. The pool is supposed to report back to the excluded reporters after the event.

The White House said that with 600 guests they had to limit coverage.

On Saturday evening Mrs. McCardle arrived to cover a formal dinner the Nixons were giving to past, present and future Cabinet members.

Mrs. McCardle found that a pool of six was covering that affair without her. She was the only reporter excluded, says the Post which printed the story discreetly inside. Nothing personal, a White House spokesman explained graciously.

Mrs. McCardle wanted, however, to be in the swim.

Mrs. McCardle began to feel persecuted when she arrived Sunday to cover a worship service at the White House, at which John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia officiated.

"Sorry", the White House spokesman said. She had not been included in a pool of 10 reporters. She sat out the services in the press lobby along with one other reporter who had failed to pick up his credentials in time.

Mrs. McCardle has been covering White House social events for years. A "pool" is not uncommon but, normally, reporters from all Washington papers are included.

Mrs. McCardle says she also was informed that she would be excluded from a Monday affair at the White House at which the Nixons entertain children of foreign diplomats.

Washington is watching Mrs. McCardle with interest.

President Nixon gave a spectacular scoop to the Washington Star, an afternoon rival of the Washington Post, in a frank preelection hour-long interview published right after the landslide. This was the interview in which Nixon referred to Americans as "children" who could be spoiled by permissiveness.

The Star has recently merged with the tabloid Washington News and tends to be less liberal than its competitor, the Post.

Some have seen a post-election White House policy of deliberate exclusives going to the Star. The latter, however, maintains an independent political stance, though it supported Nixon for re-election.

Boy, 6, Saved In Dog Attack

SAN JOSE (UPI) — A 6-year-old-boy was savagely attacked by a dog and would have been killed if a neighbor had not rescued him, police reported yesterday.

Officers said the child, Warren Laughlin, apparently wandered into a back yard where he was attacked by a powerful pit bull terrier.

Mrs. Dennis O'Neil, next door, heard screams. She and her husband rushed out and O'Neil battled the animal while his wife grabbed the youngster and rushed him to a hospital.

The boy was reported recovering from serious bites on his head, arms and body.

Plane Lagoon Will Be Filled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Airport Commission approved a plan Tuesday to fill in an unused seaplane lagoon at San Francisco International Airport.

The lagoon once was used by Coast Guard seaplanes, since replaced by land based search and rescue planes and helicopters.

The commission voted to spend $358,000 on preparation of construction plans. The lagoon covers a 160-acre site ad its filling is part of an airport expansion program.

Cruise of the Challenger

One hundred years ago this month, the HMS Challenger set out on a 4-year voyage to study the oceans. The steam-assisted sailing ship, commissioned by the Royal Society of London for Improving Natural Knowledge, had been converted to a scientific laboratory by removing most of its guns. On its journey over 7,000 species of animals were collected. Over half of these species were new to science. The ship visited many remote places in the Atlantic and Pacific. It was the first steam ship to cross the Antarctic Circle. As a result of the Challenger's voyage, much was learned about the depth and character of the seas.

DO YOU KNOW — What section of the Apollo 17 ship was named Challenger?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Willy Brandt.

Evidence To Shepherds' Angel Story

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-Occupied Jordan (UPI) —The New Testament says an angel sent by God announced the birth of Christ to shepherds in a field near this town 1,972 years ago.

The Greek Orthodox church said Wednesday it has found archeolooical evidence to support that Christian belief.

But it said the evidence shows the shepherds recieved the word on land the Greek Orthodox church holds sacred—and not on two pieces of nearby land which Roman Catholics and Protestants revere.

All three areas are called shepherds fields.

Archbishop Constantine told newsmen excavators unearthed a 5th Century church that is nearly completely preserved in a cave about one mile east of Bethlehem. A mosaic floor also was uncovered.

"From a Christian point of view, these findings provide clear evidence for the identification of the Christian holy site known as shepherds field mentioned in early Christian sources," he said.

The archbishop said the Byzantine era church was the oldest found on any of the three shepherds fields, proving that the Greek Orthodox site was the true field. He said a new church will go up near the cave, leaving the cave intact and accessible.

"In my opinion, it's the true site," Constantine said. "We knew that there were ruins and we wanted to be certain through excavation finds—the signs and the mosaic floors"that this was the true shepherds field.

"The other denominations, the Catholics and later the Protestants, said their places were the correct fields from where the shepherds saw the star," the archbishop said.

"We did not make this excavation really to prove that this is our place and our place is the correct one, but as the excavation carried on, from what we found, I think that this is the correct place," he said.

Tests Show Little Booze Impairs Driving Ability

The finding came in a demonstration at Ontario Motor Speedway supervised by law enforcement officers and Dr. Slade Hulbert, a UCLA research psychologist who is studying the effects of alcohol on driving.

Hulbert said he has found in his studies that the driving ability of a person who driks small amounts of alcohol can be impaired without there being any noticeable effect on his motor skills.

He said the main impairment is the shortening of attention span rather than the ability to control muscles.

Giving an example, Hulbert said a person may be driving in a perfectly straight line but fail to notice one or both of two cars coming at him on either side.

Those taking part in the demonstration were George Follmer, winner of the Riverside Grand Prix; Bob Bondurant, a professional race driver instructor and Bob Earl, one of Bondurant's instructors.

Bondurant devised a precision driving course which the subjects were asked to drive in as fast a time as possible while knocking over as few road-markers as possible. They first completed the course sober and again after drinking from two to 10 ounces of vodka or scotch over a time period of about 45 minutes.

In every case driving ability was impaired after drinking.

Zsa Zsa Suing Film Producer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Zsa Zsa Gabor filed a $1.5 million breach of contract suit against the producers of her forthcoming movie, "How to Seduce a Woman," saying she was "scandalized" when she learned she would have to utter such "off color" lines as:

"The king fell in love with me, but he got nowhere. Even the queen tried to make me, and she got nowhere."

Miss Gabor's suit, filed Tuesday against Forward Films Inc. and producer Charles Martin, claimed the final version of the party scene was not edited from the "racy" dialogue as she had requested.

DRAMA REVIEW

Simon's 'The Sunshine Boys' Arrives; A Truly Funny Play

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) —What Broadway has needed for many weeks—a truly funny play— finally arrived last night at the Broadhurst Theater with the premiere of "The Sunshine Boys."

And it has two of the theater's most skilled players of comedy in the top roles, Jack Albertson and Sam Levene, who get knowing and affection direction from Alan Arkin, who is no novice when he plays comedy in the acting phase of his career.

At a quick glance, this might seem like the most insubstantial of Simon's comedies. But there is a certain depth to it in the sense of the study of two elderly men, and this could be viewed as applying to certain aspects of old age in general terms. Laughs pile upon laughs, yet there is much of human nature exposed, and a little pathos can be discerned in retrospect.

Willie Clark, played by Albertson, and Al Lewis, the role for Levene, spent 43 years in vaudeville as a top comedy team doing sketches. As the play begins, it has been 11 years since Al, apparently seeing the end of their career approaching, retired from show business, went into Wall Street for a spell and finally retired to his daughter's home in New Jersey.

Willie has had little chance to get work during those 11 years. He is bitter because, although he had no desire to retire, Al, for all practical purposes, retired him. He has built up a hate for Al all this time, especially recalling certain tricks Al used in their act that always irritated him.

Willie's young nephew, in advertising, brings the offer of a television network for the team to make one reunion appearance on a broadcast saluting comedy greats of the past.

Willie fights the idea, which Al has agreed to. The nephew finally gets the two of them together in Willie's room to brush up on one of their sketches. Old arguments are dug up, new ones develop and the deal is in jeopardy.

However, the two finally are coaxed into going ahead, and they go through a rehearsal in a television studio that proceeds hilariously until Al used the old tricks so annoying to Willie. The latter blows up, Al walks out of the deal and Willie has a heart attack.

In the final scene, the two old partners get together again as Willie is recovering, have some more arguments and then simmer down to the reality that both have nowhere to go but to a home for retired actors.

Simon, of course, began his career as a writer of sketches for radio and television for top comedians, and he has not lost his skill in this department, as witness, for one thing, the doctor-patient sketch he has written for the two vaudevillians. It is corny, but it is very funny, and the two actors play it to the hilt.

One Bandit Has Holiday Spirit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Karen Voltz, 27, had just returned to her car in an underground parking garage in downtown Columbus after doing some Christmas shopping when a man walked up, jerked open her car door, pointed a gun at her and demanded money.

When she began crying, the bandit asked her if she was all right, cautioned her "next time keep your door locked," wished her a merry Christmas and walked away.

Zsa Zsa Suing Film Producer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Zsa Zsa Gabor filed a $1.5 million breach of contract suit against the producers of her forthcoming movie, "How to Seduce a Woman," saying she was "scandalized" when she learned she would have to utter such "off color" lines as:

"The king fell in love with me, but he got nowhere. Even the queen tried to make me, and she got nowhere."

Miss Gabor's suit, filed Tuesday against Forward Films Inc. and producer Charles Martin, claimed the final version of the party scene was not edited from the "racy" dialogue as she had requested.

Simon's 'The Sunshine Boys' Arrives; A Truly Funny Play

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) —What Broadway has needed for many weeks—a truly funny play— finally arrived last night at the Broadhurst Theater with the premiere of "The Sunshine Boys."

And it has two of the theater's most skilled players of comedy in the top roles, Jack Albertson and Sam Levene, who get knowing and affection direction from Alan Arkin, who is no novice when he plays comedy in the acting phase of his career.

At a quick glance, this might seem like the most insubstantial of Simon's comedies. But there is a certain depth to it in the sense of the study of two elderly men, and this could be viewed as applying to certain aspects of old age in general terms. Laughs pile upon laughs, yet there is much of human nature exposed, and a little pathos can be discerned in retrospect.

Willie Clark, played by Albertson, and Al Lewis, the role for Levene, spent 43 years in vaudeville as a top comedy team doing sketches. As the play begins, it has been 11 years since Al, apparently seeing the end of their career approaching, retired from show business, went into Wall Street for a spell and finally retired to his daughter's home in New Jersey.

Willie has had little chance to get work during those 11 years. He is bitter because, although he had no desire to retire, Al, for all practical purposes, retired him. He has built up a hate for Al all this time, especially recalling certain tricks Al used in their act that always irritated him.

Willie's young nephew, in advertising, brings the offer of a television network for the team to make one reunion appearance on a broadcast saluting comedy greats of the past.

Willie fights the idea, which Al has agreed to. The nephew finally gets the two of them together in Willie's room to brush up on one of their sketches. Old arguments are dug up, new ones develop and the deal is in jeopardy.

However, the two finally are coaxed into going ahead, and they go through a rehearsal in a television studio that proceeds hilariously until Al used the old tricks so annoying to Willie. The latter blows up, Al walks out of the deal and Willie has a heart attack.

In the final scene, the two old partners get together again as Willie is recovering, have some more arguments and then simmer down to the reality that both have nowhere to go but to a home for retired actors.

Simon, of course, began his career as a writer of sketches for radio and television for top comedians, and he has not lost his skill in this department, as witness, for one thing, the doctor-patient sketch he has written for the two vaudevillians. It is corny, but it is very funny, and the two actors play it to the hilt.

One Bandit Has Holiday Spirit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Karen Voltz, 27, had just returned to her car in an underground parking garage in downtown Columbus after doing some Christmas shopping when a man walked up, jerked open her car door, pointed a gun at her and demanded money.

When she began crying, the bandit asked her if she was all right, cautioned her "next time keep your door locked," wished her a merry Christmas and walked away.

Argentine Troupe To Present Show

Action Theatre of Buenos Aires, Argentina, will perform "Ssshagrada" tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall at College of Marin.

The show, described as "a theatrical ceremony in eight sequences dealing with contemporary Latin American issues" is sponsored by the college's ethnic studies program and the Associated Students, College of Marin.

Adriana Ulrich, of the ethnic studies program, said the show is essentially body movement, but includes slides taken during the troupe's four-year trip through Latin America. Some of these are clandestine, such as photographs of tortures under the present government in Brazil, she said.

Woman Is Convicted Of Fraud

A San Rafael mother of five, said to have had $20,000 or more in income last year, was convicted yesterday of fraudulently receiving $4,438 in welfare payments from Marin.

A jury of eight women and four men returned the guilty verdict after considering nine days of testimony in the felony trial of 32-year-old Virgie Simmons. Superior Court Judge E.Warren McGuire then told the jury, "The evidence was practically overwhelming."

The judge set sentencing for Jan. 9.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams, who headed the long investigation of Mrs.Simmons, said a conservative estimate of her 1971 income is $20,000, including welfare overpayments, social security checks, veteran's benefits, support from fathers of her children and her own earnings.

She owns a home at 152 Villa Avenue in San Rafael and bought an $8,400 Chrysler last December, Hyams said.

She was charged with welfare cheating three months later.

Her known income was $205 a month from social security, $59 veterans' benefits because of a late husband who was in the Navy, and $388 to $405 a month in welfare.

On top of the public assistance was her salary as a clerk at the San Rafael Post Office and support for three of her children from their fathers.

Although the woman, also known as Virgie Rubit, was at times eligible for welfare aid, Hyams said, she "grossly underexaggerated her other income" to receive the overpayments during a 14-month period ending last January.

She received about $1,400 she was entitled to during the period, according to Hyams.

Baptiste Calls For Vote On Redevelopment Plans

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A Marin County supervisor today urged that redevelopment projects proposed by various communities be placed before voters on the next countywide ballot.

"If the public is willing to add a certain amount to the tax rate for redevelopment, then let's put it to a vote like we did with open space," Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste proposed.

His comments came today on Radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board" which probed three supervisors for their views on major issues facing the county during 1973.

Besides Baptiste, Supervisors Michael Wornum and Robert A. Roumiguiere expressed opinions during the hour-long show, which is moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer and will be rebroadcast Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Baptiste, the supervisors' most vocal critic of San Rafael's redevelopment plan, said he didn't oppose redevelopment as such but rather the scope of San Rafael's plan.

He said if the city would reduce by half its proposed $6 million redevelopment bond and would agree to use the funds only for projects which would increase assessed valuation, he would not oppose it.

Roumiguiere, who supports San Rafael's project, said redevelopment was needed not only in San Rafael but elsewhere to revitalize the business community and shore up crumbling assessed valuation levels.

"Redevelopment, properly done, can be the Savior of homeowners throughout the county," he said, adding sales and property taxes on businesses lift the tax burden from homeowners.

Conversely, he said, if business districts are allowed to decay, it will become the burden of homeowners to make up the tax difference.

Wornum disagreed saying redevelopment amounted to "a rip off" of homeowners since it would initially divert tax revenues to pay off the bonds. He suggested businesses pay for their own upgrading.

The City of San Rafael, he said, has tools available for street and other downtown improvements without forming a redevelopment agency which will siphon off tax revenues from the county, school and special districts.

Among other major issues facing the county, supervisors agreed, are facets of the proposed countywide plan dealing with public transit, open space and low and moderate-income housing.

The three said they endorsed many of the plan's general goals but said the full scope of some goals are not attainable.

Baptiste, who has been critical of the plan's "balanced transportation program," said he agreed with the need for more public transit but said the proposal for 300 intracounty buses was economically impossible.

Roumiguiere agreed, saying the proposal was "pie in the sky" because it would cost every resident $1,600 over the next 20 years but would provide transit for only 7 per cent of the population.

A listener's question about the plan's contradiction in calling for both more open space and more moderate-income housing brought a direct answer from Wornum who said "we're not going to be able to achieve both" without massive federal help which hasn't been forthcoming in the past.

Baptiste said he was more optimistic and didn't think the two goals are in direct conflict.

Roumiguiere criticized the plan for jamming nearly all Marin's 1990 population on 10 per cent of the county land area while leaving 90 per cent open.

"I would rather see the density lower in the eastern corridor and greater expansion in other areas" than called for in the plan, he said.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni and Louis H. Baar were not present.

Driver Ordered To Higher Court

A 52-year-old San Francisco man has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of felony drunken driving, as the result of an auto accident in which two persons were injured.

Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Wilfred Henry Wiseman to appear in the higher court Jan. 4.

The California Highway Patrol arrested Wiseman Oct. 27 after his car swerved off Highway 101 near San Rafael and hit a stalled car. His two passengers were hospitalized with injuries, according to the patrol.

Charcoal Blamed For House Blaze

An accidentally dropped scrap of lighted charcoal started a fire yesterday that damaged half the interior of the William R. Wilson home at 757 Diablo Avenue, according to Novato Fire Chief Jack W. Kidder.

Brian Wilson, 16, preparing a handwarmer, dropped the charcoal on a couch, Kidder said. Thinking he had cleaned up the lighted debris, Wilson left the home between 12:15 and 12:30 p.m.

When he returned shortly before 2 p.m., the couch was ablaze. After failing to extinguish the fire, Wilson called the fire department, the chief said.

The fire damaged the living room and hallway and had "started into the kitchen," Kidder said. He reported heavy smoke damage.

Stafford's Seating Is Protested

By PAT ANGLE

A Tamalpais Valley resident has filed a complaint with the state attorney general's office charging that Dr. Ronald T. Stafford did not have a residence in the Marin Municipal Water District at the time of his election to the district board.

Stafford, a 29-year-old Sausalito physician and conservationist, was elected June 6 to represent Division 5, which includes Marin City, Tamalpais Valley, Tiburon, Belvedere and Sausalito. He said today the charges by Charles S. Adkins, of 256 Cardinal Road, are "a form of harassment" and "have no basis in fact."

Adkins is seeking permission from the attorney general to sue Stafford to keep him from holding office in the water district. The writ, filed yesterday, is necessary because a routine election challenge was not filed within the required 90 days, according to Adkins' attorney, Craig Sommers of San Rafael.

The Tamalpais Valley resident said he was taking the action "strictly on a matter of principal" and not because he disagrees with Stafford's policies or philosophy.

"I believe our public servants have to be qualified to seek office and that includes living in the communities they intend to serve," Adkins said. "If we don't hold to these qualifications, we might as well go ahead and appoint just anyone and forget about elections altogether."

(On Aug. 9 an attorney for Adkins asked water district directors not to seat Stafford on the board until they had determined whether he had been a legal resident of the district on election day. The board declined to investigate the matter further after Stafford told them he lives at 270 Currey Avenue in Sausalito, within the district, and seated him on the board.)

Stafford's residency problems began soon after he filed his declaration of candidacy in March, when he learned that his home at 19 Wolfback Ridge Road in Sausalito, was outside district boundaries.

On April 12, Stafford registered to vote in Marin and gave his address as 71 Sunshine Avenue, a home located in the district.

In his complaint, Adkins contends that Stafford did not actually live at the Sunshine Avenue address at the time he registered to vote, but continued to reside on Wolfback Ridge until after the election.

As evidence he offers the fact that 71 Sunshine is zoned for single-family residential use and that Mr. and Mrs. Bruce F. Wolfe own the home, live there and are registered to vote at that address.

The complaint also states that Dr. Stafford's listed and unlisted phone numbers continued to be located at the Wolfback Ridge residence until after June 6 and that on July 18 a slot in the garage wall there had mail in it addressed to Stafford.

Stafford responded by saying, "I made no secret of the fact I was continuing to rent the Wolfback Ridge place and had phones there until after the election. I was using it as a campaign office, but lived in the Wolfe residence, which has a separate apartment in it," the physician said.

He said he could not understand why the matter was again being brought up at this late date. "I feel the whole issue was aired — and settled — before the election and at the August board meeting," Stafford said.

Stafford said that "developers may be behind the move to oust me from the board, although I can't be sure of that.

He said the recent resignation of Director Eugene A. Miller has left the board "divided 2-2 between prodevelopers and conservationists. If a third conservationist is seated to replace Miller the balance of power will change and that will certainly affect Marin developers, so they may be behind this and eager to get rid of me."

Attorney Sommers said Stafford has approximately two weeks to refute the allegations contained in Adkins' petition. Adkins will then have a week to respond to Stafford's answer and a hearing will be held after all the responses are in.

Sommers said it will take about three months for the attorney general's office to make a ruling in the case. If the state's top legal officer finds for Adkins, then the complainant will have the right to sue Stafford in Marin Superior Court to prevent him from retaining his seat on the MMWD board.

A Tamalpais Valley resident has filed a complaint with the state attorney general's office charging that Dr. Ronald T. Stafford did not have a residence in the Marin Municipal Water District at the time of his election to the district board.

Stafford, a 29-year-old Sausalito physician and conservationist, was elected June 6 to represent Division 5, which includes Marin City, Tamalpais Valley, Tiburon, Belvedere and Sausalito. He said today the charges by Charles S. Adkins, of 256 Cardinal Road, are "a form of harassment" and "have no basis in fact."

Adkins is seeking permission from the attorney general to sue Stafford to keep him from holding office in the water district. The writ, filed yesterday, is necessary because a routine election challenge was not filed within the required 90 days, according to Adkins' attorney, Craig Sommers of San Rafael.

The Tamalpais Valley resident said he was taking the action "strictly on a matter of principal" and not because he disagrees with Stafford's policies or philosophy.

"I believe our public servants have to be qualified to seek office and that includes living in the communities they intend to serve," Adkins said. "If we don't hold to these qualifications, we might as well go ahead and appoint just anyone and forget about elections altogether."

(On Aug. 9 an attorney for Adkins asked water district directors not to seat Stafford on the board until they had determined whether he had been a legal resident of the district on election day. The board declined to investigate the matter further after Stafford told them he lives at 270 Currey Avenue in Sausalito, within the district, and seated him on the board.)

Stafford's residency problems began soon after he filed his declaration of candidacy in March, when he learned that his home at 19 Wolfback Ridge Road in Sausalito, was outside district boundaries.

On April 12, Stafford registered to vote in Marin and gave his address as 71 Sunshine Avenue, a home located in the district.

In his complaint, Adkins contends that Stafford did not actually live at the Sunshine Avenue address at the time he registered to vote, but continued to reside on Wolfback Ridge until after the election.

As evidence he offers the fact that 71 Sunshine is zoned for single-family residential use and that Mr. and Mrs. Bruce F. Wolfe own the home, live there and are registered to vote at that address.

The complaint also states that Dr. Stafford's listed and unlisted phone numbers continued to be located at the Wolfback Ridge residence until after June 6 and that on July 18 a slot in the garage wall there had mail in it addressed to Stafford.

Stafford responded by saying, "I made no secret of the fact I was continuing to rent the Wolfback Ridge place and had phones there until after the election. I was using it as a campaign office, but lived in the Wolfe residence, which has a separate apartment in it," the physician said.

He said he could not understand why the matter was again being brought up at this late date. "I feel the whole issue was aired — and settled — before the election and at the August board meeting," Stafford said.

Stafford said that "developers may be behind the move to oust me from the board, although I can't be sure of that.

He said the recent resignation of Director Eugene A. Miller has left the board "divided 2-2 between prodevelopers and conservationists. If a third conservationist is seated to replace Miller the balance of power will change and that will certainly affect Marin developers, so they may be behind this and eager to get rid of me."

Attorney Sommers said Stafford has approximately two weeks to refute the allegations contained in Adkins' petition. Adkins will then have a week to respond to Stafford's answer and a hearing will be held after all the responses are in.

Sommers said it will take about three months for the attorney general's office to make a ruling in the case. If the state's top legal officer finds for Adkins, then the complainant will have the right to sue Stafford in Marin Superior Court to prevent him from retaining his seat on the MMWD board.

Multiple Sclerosis Is Truly A Mystery

Multiple sclerosis, sometimes called MS, is truly a mystery. No one knows what causes it, or what cures it. No one knows why it strikes some people and not others, or why it affects each of its victims differently. MS and related diseases affect about 500,000 persons in the United States; it is this country's most serious crippling neurological disease.

MS is a disease of the nervous system. The protective sheath around the nerve fibres inside the brain and spinal cord breaks down in places, allowing interferences with the communications among nerve cells and muscle cells. For those who have MS, the outcome can be anything from minor ailments to serious disabilities.

The damage to the protective sheath, which is made of a substance called myelin, is unfortunately done by the body's own immune system — the white blood cells and the antibodies that are supposed to protect the body from disease. Somehow, their ability to distinguish between friend and foe, or "self" and "nonself", has gone awry.

What sets this misguided process into motion? Some scientists believe the cause might be a virus, one that stays inactive in the host for many years before beginning to do its damaging work. Or perhaps MS is started, as well as carried out, by a malfunction in the immune system. Both points of view have some evidence to support them, but more basic research is needed.

Some of the most important research is on a disease that can be induced in animals and is similar to MS. The disease is called EAE, short for experimental allergic encephalomyelitis. If an animal is injected with nerve tissue from another animal, its own immune system becomes sensitized and then begins to attack its own nerve tissue. Although the symptoms vary from species to species as well as from animal to animal, it is the most relevant experimental system available for MS research.

At The Salk Institute, in San Diego, as well as at other laboratories around the world, scientists have isolated the particular molecule in the injected material — a constituent of normal brain tissue — that is responsible for the animal disease.

Some researchers think that a molecule designed to resemble this one could, if injected into an already diseased animal, distract the immune system and arrest the course of the disease. However, there has not yet been enough experimentation to establish this theory.

Other research is needed too — virus studies, epidemiological surveys and clinical tests.. (From the Salk Institute, San Diego.)

Nixon Will Likely Face An End-Of-War Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —If the peace that was almost "at hand" when Congress adjourned in October is not achieved by the time it returns in January, look for a new and more determined effort on Capitol Hill to legislate an end to U.S. participation in the Vietnam War.

Even though the breakoff of peace talks, the resumption of intense bombing and the heavy loss of U.S. aircraft and airmen have stiffened the spine of the end-the-war bloc,the prospect of success appears no stronger than in the past.

In any event, it will take months for Congress first to find its collective will and then to force its will on President Nixon, who has managed for four years to run the war free of congressional restraints.

Even before Congress has assembled, there have been— and there will be more— demands:

That Congress set the final date for a U.S. presence in Southeast Asia, contingent only upon the Communists' release of American prisoners and regardless of the effect withdrawal may have upon the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

That Congress punish or prod Thieu by denying him further military or economic aid. Surprisingly, even Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., an administration loyalist on foreign policy matters, came out Wednesday for an aid cut off.

That Henry A. Kissinger be summoned before a joint session or a committee of Congress to explain what went wrong between his Oct. 26 "peace is at hand" statement and last week's apparent impasse in the talks. Many in Congress blame Thieu.

That the United States return to Paris to sign—over Thieu's objections—the tentative agreement that Kissinger worked out in October.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on Nixon at a news conference Wednesday to take that course. He said the size of the international peacekeeping force to police the agreed-upon cease-fire was an insignificant issue.

Three times in the last Congress the Senate voted to cut off funds for prosecution of the war by a stipulated date if the Communists would release the POWs and account for the missing.

Each time the House balked, willing to state congressional policy but unwilling to impose it on the President.

The election apparently strengthened Nixon's hand in the House, where Republicans picked up 13 seats. The Senate appears to be a shade more liberal and more antiwar.

Last week, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. said, "We in Congress, and I for one, will extend the olive branch to the administration in the coming Congress."

But Tuesday night he withdrew it.

"One way or another, we must be out of Vietnam in early 1973," he said in a speech delivered in New York.

"The dashed hopes of recent weeks will give new strength to our resolve," he said. "I am confident now, as never before, that if the President and Dr. Kissinger cannot end America's role in the war themselves, then Congress will end it for them."

Even such staunch an administration supporter as conservative Sen. William E. Brock III, R-Tenn., said he would keep his options open on whether to support the White House in another end-the-war debate. He said, though, that he tended to back Nixon and believed the new round of bombing was designed to head off a Communist offensive and was unrelated to the negotiations.

Rep. Donald W. Riegle Jr., R-Mich., an adamant dove, called the bombing a "monstrous outrage," accused Nixon of a "deliberate deception" in holding out the prospect of a settlement before the election and suggested an Inauguration Day demonstration to show "we will no longer tolerate political deceit in America."

Scott, who led the administration's fight to increase aid to South Vietnam last fall, while backing a cut off of aid, this time refused to support an end-the-war amendment.

The GOP leader said he was "heartsick" over the Paris impasse and said he suspected that Nixon "is disappointed and heartsick also."

Nonetheless, he said he knew of no policy other than Nixon's which would disengage the United States—a view that may reflect Congress' reluctant sentiment.

State Taxpayers Due For Refund

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If you're an average Californian, you're due for a $42 refund on your state income tax as part of a whopping $227 million in refunds beginning next month, State Controller Houston Flournoy says.

An estimated 5.4 million Californians — more than two-thirds of all those expected to file returns this year — will get state income tax refunds during the next five months, Flournoy said Wednesday.

It will be the first year of large scale state income tax refunds due to imposition of payroll withholding of state income taxes last Jan. 1, Flournoy said in a news release.

Resignation Is Accepted

Trustees of the Lagunitas School District last night accepted the resignation of board member Gary T. Giacomini, but said his seat will remain vacant until the April 17 school elections.

Giacomini, elected in November to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, resigned from the school board effective Jan. 9.

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Psychiatric Problem Usually Behind Factitious Fever Case

Factitious fever is an elevation of temperature brought on by clever deception. Several examples were reported in The New Physician by two Boston doctors. A 25-year-old man came to the emergency room with a rectal temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit. He complained of shaking chills, headache, sore neck, and poor appetite.

Physicians examined him and when his temperature was taken an hour later, it was 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. While in the hospital, the afternoon temperature again rose to 103.2. It was normal five minutes later when taken by the nurse.

MEANWHILE, there was no corresponding increase in the pulse or sweating when the temperature was elevated. All of the blood tests and x-rays proved normal. He finally confessed that he had rubbed the end of the thermometer to create a "fever".

Why did he do this? During the preceding three months, his behavior had been aberrant following the death of his first child. He drank heavily, stayed away from home, and developed poor wrk habits. The man admitted he wanted to get into the hospital to avoid arrest by the police for a serious offense. offense.

A psychiatric problem usually is responsible for factitious fever. The deception can be detected by the nurse or physician by staying with the patient while the temperature is being taken.

THESE INDIVIDUALS have ingenious ways to elevate their temperature. Some rub the end of the thermometer with the fingers or against the sheet. Others hold the device against a light bulb, steam pipe, hot water bottle, or cigarette lighter. Still others move the anal sphincters, or the teeth or gums to produce friction. There have been instances in which several thermometers with elevated readings are hidden and then handed to the nurse.

Clues suggestive of factitious fever appear within a few days. The individual is otherwise healthy; the pulse fails to quicken as the temperature goes up. A bona fide fever is highest in the afternoon and lowest in the morning; this is not true when self-induced fever is involved. Furthermore, in adults, temperatures in excess of 105 degrees Fahrenheit are rare.

HARD WATER

C.S. writes: Can hard water (the community supply) cause stones, arthritis, or constipation?

REPLY

No. Hard water offers no health hazards. A controversy continues relative to the possibility that soft water contributes to the development of arteriosclerosis.

ALLERGIC TENDENCY

Mrs. G. writes: I have hay fever and my baby has eczema. Did he get it from me?

REPLY

The allergic tendency is inherited, though the allergy may not appear in the same form in succeeding generations.

PILLS ON ICE

S. L. writes: Should multivitamin pills be refrigerated?

REPLY

Not necessarily. They should, however, be kept in a cool place and the refrigerator is as good a spot as any.

New Water System Will Be Sought

North Marin County Water District directors have approved formation of a water system to serve the Olema area and Point Reyes National Seashore.

Directors voted after a public hearings Tuesday at West Marin School attended by about 35 to 40 persons, according to Dist. Mgr. John A. Nelson.

"The problem now is financing," he said.

The system is expected to cost about $140,000, with the Seashore share at $72,000. Approval of federal participation is being sought from the National Park Service.

The system will include a pipeline from Point Reyes Station and a 100,000-gallon redwood tank.

Nelson said directors agreed that an environmental impact report wouldn't be necessary because the only physical impact, the tank, will not be visible from the main part of Olema and the system has limited expansion potential.

"The system essentially is for the existing area of Olema, and doesn't include much in way of expansion," Nelson said.

Directors also set a policy that environmental impact reports will be required on any project that would have significant effect on the environment.

The board adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 2 at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

Hilliard Plea Booted By Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Court of Appeal Wednesday upheld Black Panther chief of staff David Hilliard's conviction on two counts of assault with a deadly weapon for his part in a 1968 gun battle between the Panthers and Oakland police.

Hilliard, who is serving a sentence of six months to 10 years, argued that he was convicted on insufficient evidence and that the prosecution committed several prejudicial errors during his trial.

Hilliard was convicted in connection with a shootout that killed Panther Treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, and wounded Eldridge Cleaver, who fled to Algeria when state authorities tried to return him to prison as a parole violator. Cleaver is still in exile in Algiers.

Multiple Sclerosis Is Truly A Mystery

Multiple sclerosis, sometimes called MS, is truly a mystery. No one knows what causes it, or what cures it. No one knows why it strikes some people and not others, or why it affects each of its victims differently. MS and related diseases affect about 500,000 persons in the United States; it is this country's most serious crippling neurological disease.

MS is a disease of the nervous system. The protective sheath around the nerve fibres inside the brain and spinal cord breaks down in places, allowing interferences with the communications among nerve cells and muscle cells. For those who have MS, the outcome can be anything from minor ailments to serious disabilities.

The damage to the protective sheath, which is made of a substance called myelin, is unfortunately done by the body's own immune system — the white blood cells and the antibodies that are supposed to protect the body from disease. Somehow, their ability to distinguish between friend and foe, or "self" and "nonself", has gone awry.

What sets this misguided process into motion? Some scientists believe the cause might be a virus, one that stays inactive in the host for many years before beginning to do its damaging work. Or perhaps MS is started, as well as carried out, by a malfunction in the immune system. Both points of view have some evidence to support them, but more basic research is needed.

Some of the most important research is on a disease that can be induced in animals and is similar to MS. The disease is called EAE, short for experimental allergic encephalomyelitis. If an animal is injected with nerve tissue from another animal, its own immune system becomes sensitized and then begins to attack its own nerve tissue. Although the symptoms vary from species to species as well as from animal to animal, it is the most relevant experimental system available for MS research.

At The Salk Institute, in San Diego, as well as at other laboratories around the world, scientists have isolated the particular molecule in the injected material — a constituent of normal brain tissue — that is responsible for the animal disease.

Some researchers think that a molecule designed to resemble this one could, if injected into an already diseased animal, distract the immune system and arrest the course of the disease. However, there has not yet been enough experimentation to establish this theory.

Other research is needed too — virus studies, epidemiological surveys and clinical tests.. (From the Salk Institute, San Diego.)

Nixon Will Likely Face An End-Of-War Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —If the peace that was almost "at hand" when Congress adjourned in October is not achieved by the time it returns in January, look for a new and more determined effort on Capitol Hill to legislate an end to U.S. participation in the Vietnam War.

Even though the breakoff of peace talks, the resumption of intense bombing and the heavy loss of U.S. aircraft and airmen have stiffened the spine of the end-the-war bloc,the prospect of success appears no stronger than in the past.

In any event, it will take months for Congress first to find its collective will and then to force its will on President Nixon, who has managed for four years to run the war free of congressional restraints.

Even before Congress has assembled, there have been— and there will be more— demands:

That Congress set the final date for a U.S. presence in Southeast Asia, contingent only upon the Communists' release of American prisoners and regardless of the effect withdrawal may have upon the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

That Congress punish or prod Thieu by denying him further military or economic aid. Surprisingly, even Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., an administration loyalist on foreign policy matters, came out Wednesday for an aid cut off.

That Henry A. Kissinger be summoned before a joint session or a committee of Congress to explain what went wrong between his Oct. 26 "peace is at hand" statement and last week's apparent impasse in the talks. Many in Congress blame Thieu.

That the United States return to Paris to sign—over Thieu's objections—the tentative agreement that Kissinger worked out in October.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on Nixon at a news conference Wednesday to take that course. He said the size of the international peacekeeping force to police the agreed-upon cease-fire was an insignificant issue.

Three times in the last Congress the Senate voted to cut off funds for prosecution of the war by a stipulated date if the Communists would release the POWs and account for the missing.

Each time the House balked, willing to state congressional policy but unwilling to impose it on the President.

The election apparently strengthened Nixon's hand in the House, where Republicans picked up 13 seats. The Senate appears to be a shade more liberal and more antiwar.

Last week, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. said, "We in Congress, and I for one, will extend the olive branch to the administration in the coming Congress."

But Tuesday night he withdrew it.

"One way or another, we must be out of Vietnam in early 1973," he said in a speech delivered in New York.

"The dashed hopes of recent weeks will give new strength to our resolve," he said. "I am confident now, as never before, that if the President and Dr. Kissinger cannot end America's role in the war themselves, then Congress will end it for them."

Even such staunch an administration supporter as conservative Sen. William E. Brock III, R-Tenn., said he would keep his options open on whether to support the White House in another end-the-war debate. He said, though, that he tended to back Nixon and believed the new round of bombing was designed to head off a Communist offensive and was unrelated to the negotiations.

Rep. Donald W. Riegle Jr., R-Mich., an adamant dove, called the bombing a "monstrous outrage," accused Nixon of a "deliberate deception" in holding out the prospect of a settlement before the election and suggested an Inauguration Day demonstration to show "we will no longer tolerate political deceit in America."

Scott, who led the administration's fight to increase aid to South Vietnam last fall, while backing a cut off of aid, this time refused to support an end-the-war amendment.

The GOP leader said he was "heartsick" over the Paris impasse and said he suspected that Nixon "is disappointed and heartsick also."

Nonetheless, he said he knew of no policy other than Nixon's which would disengage the United States—a view that may reflect Congress' reluctant sentiment.

State Taxpayers Due For Refund

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If you're an average Californian, you're due for a $42 refund on your state income tax as part of a whopping $227 million in refunds beginning next month, State Controller Houston Flournoy says.

An estimated 5.4 million Californians — more than two-thirds of all those expected to file returns this year — will get state income tax refunds during the next five months, Flournoy said Wednesday.

It will be the first year of large scale state income tax refunds due to imposition of payroll withholding of state income taxes last Jan. 1, Flournoy said in a news release.

His seat and that of Trustees Richard Sloan and Audrey Miller are up for election April 17.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Psychiatric Problem Usually Behind Factitious Fever Case

Factitious fever is an elevation of temperature brought on by clever deception. Several examples were reported in The New Physician by two Boston doctors. A 25-year-old man came to the emergency room with a rectal temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit. He complained of shaking chills, headache, sore neck, and poor appetite.

Physicians examined him and when his temperature was taken an hour later, it was 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. While in the hospital, the afternoon temperature again rose to 103.2. It was normal five minutes later when taken by the nurse.

MEANWHILE, there was no corresponding increase in the pulse or sweating when the temperature was elevated. All of the blood tests and x-rays proved normal. He finally confessed that he had rubbed the end of the thermometer to create a "fever".

Why did he do this? During the preceding three months, his behavior had been aberrant following the death of his first child. He drank heavily, stayed away from home, and developed poor wrk habits. The man admitted he wanted to get into the hospital to avoid arrest by the police for a serious offense. offense.

A psychiatric problem usually is responsible for factitious fever. The deception can be detected by the nurse or physician by staying with the patient while the temperature is being taken.

THESE INDIVIDUALS have ingenious ways to elevate their temperature. Some rub the end of the thermometer with the fingers or against the sheet. Others hold the device against a light bulb, steam pipe, hot water bottle, or cigarette lighter. Still others move the anal sphincters, or the teeth or gums to produce friction. There have been instances in which several thermometers with elevated readings are hidden and then handed to the nurse.

Clues suggestive of factitious fever appear within a few days. The individual is otherwise healthy; the pulse fails to quicken as the temperature goes up. A bona fide fever is highest in the afternoon and lowest in the morning; this is not true when self-induced fever is involved. Furthermore, in adults, temperatures in excess of 105 degrees Fahrenheit are rare.

HARD WATER

C.S. writes: Can hard water (the community supply) cause stones, arthritis, or constipation?

REPLY

No. Hard water offers no health hazards. A controversy continues relative to the possibility that soft water contributes to the development of arteriosclerosis.

ALLERGIC TENDENCY

Mrs. G. writes: I have hay fever and my baby has eczema. Did he get it from me?

REPLY

The allergic tendency is inherited, though the allergy may not appear in the same form in succeeding generations.

PILLS ON ICE

S. L. writes: Should multivitamin pills be refrigerated?

REPLY

Not necessarily. They should, however, be kept in a cool place and the refrigerator is as good a spot as any.

New Water System Will Be Sought

North Marin County Water District directors have approved formation of a water system to serve the Olema area and Point Reyes National Seashore.

Directors voted after a public hearings Tuesday at West Marin School attended by about 35 to 40 persons, according to Dist. Mgr. John A. Nelson.

"The problem now is financing," he said.

The system is expected to cost about $140,000, with the Seashore share at $72,000. Approval of federal participation is being sought from the National Park Service.

The system will include a pipeline from Point Reyes Station and a 100,000-gallon redwood tank.

Nelson said directors agreed that an environmental impact report wouldn't be necessary because the only physical impact, the tank, will not be visible from the main part of Olema and the system has limited expansion potential.

"The system essentially is for the existing area of Olema, and doesn't include much in way of expansion," Nelson said.

Directors also set a policy that environmental impact reports will be required on any project that would have significant effect on the environment.

The board adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 2 at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

Hilliard Plea Booted By Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Court of Appeal Wednesday upheld Black Panther chief of staff David Hilliard's conviction on two counts of assault with a deadly weapon for his part in a 1968 gun battle between the Panthers and Oakland police.

Hilliard, who is serving a sentence of six months to 10 years, argued that he was convicted on insufficient evidence and that the prosecution committed several prejudicial errors during his trial.

Hilliard was convicted in connection with a shootout that killed Panther Treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, and wounded Eldridge Cleaver, who fled to Algeria when state authorities tried to return him to prison as a parole violator. Cleaver is still in exile in Algiers.

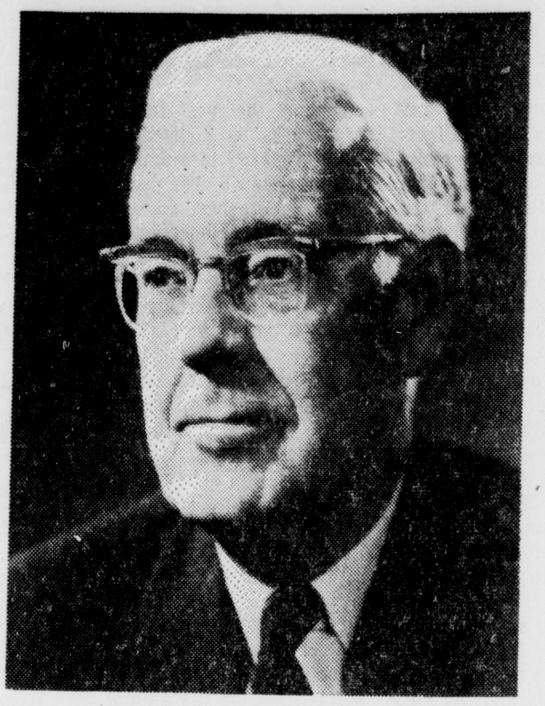
Joseph C. Harsch

Joseph C. Harsch, whose weekly column on international affairs appears on the Independent-Journal editorial page, has had wide experience as a foreign correspondent and as a radio and TV analyst. He now is chief editorial writer of The Christian Science Monitor and his column is supplied by the Monitor News Service. Mr. Harsch received degrees from Williams College and Cambridge University and, immediately upon graduation in 1929, joined the Monitor as a cub reporter. During World War II he covered the European Theater and the Southwest Pacific. His work, both as a correspondent and radio and TV commentator, has won him wide respect among his colleagues and his rare insight into world affairs makes his column must reading for anyone who wants to be well informed.

Charlotte Saikowski

Charlotte Saikowski, chief of the Moscow bureau of The Christian Science Monitor, is a lifelong Russian scholar who has travelled more widely in the Soviet Union than any other American correspondent. Miss Saikowski's dispatches from the Monitor News Service will appear in the Independent-Journal. She brings readers a feel for what the average Russian thinks and does as well as a profound understanding of Kremlinology. She joined the Monitor in 1962 and served in the overseas news department and as a correspondent in Tokyo before her assignment to Moscow in 1968. She speaks both Russian and Polish. Miss Saikowski taught English at the University of Warsaw for three years, returning to the United States in 1950 to study at the Russian Institute and the School of International Affairs at Columbia University. In 1970, Miss Saikowski was awarded an Overseas Press Club citation for her series, "Russia in the '70's".



Erwin D. Canham

Erwin D. Canham, whose weekly column on world affairs will appear on the Independent-Journal editorial page, is one of this nation's leading writers, radio commentators and public speakers. He now is editor in chief of The Christian Science Monitor and his column is supplied by the Monitor News Service. Mr. Canham has observed, first-hand, many of the conferences and events which have shaped recent history, is a member of many international organizations and an advisor to many leaders in public life. Because of his wide contacts and experience, Mr. Canham has been appointed by United States presidents to many commissions and boards, most recently President Nixon's Commission on Campus Unrest. He joined the Monitor in 1925 as a reporter and has served as correspondent at the League of Nations, chief of the Washington bureau and as general news editor, managing editor, editor and editor in chief.

Adding a new dimension to your understanding of world events . . .

A few of the world-respected journalists now writing for the I-J

We show these five distinguished writers merely to give you an idea of the caliber of The Christian Science Monitor News Service . . . the prestigious new syndicate to which the I-J now subscribes.

Through them and other Monitor specialists you will discover the difference between "news" and an understanding of the events which make it. For Monitor reporting probes beneath the surface for the causes. It tells you what happened, but most importantly, why.

The Independent-Journal will publish not only selected news stories but editorials, news analyses, features and special series. Also maps, charts, artwork and photography for which the Monitor is justly renowned.

We invite you to read and form your own judgment of these unusual dispatches.

Takashi Oka

Takashi Oka, Paris bureau chief of The Christian Science Monitor, brings a diverse background in foreign affairs to his post in France. His dispatches are supplied to the Independent-Journal by the Monitor News Service. Mr. Oka served as New York Times bureau chief in Tokyo, as well as Monitor correspondent in Saigon, Hong Kong and Moscow before his assignment to the Paris post.

Elizabeth Pond

Elizabeth Pond, Tokyo bureau chief of the Christian Science Monitor, is an experienced foreign correspondent. Her dispatches from the Monitor News Service will appear in the Independent-Journal. Miss Pond learned Chinese in Taiwan, free-lanced in Europe, and covered the rural war in Vietnam and the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia before her assignment to her Tokyo post. She was captured by Communist guerrillas during the Cambodian invasion and her special series of articles on life behind their lines — the result of her 40 days of captivity — were widely reprinted.

5-Month-Old Beats Odds To Survive

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Like hundreds of thousands of other 5-month-old babies, this will be the first Christmas for Andrea Chambers. But unlike the others, when the big day arrives Andrea will still be enjoying her first week at home.

The toys she has to play with were not bought as Christmas presents. Craig and Clarena Chambers hoped their chid would start using them soon after she was born.

But when Andrea arrived July 19, her stomach and intestines were outside her body. She underwent surgery 20 hours later. Two more major operations followed as 23 doctors at Navy Hospital gave her their attention, feeding her intravenously and helping her fight off two potentially fatal infections.

"Add up the odds from all her problems and she really had little chance," said Navy Dr. N.G. Tsoulos. "If all this had happened about five years ago her odds to live would have been about 10 per cent or less."

Andrea beat the odds, though. Wednesday was her first full day at home after leaving the hospital Tuesday.

"You name the type of medical specialist and Andrea needed his services at one time or another," Tsoulos said.

Mrs. Chambers, whose husband is a sonar technician, found it all hard to believe as the little girl was dressed to leave the hospital.

"It seems strange to be taking a 4-month-old baby home for the first time," the mother said. "We've had her crib and her toys ready for nine months."

5-Month-Old Beats Odds To Survive

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Like hundreds of thousands of other 5-month-old babies, this will be the first Christmas for Andrea Chambers. But unlike the others, when the big day arrives Andrea will still be enjoying her first week at home.

The toys she has to play with were not bought as Christmas presents. Craig and Clarena Chambers hoped their chid would start using them soon after she was born.

But when Andrea arrived July 19, her stomach and intestines were outside her body. She underwent surgery 20 hours later. Two more major operations followed as 23 doctors at Navy Hospital gave her their attention, feeding her intravenously and helping her fight off two potentially fatal infections.

"Add up the odds from all her problems and she really had little chance," said Navy Dr. N.G. Tsoulos. "If all this had happened about five years ago her odds to live would have been about 10 per cent or less."

Andrea beat the odds, though. Wednesday was her first full day at home after leaving the hospital Tuesday.

"You name the type of medical specialist and Andrea needed his services at one time or another," Tsoulos said.

Mrs. Chambers, whose husband is a sonar technician, found it all hard to believe as the little girl was dressed to leave the hospital.

"It seems strange to be taking a 4-month-old baby home for the first time," the mother said. "We've had her crib and her toys ready for nine months."

DISCOVERER OF CALIFORNIA

Gravemarker Believed Cabrillo's

BERKELEY (UPI) — A University of California anthropologist believes he has found the gravemarker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the Spanish "discover of California."

Heizer said he believes it was placed over Cabrillo's grave after he died Jan. 3, 1543, while leading the first exploration of the California coast by Europeans.

Heizer conceded that it was impossible to prove the stone was the oldest historical relic of Spanish California because of the fragmentary accounts of Cabrillo's voyage and a lack of scientific tests to date the block.

"Without the means of proving that the stone is or is not the one which marked Cabrillo's grave, we are simply left with the possibility it may be that marker," Heizer said in a monograph published Wednesday by U.C.'s Lowie Museum of Anthropology, where the stone went on display.

"I personally believe that it is probably the grave marker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo," said the anthropologist, who later described his conclusion as "an intuitive one."

Heizer found the stone on campus in the Lowie Museum's collection. It was placed there by Philip Mills Jones, who picked it up from Santa Rosa Island in the Channel group in 1901.

The UC professor began researching the possibility it was Cabrillo's gravestone last summer after looking through a report on Jones' trip that Heizer and a colleague edited 16 years ago.

On reviewing the report, it occurred to him "that the initials might be those of the discoverer of California, Juan Rodriguez, usually known as Cabrillo."

He said Spanish historians confirmed that a stone, rather than the usual wooden cross, might well have been used to mark the grave of the leader of an expedition. And they said the joined letters were consistent with lettering used in 16th Century Spain.

OLDEST RELIC? — Lupe Godinez of the University of California's Berkeley campus staff holds a stone which could be the gravemarker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo and thus California's oldest relic of European civilization; The stone was found on the Channel Islands off Santa Barbara in 1901. Cabrillo, called "the discoverer of California," was buried there in 1543.

(UPI Telephoto)

Cabrillo voyaged north from Mexico in 1542 after serving with Cortez in San Diego Bay in September, 1542, the first Europeans to land on the shores of California. They sailed further north, making several stops before arriving at Monterey Bay.

They turned back to winter on the Channel Islands, where Cabrillo died on Jan. 3, 1543 from injuries suffered in a fall during a previous stop at the islands off Santa Barbara.

The two ships later sailed north past the mouth of San Francisco Bay, to Point Arena, then returned to Mexico. The voyages had little impact, except to convince the Spanish the Indians possessed no gold or silver. The next Spanish voyage of exploration didn't come for 60 years and settlement began a full two centuries later.

Heizer said objections to the stone being accepted as Cabrillo's grave marker includes the possibility it is a fake, the possibility the initials refer to some missionized Indian, a vaquero, a shepherd or a casual visitor of recent centuries, and historians' generally accepted view that Cabrillo was buried on San Miguel Island and not Santa Rosa Island were Jones picked up the 13.5-inch long, 4.5-inch wide, 2-inch thick chunk of sandstone.

It was not marking a grave at the time and may have been carried to Santa Rosa from some other island, Heizer said. He also noted that records of Cabrillo's voyages are a confuse abstract of the original log which is unclear about the exact burial site.

"The fact of his death resulting from a broken limb we can accept, and we can also take as fact that his body was taken ashore and buried," he wrote. "But where he was interred we are not told with certainty, and nothing at all is uaid about the circumstances of his burial."

"The fact of his death resulting from a broken limb we can accept, and we can also take as fact that his body was taken ashore and buried," he wrote. "But where he was interred we are not told with certainty, and nothing at all is said about the circumstances of his burial."

"Drake's plate of brass is another artifact whose authenticity is not proved to everyone's satisfaction," Heizer said.

Felony Charge Is Reduced To A Misdemeanor

A 21-year-old Novato man, who had been charged with assaulting a man with his car during an argument over a towing charge, was sentenced yesterday to time already served in jail after pleading no contest to a lesser charge.

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner reduced the felony to misdemeanor disturbing the peace after a plea bargaining session with Given's attorney and the district attorney.

Arrested Oct. 12, Given was released without bail Nov. 9 after a hearing in municipal court.

Given was arrested at Third and Irwin streets in San Rafael, police said, after he refused to pay a towing fee, then reportedly ran into the man trying to collect from him.

Heizer conceded that it was impossible to prove the stone was the oldest historical relic of Spanish California because of the fragmentary accounts of Cabrillo's voyage and a lack of scientific tests to date the block.

"Without the means of proving that the stone is or is not the one which marked Cabrillo's grave, we are simply left with the possibility it may be that marker," Heizer said in a monograph published Wednesday by U.C.'s Lowie Museum of Anthropology, where the stone went on display.

"I personally believe that it is probably the grave marker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo," said the anthropologist, who later described his conclusion as "an intuitive one."

Heizer found the stone on campus in the Lowie Museum's collection. It was placed there by Philip Mills Jones, who picked it up from Santa Rosa Island in the Channel group in 1901.

The UC professor began researching the possibility it was Cabrillo's gravestone last summer after looking through a report on Jones' trip that Heizer and a colleague edited 16 years ago.

On reviewing the report, it occurred to him "that the initials might be those of the discoverer of California, Juan Rodriguez, usually known as Cabrillo."

He said Spanish historians confirmed that a stone, rather than the usual wooden cross, might well have been used to mark the grave of the leader of an expedition. And they said the joined letters were consistent with lettering used in 16th Century Spain.

OLDEST RELIC? — Lupe Godinez of the University of California's Berkeley campus staff holds a stone which could be the gravemarker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo and thus California's oldest relic of European civilization; The stone was found on the Channel Islands off Santa Barbara in 1901. Cabrillo, called "the discoverer of California," was buried there in 1543.

(UPI Telephoto)

Cabrillo voyaged north from Mexico in 1542 after serving with Cortez in San Diego Bay in September, 1542, the first Europeans to land on the shores of California. They sailed further north, making several stops before arriving at Monterey Bay.

They turned back to winter on the Channel Islands, where Cabrillo died on Jan. 3, 1543 from injuries suffered in a fall during a previous stop at the islands off Santa Barbara.

The two ships later sailed north past the mouth of San Francisco Bay, to Point Arena, then returned to Mexico. The voyages had little impact, except to convince the Spanish the Indians possessed no gold or silver. The next Spanish voyage of exploration didn't come for 60 years and settlement began a full two centuries later.

Heizer said objections to the stone being accepted as Cabrillo's grave marker includes the possibility it is a fake, the possibility the initials refer to some missionized Indian, a vaquero, a shepherd or a casual visitor of recent centuries, and historians' generally accepted view that Cabrillo was buried on San Miguel Island and not Santa Rosa Island were Jones picked up the 13.5-inch long, 4.5-inch wide, 2-inch thick chunk of sandstone.

It was not marking a grave at the time and may have been carried to Santa Rosa from some other island, Heizer said. He also noted that records of Cabrillo's voyages are a confuse abstract of the original log which is unclear about the exact burial site.

"The fact of his death resulting from a broken limb we can accept, and we can also take as fact that his body was taken ashore and buried," he wrote. "But where he was interred we are not told with certainty, and nothing at all is uaid about the circumstances of his burial."

"The fact of his death resulting from a broken limb we can accept, and we can also take as fact that his body was taken ashore and buried," he wrote. "But where he was interred we are not told with certainty, and nothing at all is said about the circumstances of his burial."

"Drake's plate of brass is another artifact whose authenticity is not proved to everyone's satisfaction," Heizer said.

Felony Charge Is Reduced To A Misdemeanor

A 21-year-old Novato man, who had been charged with assaulting a man with his car during an argument over a towing charge, was sentenced yesterday to time already served in jail after pleading no contest to a lesser charge.

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner reduced the felony to misdemeanor disturbing the peace after a plea bargaining session with Given's attorney and the district attorney.

Arrested Oct. 12, Given was released without bail Nov. 9 after a hearing in municipal court.

Given was arrested at Third and Irwin streets in San Rafael, police said, after he refused to pay a towing fee, then reportedly ran into the man trying to collect from him.

49ers Plan Trying To Forget A Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A team that went through what San Francisco did to reach the National Football League playoffs should relish every victory, but there's one the 49ers are trying hard to forget — their 31-10 conquest of Dallas.

"We've just got to forget what we did to Dallas back there or what they didn't do last week," said 49er linebacker Ed Beard Wednesday. The Cowboys dropped their final regular season game to the New York Giants 23-3.

A sellout crowd of 61,214 is expected at Candlestick Park for Saturday's playoff. It will be the seventh straight playoff for the Cowboys who beat the 49ers the last two years by 17-10 and 14-3 to earn the National Conference spot in the Super Bowl.

Coach Tom Landry has a workout scheduled at Candlestick Friday for his Cowboys. The 49ers moved onto Candlestick's artificial turf Wednesday because their practice field at Redwood City was soggy from steady rains.

The series between the 49ers and Cowboys, including the two playoff games, stands at 4-3-1 in favor of San Francisco, and the 31-10 49er victory in Dallas Thanksgiving Day was the most lopsided result of the lot.

San Francisco sacked Dallas quarterbacks nine times in that game —their most effective pass rush in a season that saw the 49ers top the NFL in sackings with 46.

One change is assured in the starting lineup Coach Dick Nolan said he would announce today. Strong safety Mel Phillips fractured his left shoulder in last Saturday's game, and rookie Windlan Hall, a fourth-round draft choice from Arizona State, is the likely replacement.

Nolan said Wednesday Hall is "a tough kid with real good speed and a lot of poise. Beard, who directs the defense, commented: "You lose something when you lose a guy with seven years, but nobody on this team has any doubts about Windlan. He's a hitter."

The Cowboys will be missing linebacker Chuck Howley, at 36 their oldest player by three years. He has a knee injury and has been replaced by D. D. Lewis.

The Cowboys also face the prospect of losing All-Pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly and getting possible sub-par performances from running back Calvin Hill and cornerback Mel Renfro.

Lilly's back tightened up during practice Wednesday and he was sent to a hospital to be placed in traction to ease the pain.No one knows whether, or how long, he'll be able to play Saturday.

Renfro is nursing an injured foot. He was held out of the 23-3 drubbing Dallas suffered last week at the hands of the New York Giants. But Renfro will probably play against the 49ers.

Hill returned to the team Wednesday after a bout of flu but he still was in a weakened condition.

Raiders Heading To Steelers' Showdown

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders headed for Pittsburgh today to begin their playoff quest of a world football championship trophy as a companion piece for the world baseball championship the Athletics brought to Oakland in October.

It will be the fifth time in six years the Raiders have reached the playoffs, but only once did they get all the way to the championship game, only to lose. They figure they're overdue, and a victory over the Steelers Saturday might well be the biggest step of all along the way.

"I'll be against an odd defense about 20 per cent of the time," said Otto, meaning that he will have a man lined up head to head with him and have much the same job as an offensive tackle.

Sports
Independent-Journal, 31
Thursday, December 21, 1972

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica said Wednesday that Otto "is the most important man in our offensive line. He calls the blocking and helps control the middle."

Upshaw, a major factor in the success of the Raider running game, expects to face a fresh man on nearly every play.

"The Steelers alternate Ben McGee and Ernie Holmes at the job — both about equal and both pretty good," said Upshaw, whose blocking helped fullback Marv Hubbard set a club rushing record of 1,100 yards.

"They'll try to wear me out before the day's over." Uzshaw said. I think they alternate so as to take some of the blocking pressure off Joe Greene. Both do a lot of illegal slapping and stuff like that."

One reason for Upshaw's effective blocking is that he is strong enough to run over an opponent without leaving his feet.

"If you throw your body, you're selling yourself out," Upshaw explained. "If you can knock him down and still hold your feet, you can get somebody else. That's happened on three touchdowns this year."

Brotherly Love In Prep Baseball

Oh brother!

A few days ago there was a piece in this corner about brother acts on the Redwood High School basketball team. The school's athletic director and baseball coach, Al Endriss, said he felt he had a list of brother acts in varsity baseball through the years that couldn't be topped.

Four times Endriss had brothers playing on the same baseball teams. First time this happened was 1960 with Rick and Barry Basco. I understand their friends got together to form the first Rick-Barry fan club. (I just couldn't resist that.) Anyway, Rick Basco went on to win All-Marin County Athletic League honors in 1962.

In 1967 there were Bill and Rusty Poole who followed brother Don by four years. Don Mantooth (class of '69) and brother Mike ('70) were teammates, as were Jim and Phil Bacigalupi last season.

Two sets of brothers were all-league: Mike (1962) and Pete (1970) Conney and Russell (1964) and Roger (1970) Smith.

Then there were Terry ('63) and Blair ('71) Jarcik; Jim ('62) and John ('72) Troppmann; Bob ('62) and Jim ('67) Scoville; Stan ('63) and Vic ('67) Saulenas; Steve ('65) and Rob ('69) Dorinson' Don ('65) and Ken ('69) Roby; Dennis ('69) and Gary ('71) Schunk; Joe ('70) and Jim ('72) Caito, and Ross ('70) and Matt ('72) Gondak.

RETURN TRIP: Ex-Olympic Club athletic star Percy Locey, now in private business in Oregon, was one of the players in the first shrine East-West Football game back in 1925. He'll be back in San Francisco Dec. 30 for the 48th East-West game — and he'll be bringing a group of 100 people from Oregon with him.

BRUCE KILBY, who missed a few games because of injuries, will be back in the Arizona State University starting lineup Saturday when the Sun Devils, champs of the Western Athletic Conference for the fourth straight year, play Missouri of the Big Eight Conference in the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz. Kilby, a 6-foot-2, 196-pound senior who prepped at Terra Linda High, is one of the stars of the Arizona State defensive team. For instance: in the team's nationally televised season opener against Houston, Kilby, a linebacker, had a hand in 10 tackles, eight unassisted and blocked a punt which set up a Sun Devil touchdown in a wild 33-28 victory. Saturday's game will be televised, 5 p.m. on channels 2 and 40.

WHEN ANTHONY DAVIS of USC ran back those Notre Dame kickoffs for 97 and 96 yards, two of his six touchdowns that warm (in Los Angeles) Dec. 2 day, he broke a record long held by a man who used to excite Kezar Stadium fans with his running. Ollie Matson, the University of San Francisco superstar of the past, had run back kickoffs 94 and 90 yards against Fordham in 1951.

49ers Place Six Players On Bowl Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Western Division champion San Francisco Forty Niners and Eastern Division runner-up Dallas Cowboys, who meet Saturday in one of the four National Football League playoff games, placed six men each on the National Football Conference All-Star team announced Wednesday.

The NFC squad will meet the American Football Conference all-stars in the Pro Bowl game in Texas Stadium, Jan. 21.

Named from the Cowboys to the offensive team were Rayfield Wright at tackle, John Niland at guard and Calvin Hill at running back. On defense from Dallas are Bob Lilly at tackle, Mel Renfro at safety and Cornell Green at cornerback.

Joining Hill in the backfield are quarterbacks Bill Kilmer of Washington and Norm Snead of the New York Giants along with running backs Larry Brown of

HICKLIN RETIRING

College Of Marin Losing A Friend

By RON LENT

The 62-year-old Novatan has taped countless athlete appendages, accounted for an endless array of sports equipment, and served as an integral part in Tars' sports for 14 years and nine months.

During this period, commencing April 1, 1958, Hicklin encountered numerous experiences, but the one incident standing out in his mind involves the basketball team.

"One year," he recalled, "we were going to the state basketball tourney in Santa Maria. Along the way, we stopped at a gas station. The attendant asked us if we were a basketball team. When we said yes, he watched us as we got off the bus. After seeing we were a pretty small team, he said: 'Well, you've got one tall guy there.' And our driver then said: 'Hell, he's (Cal Riemcke, 6-foot-4) our coach!' "

"We were so small, they called us the Mighty Midgets."

In reminiscing about his College of Marin career, Hicklin, a native of Wapello, Iowa, mentioned several names, notably: Doug Dressler, Mike Waters and Ron Blum.

When discussing Dressler, Hicklin said: "I never expected Doug to be a fullback. He played tackle for us, and he was a good one. He was also a fine wrestler. . .I just never took him as a fullback. Hicklin didn't but Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown did, and Dressler went on to become the starting fullback with the National Football League club this past season.

Mike Waters was another Tar football star who stuck out in Hicklin's memory. "He was a small college All-American in 1958. He was a fine, aggressive ballplayer" and a two-way end.

Although Waters was versatile, Hicklin believed that "Ron Blum was the best all-around athlete I encountered here. He was 6-foot-2 and weighed 170. He was slender but very strong. Blum was one of the best (football) passers I've seen at Marin. He was also the center on the 'Mighty Midgets,' and a shortstop on the baseball team."

While groping for superlatives in describing Tar athletes, Hicklin reserved a few for the coaching staff.

"We have one of the best coaching staffs anywhere in the state on the junior college level. The coaches do a real good job with the available material" — particularly in basketball.

Through the years, Rievcke and current coach John Panagakis have fashioned a winning tradition in Kentfield.

"Reimcke was the old pro, but Panagakis is young and coming. Panagakis coaches a great deal like Riemcke," Hicklin pointed out in referring to the Tars' penchant for one-on-one defenses.

Five Raiders On All-Stars' First Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five Oakland Raiders were named to the United Press International 1972 American Football Conference All-Star team announced yesterday. They were: wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, tackle Bob Brown, guard Gene Upshaw, tight end Raymond Chester and cornerback Willie Brown.

Three Raiders were named to the second team and six others were given honorable mention listings. The three second team members were tackle Art Shell, quarterback Daryl Lamonica, and linebacker Phil Villapiano.

The New York Jets' Joe Namath, who tied for the league lead in touchdown passes with 19 after being idled two years by injuries, was named at quarterback, outpolling Oakland's Daryle Lamonica by six votes.

NIXON LOSES

Blackouts Kept By Czar Rozelle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the urgings of President Nixon, the National Football League playoff games during the next two weekends will not be shown on local television in the cities where they are played.

Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle rejected Wednesday the request of the President to lift the television blackout in the playoff cities.

Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who negotiated with the NFL Tuesday and Wednesday on behalf of Nixon, said in a statement: "I have advised Mr. Rozelle that as a result of the league's decision, the Nixon administration would strongly urge the new Congress to reexamine the entire anti-trust exemption statute and seek legislation that is more in keeping with the public interest."

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said President Nixon agrees wholeheartedly with Kleindienst's statement.

Pro football received an anti-trust exemption in 1961 when Congress specifically permitted any joint agreement by organized professional team sports for the sale of television rights which permitted pro football to offer its games to a TV network as a package instead of individual stations.

In 1966, legislation again was passed to permit the merger of the American and National Football Leagues into the current NFL and the television exemption was extended to the combined leagues.

The debate over the blackout has been the subject of congressional scrutiny for the past few years and came to the forefront last fall before the Senate communications subcommittee chaired by Sen. John O. Pastore.

The Rhode Island Democrat told Rozelle that unless something was worked out for lifting the TV ban on regular season games, in addition to the playoffs, he would push ahead with a bill similar to that requested by Nixon.

The Justice Department statement, supported by Nixon, could add new strength to his commitment.

Rozelle said he didn't want to see pro football, as had pro boxing, become what he called a "studio show."

He aid in a statement that six of the last 10 conference championship games have not been sold out and that since 1967, when playoff games were begun, only 11 of 17 were played to capacity.

VS. NORTH STARS

Seal Leads Continue To Fizzle

OAKLAND (UPI) —Blowing leads has become commonplace with the California Golden Seals.

They led twice in the opening period Wednesday night but eventually fell 5-2 to the Minnesota North Stars who snapped a five-game losing streak on the road.

After Dennis Hextall tallied the only goal in the second period to make it 4-2 Minnesota, things got interesting pugilistically but not artistically for the Seals.

California defenseman Bob Stewart and Lou Nanne got two minutes each when they bumped each other around at 5:08 of the middle period. Six minutes later, Stewart began trading punches with Bill Goldsworthy.

That's when Minnesota's Judge Drouin decided to get into the act. He entered the melee between Stewart and Goldsworth and was banished with a game misconduct much to the delight of the 3,194 home fans.

College Grid Stars In Hospital Visit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — College football stars from both East and West Wednesday came to talk with the children at Shriner's Hospital, which has received $7 million from the 47 previous Shrine battles.

The annual visit by the strong-legged athletes to the crippled but cheerful infants at the hospital produced the usual smiles on the faces of all concerned.

Joe Ingaychock, defensive back from Temple, held Mike Siani of Villanova (and now the Oakland Raiders) to one reception in their confrontation last season. But Wednesday, he was faked out by a little cutie named Wendy. They played "Snoopy and the Red Baron" in which the trick is to trap the right color ball rolling down a chute. Wendy had far too many moves for him.

Dennis Johnson, 265-pounder from Delaware who has the pro scouts drooling, spent the afternoon with Heather, who showed interest in his camera. So he told her how it worked.

Brad Van Pelt, the much-honored Michigan State safety man, baseball pitcher and basketball player, and his attactive wife, Mary, spent most of the time with a little blonde cutie.

Idaho center Ken Muhlbeier commented that "you just can't walk through places like this, and see kids in beds and braces, without thinking of your own child (he has a son who is almost two). You look at them and think 'it might be mine.' It really makes you think."

Today, the 10 days of workouts begin leading up to the Dec. 30 clash at Candlestick Park.

Warriors Have 'Find' In Charlie Johnson

He was a sixth-round draft pick in 1971 but didn't even bother to try out, preferring to spend a year in Mexico.

Fortunately for the Warriors, he showed up in 1972 and now he keeps turning games around.

He scored two key baskets on tip-ins over players nearly a foot taller and tallied 15 points in 27 minutes Tuesday night as the Warriors nipped Boston 115112 in what is being hailed as one of the team's greatest games.

Johnson could even be moving toward a starting berth.

Coach Al Attles has tried veteran Mahdi Abdul-Rahman, Jim Barnett and Fritz Williams at the other spot along with sharp-shooting Jeff Mullins, but Attles says Johnson may make him "re-assess" the situation.

One change is assured in the starting lineup Coach Dick Nolan said he would announce today. Strong safety Mel Phillips fractured his left shoulder in last Saturday's game, and rookie Windlan Hall, a fourth-round draft choice from Arizona State, is the likely replacement.

Nolan said Wednesday Hall is "a tough kid with real good speed and a lot of poise. Beard, who directs the defense, commented: "You lose something when you lose a guy with seven years, but nobody on this team has any doubts about Windlan. He's a hitter."

The Cowboys will be missing linebacker Chuck Howley, at 36 their oldest player by three years. He has a knee injury and has been replaced by D. D. Lewis.

The Cowboys also face the prospect of losing All-Pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly and getting possible sub-par performances from running back Calvin Hill and cornerback Mel Renfro.

Lilly's back tightened up during practice Wednesday and he was sent to a hospital to be placed in traction to ease the pain.No one knows whether, or how long, he'll be able to play Saturday.

Renfro is nursing an injured foot. He was held out of the 23-3 drubbing Dallas suffered last week at the hands of the New York Giants. But Renfro will probably play against the 49ers.

Hill returned to the team Wednesday after a bout of flu but he still was in a weakened condition.

Raiders Heading To Steelers' Showdown

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders headed for Pittsburgh today to begin their playoff quest of a world football championship trophy as a companion piece for the world baseball championship the Athletics brought to Oakland in October.

It will be the fifth time in six years the Raiders have reached the playoffs, but only once did they get all the way to the championship game, only to lose. They figure they're overdue, and a victory over the Steelers Saturday might well be the biggest step of all along the way.

A pair of veteran 255-pound neighbors on the Raiders' offensive line-center Jim Otto and guard Gene Upshaw — are key men in the Oakland attack. Against the tough Steeler defense, these All-Pros anticipate the severest of challenges.

"I'll be against an odd defense about 20 per cent of the time," said Otto, meaning that he will have a man lined up head to head with him and have much the same job as an offensive tackle.

Independent-Journal, 31
Thursday, December 21, 1972

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica said Wednesday that Otto "is the most important man in our offensive line. He calls the blocking and helps control the middle."

Upshaw, a major factor in the success of the Raider running game, expects to face a fresh man on nearly every play.

"The Steelers alternate Ben McGee and Ernie Holmes at the job — both about equal and both pretty good," said Upshaw, whose blocking helped fullback Marv Hubbard set a club rushing record of 1,100 yards.

"They'll try to wear me out before the day's over." Uzshaw said. I think they alternate so as to take some of the blocking pressure off Joe Greene. Both do a lot of illegal slapping and stuff like that."

One reason for Upshaw's effective blocking is that he is strong enough to run over an opponent without leaving his feet.

"If you throw your body, you're selling yourself out," Upshaw explained. "If you can knock him down and still hold your feet, you can get somebody else. That's happened on three touchdowns this year."

Brotherly Love In Prep Baseball

Oh brother!

A few days ago there was a piece in this corner about brother acts on the Redwood High School basketball team. The school's athletic director and baseball coach, Al Endriss, said he felt he had a list of brother acts in varsity baseball through the years that couldn't be topped.

Four times Endriss had brothers playing on the same baseball teams. First time this happened was 1960 with Rick and Barry Basco. I understand their friends got together to form the first Rick-Barry fan club. (I just couldn't resist that.) Anyway, Rick Basco went on to win All-Marin County Athletic League honors in 1962.

In 1967 there were Bill and Rusty Poole who followed brother Don by four years. Don Mantooth (class of '69) and brother Mike ('70) were teammates, as were Jim and Phil Bacigalupi last season.

Two sets of brothers were all-league: Mike (1962) and Pete (1970) Conney and Russell (1964) and Roger (1970) Smith.

Then there were Terry ('63) and Blair ('71) Jarcik; Jim ('62) and John ('72) Troppmann; Bob ('62) and Jim ('67) Scoville; Stan ('63) and Vic ('67) Saulenas; Steve ('65) and Rob ('69) Dorinson' Don ('65) and Ken ('69) Roby; Dennis ('69) and Gary ('71) Schunk; Joe ('70) and Jim ('72) Caito, and Ross ('70) and Matt ('72) Gondak.

RETURN TRIP: Ex-Olympic Club athletic star Percy Locey, now in private business in Oregon, was one of the players in the first shrine East-West Football game back in 1925. He'll be back in San Francisco Dec. 30 for the 48th East-West game — and he'll be bringing a group of 100 people from Oregon with him.

BRUCE KILBY, who missed a few games because of injuries, will be back in the Arizona State University starting lineup Saturday when the Sun Devils, champs of the Western Athletic Conference for the fourth straight year, play Missouri of the Big Eight Conference in the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz. Kilby, a 6-foot-2, 196-pound senior who prepped at Terra Linda High, is one of the stars of the Arizona State defensive team. For instance: in the team's nationally televised season opener against Houston, Kilby, a linebacker, had a hand in 10 tackles, eight unassisted and blocked a punt which set up a Sun Devil touchdown in a wild 33-28 victory. Saturday's game will be televised, 5 p.m. on channels 2 and 40.

WHEN ANTHONY DAVIS of USC ran back those Notre Dame kickoffs for 97 and 96 yards, two of his six touchdowns that warm (in Los Angeles) Dec. 2 day, he broke a record long held by a man who used to excite Kezar Stadium fans with his running. Ollie Matson, the University of San Francisco superstar of the past, had run back kickoffs 94 and 90 yards against Fordham in 1951.

49ers Place Six Players On Bowl Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Western Division champion San Francisco Forty Niners and Eastern Division runner-up Dallas Cowboys, who meet Saturday in one of the four National Football League playoff games, placed six men each on the National Football Conference All-Star team announced Wednesday.

The NFC squad will meet the American Football Conference all-stars in the Pro Bowl game in Texas Stadium, Jan. 21.

Named from the Cowboys to the offensive team were Rayfield Wright at tackle, John Niland at guard and Calvin Hill at running back. On defense from Dallas are Bob Lilly at tackle, Mel Renfro at safety and Cornell Green at cornerback.

Joining Hill in the backfield are quarterbacks Bill Kilmer of Washington and Norm Snead of the New York Giants along with running backs Larry Brown of

VS. NORTH STARS

Seal Leads Continue To Fizzle

OAKLAND (UPI) —Blowing leads has become commonplace with the California Golden Seals.

They led twice in the opening period Wednesday night but eventually fell 5-2 to the Minnesota North Stars who snapped a five-game losing streak on the road.

After Dennis Hextall tallied the only goal in the second period to make it 4-2 Minnesota, things got interesting pugilistically but not artistically for the Seals.

California defenseman Bob Stewart and Lou Nanne got two minutes each when they bumped each other around at 5:08 of the middle period. Six minutes later, Stewart began trading punches with Bill Goldsworthy.

That's when Minnesota's Judge Drouin decided to get into the act. He entered the melee between Stewart and Goldsworth and was banished with a game misconduct much to the delight of the 3,194 home fans.

HICKLIN RETIRING

College Of Marin Losing A Friend

By RON LENT

The 62-year-old Novatan has taped countless athlete appendages, accounted for an endless array of sports equipment, and served as an integral part in Tars' sports for 14 years and nine months.

During this period, commencing April 1, 1958, Hicklin encountered numerous experiences, but the one incident standing out in his mind involves the basketball team.

"One year," he recalled, "we were going to the state basketball tourney in Santa Maria. Along the way, we stopped at a gas station. The attendant asked us if we were a basketball team. When we said yes, he watched us as we got off the bus. After seeing we were a pretty small team, he said: 'Well, you've got one tall guy there.' And our driver then said: 'Hell, he's (Cal Riemcke, 6-foot-4) our coach!' "

"We were so small, they called us the Mighty Midgets."

In reminiscing about his College of Marin career, Hicklin, a native of Wapello, Iowa, mentioned several names, notably: Doug Dressler, Mike Waters and Ron Blum.

When discussing Dressler, Hicklin said: "I never expected Doug to be a fullback. He played tackle for us, and he was a good one. He was also a fine wrestler. . .I just never took him as a fullback. Hicklin didn't but Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown did, and Dressler went on to become the starting fullback with the National Football League club this past season.

Mike Waters was another Tar football star who stuck out in Hicklin's memory. "He was a small college All-American in 1958. He was a fine, aggressive ballplayer" and a two-way end.

Although Waters was versatile, Hicklin believed that "Ron Blum was the best all-around athlete I encountered here. He was 6-foot-2 and weighed 170. He was slender but very strong. Blum was one of the best (football) passers I've seen at Marin. He was also the center on the 'Mighty Midgets,' and a shortstop on the baseball team."

While groping for superlatives in describing Tar athletes, Hicklin reserved a few for the coaching staff.

"We have one of the best coaching staffs anywhere in the state on the junior college level. The coaches do a real good job with the available material" — particularly in basketball.

Through the years, Rievcke and current coach John Panagakis have fashioned a winning tradition in Kentfield.

"Reimcke was the old pro, but Panagakis is young and coming. Panagakis coaches a great deal like Riemcke," Hicklin pointed out in referring to the Tars' penchant for one-on-one defenses.

College Grid Stars In Hospital Visit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — College football stars from both East and West Wednesday came to talk with the children at Shriner's Hospital, which has received $7 million from the 47 previous Shrine battles.

The annual visit by the strong-legged athletes to the crippled but cheerful infants at the hospital produced the usual smiles on the faces of all concerned.

Joe Ingaychock, defensive back from Temple, held Mike Siani of Villanova (and now the Oakland Raiders) to one reception in their confrontation last season. But Wednesday, he was faked out by a little cutie named Wendy. They played "Snoopy and the Red Baron" in which the trick is to trap the right color ball rolling down a chute. Wendy had far too many moves for him.

Dennis Johnson, 265-pounder from Delaware who has the pro scouts drooling, spent the afternoon with Heather, who showed interest in his camera. So he told her how it worked.

Brad Van Pelt, the much-honored Michigan State safety man, baseball pitcher and basketball player, and his attactive wife, Mary, spent most of the time with a little blonde cutie.

Idaho center Ken Muhlbeier commented that "you just can't walk through places like this, and see kids in beds and braces, without thinking of your own child (he has a son who is almost two). You look at them and think 'it might be mine.' It really makes you think."

Today, the 10 days of workouts begin leading up to the Dec. 30 clash at Candlestick Park.

Warriors Have 'Find' In Charlie Johnson

He was a sixth-round draft pick in 1971 but didn't even bother to try out, preferring to spend a year in Mexico.

Fortunately for the Warriors, he showed up in 1972 and now he keeps turning games around.

He scored two key baskets on tip-ins over players nearly a foot taller and tallied 15 points in 27 minutes Tuesday night as the Warriors nipped Boston 115112 in what is being hailed as one of the team's greatest games.

Johnson could even be moving toward a starting berth.

Coach Al Attles has tried veteran Mahdi Abdul-Rahman, Jim Barnett and Fritz Williams at the other spot along with sharp-shooting Jeff Mullins, but Attles says Johnson may make him "re-assess" the situation.

Five Raiders On All-Stars' First Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five Oakland Raiders were named to the United Press International 1972 American Football Conference All-Star team announced yesterday. They were: wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, tackle Bob Brown, guard Gene Upshaw, tight end Raymond Chester and cornerback Willie Brown.

Three Raiders were named to the second team and six others were given honorable mention listings. The three second team members were tackle Art Shell, quarterback Daryl Lamonica, and linebacker Phil Villapiano.

The New York Jets' Joe Namath, who tied for the league lead in touchdown passes with 19 after being idled two years by injuries, was named at quarterback, outpolling Oakland's Daryle Lamonica by six votes.

NIXON LOSES

Blackouts Kept By Czar Rozelle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the urgings of President Nixon, the National Football League playoff games during the next two weekends will not be shown on local television in the cities where they are played.

Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle rejected Wednesday the request of the President to lift the television blackout in the playoff cities.

Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who negotiated with the NFL Tuesday and Wednesday on behalf of Nixon, said in a statement: "I have advised Mr. Rozelle that as a result of the league's decision, the Nixon administration would strongly urge the new Congress to re-examine the entire anti-trust exemption statute and seek legislation that is more in keeping with the public interest."

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said President Nixon agrees wholeheartedly with Kleindienst's statement.

Pro football received an anti-trust exemption in 1961 when Congress specifically permitted any joint agreement by organized professional team sports for the sale of television rights which permitted pro football to offer its games to a TV network as a package instead of individual stations.

In 1966, legislation again was passed to permit the merger of the American and National Football Leagues into the current NFL and the television exemption was extended to the combined leagues.

The debate over the blackout has been the subject of congressional scrutiny for the past few years and came to the forefront last fall before the Senate communications subcommittee chaired by Sen. John O. Pastore.

The Rhode Island Democrat told Rozelle that unless something was worked out for lifting the TV ban on regular season games, in addition to the playoffs, he would push ahead with a bill similar to that requested by Nixon.

The Justice Department statement, supported by Nixon, could add new strength to his commitment.

Rozelle said he didn't want to see pro football, as had pro boxing, become what he called a "studio show."

He aid in a statement that six of the last 10 conference championship games have not been sold out and that since 1967, when playoff games were begun, only 11 of 17 were played to capacity.

Bob Brown of Oakland and Winston Hill of the Jets were easy winners at offensive tackle and Larry Little of Miami, one of five Dolphins named to the first team, and Gene Upshaw of Oakland won honors at guard.

Mean Joe Greene, Pittsburgh's hard-charging tackle, headed the defensive team and was the leading vote-getter in the balloting, gaining 38 votes. Teammate Dwight White won honors at one defensive end slot and Miami's Bill Stanfill was named at the other end. Mike Reid of Cincinnati was an easy winner at the other defensive tackle slot.

Willie Lanier of Kansas City was named at middle linebacker while Pittsburgh's Andy Russell and Baltimore's Ted Hendricks earned linebacker honors. Willie Brown of Oakland, almost a fixture at cornerback, was joined by a newcomer, Robert James of Buffalo, while Miami's safety tandem of Dick Anderson and Jake Scott were easy winners at their postions.

2 Changes Planned In Baseball

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — The possibility of limited inter-league play and designated pinch-hitters for the 1973 major league baseball season is matter club owners will hammer out at a joint meeting next month.

In an apparent effort to stimulate interest, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Wednesday that club owners would take under consideration natural rivals opposing each other for not more than six games for 1973. The proposal would limit inter-league play to such neighboring teams as the Mets and Yankees in New York, the Cubs and White Sox in Chicago, the California Angels and Los Angeles Dodgers, and the St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City Royals.

Olympics

STATELINE, Nev. — The Tahoe Regional Planning Agency has desked for further study a resolution endorsing the idea of holding the Olympic Games at Tahoe in 1976.

Five members of the board Wednesday abstained from voting, claiming they didn't have time to study the proposal and that it was too soon to make a decision.

Walter MacKenzie, the author of the resolution, said the Olympic bid must be submitted to the Games Committee by Tuesday.

He said, however, he didn't think the lack of support from the agency would hurt the effort to bring the Games back.

MacKenzie and the board's newest member, Jim Henry, supervisor elect of Placer County, were the only two who voted for the resolution.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Spot Of Wind

By LEE TREVINO

If the wind never blew, golf might be a lot easier game, but it wouldn't be as much fun . You can assume that a crosswind makes a difference of half a club in the length of a shot.

On a 150-yard shot, normally a seven-iron for me, I'll hit a six-iron into the wind. If the wind is behind me I'll swing a smooth eight.

Always check the tops of the trees for movement, particularly when you're protected by them from the wind. Once a ball gets beyond them the wind will start working on it.

There are times to hook into a wind blowing from the left. From 150 yards I'll hit my seven-iron hard. A gentle grip with the left hand and a firm right hand will help you hook into a wind from the left.

Sonics' Nissalke On Way Out As Coach?

SEATTLE (UPI) —Rumors on the coaching future of Tom Nissalke of the Seattle Supersonics of the National Basketball Association were a dime a dozen today.

Both Seattle daily newspapers, the Seattle Times and Seattle Post-Intelligencer, indicated Wednesday Nissalke may be on the way out.

Nissalke said Wednesday night at Omaha following the Sonics' 121-110 loss to the Kansas City-Omaha Kings that he had no indication his job was in jeopardy.

He said Seattle owner Sam Schulman had not been in contact with him and a report in the Times that he may be fired before the end of the year was "news to me."

"He hasn't been in contact with me," said the first-year NBA coach who earned Coach of the Year honors in the American Basketball Association at Dallas last year. "This is the first I've heard about it."

The Times indicated Elgin Baylor, former Seattle University All-America player and later a pro star, may succeed Nissalke as the Sonics head coach.

At Los Angeles, Baylor reported he had just returned from a trip and had had no personal contact with Shulman.

No Neighbors At Bear Valley

By CHARLIE COANE

"Ski Bare" is a phrase coined several years ago to help promote one of the Sierra's newest resorts, Bear Valley at Mt. Reba. This, coupled with a photo of a girl with skis on (that's it), presented a very remembered piece of advertising.

Bear is all by itself — about 50 miles up Highway 4 from Angel's Camp, whose claim to fame is that it is the site of the World Frog Jumping Championships every year in May. If you're at Bear Valley, you don't try out other areas nearby, because there are no areas nearby. But then again, there doesn't have to be. Bear has a bit of everything.

This is the sixth season for the Mother Lode resort and it's doing quite well. The facts and figures are that Bear has five double chairlifts, two rope tows, 2,200 foot vertical drop and a lift capacity of approximately 6,000 skiers per hour. An educated guess (mine) would say that the skiing terrain is about the size of Alpine Meadows, give or take a foot or two. Plans on the books call for many more lifts and much more skiing area. But those things don't come easy these days. The ecological red tape is overwhelming. But Bear does plan one or two new chairs before next season.

Bear Valley gets lots of snow; more than most Sierra resorts. The set-up is very nice at Bear with the lodge and other overnight facilities located a few miles from the slopes. The utilities are underground and the whole place has a very nice atmosphere. To get to the slopes from the lodge area, you simply jump on a bus that shuttles to and from — no parking problems and "leave the driving to us." No one forces you to do that. You can drive if you want to. Connected to the lodge is a heated outdoor pool, saunas and Jacuzzi. If you don't like that, you can play tennis. That's right, in the middle of winter on a "bubbled" tennis court. One of California's top players, Barry MacKay of Ross, heads up that angle of Bear Valley.

Up at the slopes, the day lodge improvements this season have doubled the number of skiers it can accommodate. One of skiing's best known ski school directors, Peter Brinkman, is new at Bear this season. Peter has experience at many top resorts in the United States. His school, which leans toward the French technique, uses the GLM approach. Bear is also one of the few areas that teaches cross country skiing this season. It's in the development stage and perhaps a unique idea would be to offer a combo cross country alpine skiing day.

The NASTAR pargram is very heavy at Bear; it's one of the top participating areas in the country.

The area's best known event is the Celebrity Pro-Am weekend, this season being the third. On the weekend of March 2-4, the top pro racers will descend upon Bear — including Spider Sabich and probably the incomparable Jean-Claude Killy. A flock of movie stars and other personalities join in, and it's all a pretty wild weekend.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two Atlantic Coast Conference football teams are using freshmen quarterbacks this fall. They are North Carolina State's Dave Buckey and Duke's Hal Spears.

Four Teen-Agers In Northern Cal Tennis Tourney

Four Marin teen-agers have been invited to the Northern California Tennis Association's 11th annual Round Robin Junior Tournament Invitational Dec. 26-28 at the Fremont Hills Country Club in Los Altos Hills.

Participants will include one boy and four girls from Marin. Cary Standsbury of Tiburon will compete in the boys 14 category. Bea Kilgore and Sue Beatty of Tiburon will be in 18 and 16 brackets respectively for girls. In the 14-year-old bracket are Diane DeMartini of Greenbrae and Carrie Zarraonandia of San Rafael.

Juniors in the first seven rankings in the Northern California Tennis Association are invited.

dedication to work in football through the years."

Hicklin is apparently well versed when analyzing football. He was a standout halfback in the single wing attack of the Wapello Higp School Indians. "We used to get about 250 fans out there," he noted. After completing his three-year prep career in 1928, Hicklin began a 20-year Army stint that concluded in 1957. "I was in and out several times," he continued, "before getting out for good (in 1957)."

After leaving the service, Hicklin began searching for a job. "I answered an ad and applied for this job. And I got it."

He picked up the trainer skills while on the job, and his six years of army supplies experience put him in good stead for the Marin duties.

"I did lots of studying and got plenty of help from coaches when I got started. I made a lot of friends and I enjoyed it."

But all this will be but memories by Dec. 31, so Hicklin has found other interests to fill his winter days.

"I'm moving to Oroville next month, and I'll be living out of a mobile trailer I just bought. I'll be doing a lot of fishing and traveling."

He will also find time for shooting his bow and arrow. "I've been doing this since 1959 and I enjoy it. . .but my son (Merle, 30) is much better." With such a busy schedule set for his retirement years, Hicklin can be believed when he says: "I'll keep busy."

He always has.

Won On Wild Pitch

CINCINNATI (AP) — People will always forget that Hal McRawe was at bat with two out and runners on first and third for the Cincinnati Reds. All they will remember is that Bob Moose of Pittsburgh made a wild pitch in the bottom of the ninth and Denis Menke scored from third base. That run gave the Reds a 4-3 victory in the fifth and deciding National League pennant playoff game of the 1972 season in Cincinnati on Oct. 11.

PREP BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

Drake Bidding For Title

By LEW CODDINGTON
(Third in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

When Bob Fitzhenry resigned as Drake High School basketball coach in a surprise move in March, he placed the pressure squarely on the shoulders of his successor, Pyte Hayward.

"I expect the (varsity) team to win the championship," Fitzhenry declared. He said that was a factor in his decision to quit. As North Bay Officials Association coordinator, he assigns officials to Drake's games (and others), and he didn't want any conflict-of-interest charges to mar the Pirates' season.

Hayward inherits a team laden with talented seniors who saw vast amounts of playing time as underclassmen last year. To this he has added players who starred for his junior varsity team a year ago, which was unbeaten in the Marin County Athletic League.

The result is an astonishing amount of depth which enables the Pirates to play two full platoons without any noticeable dropoff in efficiency. It also produces a competition for spots so fierce that Tom Carlisle, a 6-foot-4 forward who was honorable mention all-league last year, is on the second platoon this season.

The Pirates' starting center is 6-foot-4 John Channell, a powerful offensive rebounder who was named the most valuable player as Drake won its own invitational tournament for the first time since 1965.

"Channell really should be playing forward," Hayward said, "but we need him underneath." Assisting him is 6-1 forward Greg Shaw, and their presence under the boards illustrates Drake's major problem: lack of height. Only three players on the 15-man roster exceed six feet.

Lurking in the corners are 6-foot Eddie Joe Chavez, a crowd-pleasing junior who is the son of former Tamalpais High coach Ed Chavez, and 5-11 John (Skipper) Schmitz, a J.V. player last year. Both behave more like guards than forwards.

Pencilled in for just as much playing time as these five, however, are guards Jeff Guidi, Don Asay and Rick Herbert (beginning to play more while recovering from a football thigh ailment), and forwards Dan Trimble, Bruce Katuna and Channell. Guidi, Asay and Katuna are ex-J.V.'s.

The Pirates run a fast-break offense, substitute freely, and tend to wear their opponents down in the second half. They averaged 71 points a game through their first six encounters, five of which they won.

At the very least, the Pirates should improve markedly over last year's record of 7-7 in the MCAL (good for fourth place) and 14-13 overall. At the most, they could annex the title for the first time since 1967.

On July 27, 1972, General Radio Co. tested a '73 LTD against an airborne glider. Both at 60 mph and with identical sound level meters. The result: the Ford was quieter. But the new LTD is more than just quiet. It is well made from its power front disc brakes, power steering and automatic transmission, standard equipment, to its luxurious, comfortable, roomy interior. There are 16 new Ford models to choose from and each will convince you that quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

Ford, the company that built the first basic, solid, reliable car seventy years ago—has built today's basic, solid reliable car: Pinto. It's become America's top selling economy car for more reasons than economy. Here are some of those reasons: A 1600 cc. engine developed and perfected in over 10 years of actual driving. Rack-and-pinion steering. Solid welded body, electrocoated to fight corrosion. 4-speed transmission—lubed for life. Everything we've learned in seventy years of car making—all the basics—we build into every Pinto Wagon, Runabout and Sedan. When you get back to basics, you get back to Pinto.

On July 27, 1972, General Radio Co. tested a '73 LTD against an airborne glider. Both at 60 mph and with identical sound level meters. The result: the Ford was quieter. But the new LTD is more than just quiet. It is well made from its power front disc brakes, power steering and automatic transmission, standard equipment, to its luxurious, comfortable, roomy interior. There are 16 new Ford models to choose from and each will convince you that quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

A '73 Torino rode so smooth, a high wire artist kept balance on a road of 2x4's.

Chances are you won't try to balance yourself on top of your new Torino. But, when you're riding inside, you'll still appreciate Torino's refined suspension—because it helps to cushion bumps, absorb road vibrations and reduce body sway. You feel solidly in control while you ride in comfort and luxury. The solid mid-size Torino. Smooth riding, strong and quiet.

Ford, the company that built the first basic, solid, reliable car seventy years ago—has built today's basic, solid reliable car: Pinto. It's become America's top selling economy car for more reasons than economy. Here are some of those reasons: A 1600 cc. engine developed and perfected in over 10 years of actual driving. Rack-and-pinion steering. Solid welded body, electrocoated to fight corrosion. 4-speed transmission—lubed for life. Everything we've learned in seventy years of car making—all the basics—we build into every Pinto Wagon, Runabout and Sedan. When you get back to basics, you get back to Pinto.

There are 39 new models to choose from.

And every 1973 Ford, Thunderbird, Torino, Mustang, Maverick and Pinto—comes equipped with new energy-absorbing bumpers and steel guard rails in all side doors. Steel-belted radial ply tires and AM/FM stereo radios are options on all models. Test-drive these new Fords at your Ford Dealer's now.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Strange Feeling—Get Bitten By Your Own Teeth

I had a strange feeling during the recent playoff in Lancaster, Pa., to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship. My team was soundly beaten by a team that included Michael Becker, who learned to play bridge by reading my "First Book of Bridge." It feels a bit odd to get bitten by your own teeth! Young Michael, son of B. Jay Becker (also a member of the winning team), had no chance to shine on the hand shown today because Edgar Kaplan, far behind in the match, took a shot at game and then found a way to make it.

STATE OF SCORE

Kaplan would have passed the invitational bid of two no-trump under ordinary circumstances, but the state of the score called for energetic measures. He won the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts and led the jack of clubs.

West thought for a long moment or two before taking the trick with the king. A hold-up play would shut out South's clubs, but then declarer would lead the queen of spades from dummy. He would later get to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead a spade for a finesse with dummy's ten, thus winning four spades, two hearts, one club and two diamonds.

CONTINUES HEART

West actually took the first club and led another heart. East won with the queen and returned a heart to dummy's ace. Now Kaplan led the four of clubs from dummy and tried a finesse with the nine.

On a bad day this would lose to the ten, but it was a good day. West had to win with the ace of clubs. West cashed the last heart, and East signaled with the nine of spades.

QUEEN GUESSING

When West then led a spade, South wisely refused to finesse. By now he was sure of one spade, two hearts and three clubs. He needed three diamonds for his bold game contract. Who had the queen?

It seemed likely that East had started with only three cards in spades, hearts and clubs. Hence East held four diamonds, while West held only three. So declarer led the jack of diamonds from dummy and let it ride for a finesse, making his contract when the finesse worked and the clubs broke favorably.

Suit By Sierra Club Dismissed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A suit by the Sierra Club against the Forest Service and a Humboldt County lumber company has been dismissed by Federal District Judge Alfonso Zirpoli.

The order was issued Tuesday after the Sierra Club moved for voluntary dismissal.

The club brought suit in June, charging that the Forest Service and Humboldt Fir of Hoopa, violated the 1964 Wilderness Act and the National Environmental Policy Act. The Forest Service had made four timber sales on undeveloped land near the Salmon-Trinity Alps Primitive Area in Northern California. Humboldt Fir has held one of these contracts since 1965, the timber association said.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Balanced Portfolio Is Best For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We need income and hold the following New York Stock Exchange stocks: American Telephone, Columbia Gas, Eaton Corp., Greyhound, MEI, National City Lines, Surveyor Fund and United Merchants & Mfg. What can we do to increase our income? — E.P.

A. Your portfolio, valued at $62,000, returns $2,875 or 4.6 per cent. By moving out of the five lowest paying issues into bonds you will achieve a more impressive return on your capital. American Telephone, Columbia Gas and Greyhound, which yield 5.5 per cent or better, should be held for modest appreciation in the years ahead.

With the $34,000 realized from the suggested sales I would purchase: Detroit Edison 9s of 1999, Southern Counties Gas 9½s of 1995 and Vermont Yankee Atomic 9⅝s of 1998. These bonds are rated A or better by Standard & Poor's. By purchasing 10 bonds in each of these three utilities you will receive $2,812 in annual interest for an average current return of 8.4 per cent. From your total portfolio the income will be $4,612, 60 per cent more than your capital is now earning.

For readers interested in bond portfolios either for monthly income, capital gains or convertible for growth I have prepared a list which is available free of charge. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope requesting "Bond Portfolios," to Roger E. Spear care of the Independent-Journal.

Q. We invested $40,000 in farm land netting us 8 per cent interest. The land is now worth substantially more than we paid. Isn't this better than investing in stocks? — E.W.

A. From the facts you have given I would certainly agree that you have made a wise investment. However, I see no reason why an individual must make a choice between one form of investment and another. In fact it would be safe to assume that the average stockholder owns one or more pieces of real estate. There is no best form of investment, each has its own merits as well as drawbacks. What form or forms you choose would depend on both your temperament and your needs.

Bay Area's Business View Good

Bay Area's business outlook is rosy for 1973, with business executives anticipating more sales and pre-tax profits and more employment than in 1972.

That is the picture gleaned from the Bay Area Executive Poll conducted in October by the San Francisco Bay Area Council. Questionnaires were mailed to 302 of the Bay Area's senior business executives. A total of 201 replied, a 62 per cent response. The respondents included 110 who hold positions of board chairman or company president; the others were executive and senior vice presidents, regional vice presidents, and other key executives.

The executives generally anticipate improved performance for their companies and increased business activity. Only 8 per cent expect a decline in pre-tax profits next year, compared with 24 per cent this year.

Three-fourths of the senior executives expect more employment in the year ahead, but about half of them think that unemployment will remain about the same as in 1972. (Increased employment does not necessarily mean a decline in unemployment because of increases in the size of the labor force). More than 55 per cent anticipate that there will be more inflation in 1973 than in 1972. Eighty per cent feel that interest rates will rise, while 20 per cent expect them to remain about the same.

Taxes and the cost of doing business — particularly the high cost of labor — are seen as the most important economic problems currently affecting the Bay Area. The same factors showed up as major disadvantages of doing business in the area. The advantages of doing business here, in the opinion of the executives, are climate, quality of life and variety of enterprises.

Viet Peace Still Key On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices on the New York Stock Exchange moved irregularly today in moderate trading. Analysts said Vietnam peace uncertainties kept investors on the sidelines.

Wall Street observers noted the uncertainty surrounding the future of the U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia still was a worry to investors. The United States continued its intensive bombing of North Vietnam, and at Paris the North Vietnamese walked out of peace talks to protest the resumption of the bombing.

Also, Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev said the future of U.S.-Soviet relations depended on the enging of the Indochina war.

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd., was the most active issue, up 1 ½ at 29 ⅝ on 185,600 shares, including several block trades.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were lower in moderate trading. Candian Javelin, LTD. was most active issue, up 2 at 7 on 33,200 shares.

On the Big Board, Union Pacific Corp. was off 2 ½. The company has a part interest in an oil well mentioned in a Wall Street Journal story saying it may not be as big a producer as some speculators imagined.

The story quoted a brokerage as saying stock of Mountain Fuel Supply, also mentioned in the story was "well overpriced." The issue was delayed in opening.

Steels, motors, rails, chemicals, oils, airlines and aircrafts were mostly mixed in fractions.

Oiler Contract

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Balanced Portfolio Is Best For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We need income and hold the following New York Stock Exchange stocks: American Telephone, Columbia Gas, Eaton Corp., Greyhound, MEI, National City Lines, Surveyor Fund and United Merchants & Mfg. What can we do to increase our income? — E.P.

A. Your portfolio, valued at $62,000, returns $2,875 or 4.6 per cent. By moving out of the five lowest paying issues into bonds you will achieve a more impressive return on your capital. American Telephone, Columbia Gas and Greyhound, which yield 5.5 per cent or better, should be held for modest appreciation in the years ahead.

With the $34,000 realized from the suggested sales I would purchase: Detroit Edison 9s of 1999, Southern Counties Gas 9½s of 1995 and Vermont Yankee Atomic 9⅝s of 1998. These bonds are rated A or better by Standard & Poor's. By purchasing 10 bonds in each of these three utilities you will receive $2,812 in annual interest for an average current return of 8.4 per cent. From your total portfolio the income will be $4,612, 60 per cent more than your capital is now earning.

For readers interested in bond portfolios either for monthly income, capital gains or convertible for growth I have prepared a list which is available free of charge. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope requesting "Bond Portfolios," to Roger E. Spear care of the Independent-Journal.

Q. We invested $40,000 in farm land netting us 8 per cent interest. The land is now worth substantially more than we paid. Isn't this better than investing in stocks? — E.W.

A. From the facts you have given I would certainly agree that you have made a wise investment. However, I see no reason why an individual must make a choice between one form of investment and another. In fact it would be safe to assume that the average stockholder owns one or more pieces of real estate. There is no best form of investment, each has its own merits as well as drawbacks. What form or forms you choose would depend on both your temperament and your needs.

Branch Approved

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Golden West Savings and Loan Association has received permission from the California Savings and Loan Commissioner to establish its 29th office location, a branch in the Eastgate Shopping Center near the intersection of East Kings Canyon Road and Chestnut Avenue in Fresno. The office is expected to open in early 1973.

Bay Area's Business View Good

Bay Area's business outlook is rosy for 1973, with business executives anticipating more sales and pre-tax profits and more employment than in 1972.

That is the picture gleaned from the Bay Area Executive Poll conducted in October by the San Francisco Bay Area Council. Questionnaires were mailed to 302 of the Bay Area's senior business executives. A total of 201 replied, a 62 per cent response. The respondents included 110 who hold positions of board chairman or company president; the others were executive and senior vice presidents, regional vice presidents, and other key executives.

The executives generally anticipate improved performance for their companies and increased business activity. Only 8 per cent expect a decline in pre-tax profits next year, compared with 24 per cent this year.

Three-fourths of the senior executives expect more employment in the year ahead, but about half of them think that unemployment will remain about the same as in 1972. (Increased employment does not necessarily mean a decline in unemployment because of increases in the size of the labor force). More than 55 per cent anticipate that there will be more inflation in 1973 than in 1972. Eighty per cent feel that interest rates will rise, while 20 per cent expect them to remain about the same.

Taxes and the cost of doing business — particularly the high cost of labor — are seen as the most important economic problems currently affecting the Bay Area. The same factors showed up as major disadvantages of doing business in the area. The advantages of doing business here, in the opinion of the executives, are climate, quality of life and variety of enterprises.

Viet Peace Still Key On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices on the New York Stock Exchange moved irregularly today in moderate trading. Analysts said Vietnam peace uncertainties kept investors on the sidelines.

Wall Street observers noted the uncertainty surrounding the future of the U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia still was a worry to investors. The United States continued its intensive bombing of North Vietnam, and at Paris the North Vietnamese walked out of peace talks to protest the resumption of the bombing.

Also, Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev said the future of U.S.-Soviet relations depended on the enging of the Indochina war.

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd., was the most active issue, up 1 ½ at 29 ⅝ on 185,600 shares, including several block trades.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were lower in moderate trading. Candian Javelin, LTD. was most active issue, up 2 at 7 on 33,200 shares.

On the Big Board, Union Pacific Corp. was off 2 ½. The company has a part interest in an oil well mentioned in a Wall Street Journal story saying it may not be as big a producer as some speculators imagined.

The story quoted a brokerage as saying stock of Mountain Fuel Supply, also mentioned in the story was "well overpriced." The issue was delayed in opening.

Steels, motors, rails, chemicals, oils, airlines and aircrafts were mostly mixed in fractions.

U.S. Dilemma—Frustrated Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A worker jumps up from his job and assaults coworkers. Another man takes drugs or nips of whisky to allay boredom. An employable youth becomes a beggar. Workers strike against the inhumanity of a perfect assembly line.

These seemingly isolated examples are patterns occurring with alarming frequency as traditional concepts of work become obsolete, according to a 211-page report "Work in America" submitted today to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Significant numbers of American workers are dissatisfied with the quality of their working lives" because of dull, repetitive, meaningless tasks that offer little challenge or autonomy, the study said.

The report, a departmental study conducted by a panel of 10, suggested that employers modify traditional views of work to include employes in profit-sharing and decisionmaking.

"Several dozen well-documented experiments show that productivity increases and social problems decrease when workers participate in the work decisions affecting their lives and when their responsibility for their work is buttressed by participation in profits," the report said.

HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson received the report warmly at a news conference, saying, "I cannot recall any other governmental report which is more doughty, controversial and yet responsible than this one."

"Young workers appear to be as committed to the institution of work as their elders have been, but many are rebelling against the anachronistic authoritatianism of the work place," the report said.

"Older Americans suffer the ultimate job dissatisfaction: they are denied meaningful jobs even when they have demonstrable skills and are physically capable of being productive."

As an example of frustration, the report cited a case in which "a jury refused to convict an employe who killed two foremen and another worker in an auto plant on the grounds of temporary insanity, when testimony pointed up inhumane working conditions."

And the report said frustration exists even in the best of working conditions, identifying the efficiency of an assembly line as the cause of a wildcat strike in Lordstown, Ohio.

"This event highlights the role of the human element in productivity: What does it gain the employer to have a perfectly efficient assembly line, if his workers are out on strike because of the oppressive and dehumanized experience of working on the perfect line?"

The 10-member panel headed by HEW's James O'Toole, an anthropologist who formerly directed field investigations for the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, concluded its report by saying alienation from jobs is "manifested in worker alienation, alcoholism, drug addiction and other symptoms of poor mental health."

Official Says Smugglers Won't Use Bodies Again

HONOLULU (UPI) —A high-ranking federal official said today that the smuggling of heroin into the United States in the bodies and coffins of Vietnam war dead probably won't be tried again.

"I don't think they'll try this any more," said the official, who told UPI earlier this week that several hundred millions of dollars worth of heroin have been brought into the U.S. in coffins by an international syndicate of drug smugglers. He declined to be identified.

He and other authorities believe vast amounts of heroin may have been removed from the bodies and the hermetically-sealed coffins of the dead servicemen while military flights sat on the ground at Hickam Air Force Base outside Honolulu.

"Once they got the stuff into Hawaii they were home free," one official said. "Even though there's 2,600 miles of water between Hawaii and the West Coast, it's legally inter-state travel. They can't be searched without probable cause and there's no customs inspections."

The officials said members of the organization, comprised of ex-GI's with Southeast Asian experience, had infiltrated many levels of the armed forces in Vietnam, including sites where bodies are autopsied and prepared for hometown shipment.

MINUS TIDE UNVEILS MARINE TREASURES

Larkspur Maps Fight To Save Peninsula

City Will Seek Sewer Plan On Prison Land

By PAT PERRY

Faced with the prospect of watching a major, revenue producing development go down the drain if 41 acres on San Quentin Peninsula are seized for a sewage treatment plant, the City of Larkspur will try to get the plant located on San Quentin Prison land instead.

At its Jan. 3 meeting the Larkspur City Council will work on strategy for persuading the state to allow construction of the sub-regional treatment plant on the prison land.

Assist. City Mgr. Harlan Barry today said the Ross Valley Sanitary District's decision to condemn 41 acres of land surrounding its existing plant on the peninsula is "just dynamite."

The sanitary district adopted a resolution of intent to condemn 41 acres of T. I. Properties holdings (the former Remillard lands) at its Nov. 20 meeting. The resolution came amid the city's rezoning of the peninsula for a major apartment development and commercial center proposed by the company — which is the investment corporation for the giant Title Insurance and Trust Co.

The district has stated that the land is necessary for a "buffer zone" around the $28 million ultra-modern sewage treatment plant for central and southern Marin, mandated by the state Regional Water Quali-

Accidents On 101 Claim Petaluman, Corte Maderan

A 3-year-old Petaluma girl on her way to see "The Nutcracker" performed and an 18-year-old Corte Madera youth were killed in accidents on Highway 101 yesterday, the latter fatality the second death of a pedestrian on the freeway within four weeks.

The California Highway Patrol said 18-year-old Randall David Elizondo of 10 Fawn Lane was fatally injured when struck by an atuo as he crossed Highway 101 on foot.

Killed on Highway 101 in Cotati was Christine Peckham, 3-year-old daughter of James and Janice Peckham of 1318 St. Anthony Lane, Petaluma, a passenger in her mother's car, which suddenly swerved off the highway.

Herbert W. Hoffman, 30, of 371 Oak Avenue, San Anselmo, was the driver of the car which hit Elizondo. Hoffman and his wife, Susan, 32, were hospitalized following the accident, injured when their vheicle was struck by a second auto after it spun out of control while trying to avoid the collision, the highway patrol said.

Officers said Hoffman told them he was northbound a half-mile south of the Richardson Bay Bridge at about 11:45 p.m. when suddenly he saw a man on the freeway, slammed on his brakes and was in turn struck by a car driven by William S. Richard, 24, of Cupertino.

Hoffman apparently was unable to avoid striking Elizondo, the highway patrol reported.

He and his wife were reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital. Hoffman suffered broken ribs and cuts and Mrs. Hoffman a broken knee and broken nose.

Elizondo was the 43rd traffic death in Marin this year, com-

A Nixon Missive To Thieu

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon's emissary, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., carried a personal letter from Nixon to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, the White House confirmed today, but declined to disclose its contents.

Saigon sources said that the letter warned Thieu that the United States would cut off all military and economic aid to South Vietnam unless Thieu accedes to a cease-fire agreement if Nixon considers it satisfactory.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Haig, who will report to the Florida White House Friday on his four day Southeast Asian swing, did "carry a letter to" Thieu. "But we have no comment on the contents," he added.

Saigon sources also reported that Nixon told North Vietnam to meet his peace terms within 72 hours after the breakdown of the Paris negotiations, and resumed the bombing when Hanoi did not respond.

The messages to South and North Vietnam indicated that Nixon's patience was wearing thin and he was striving for a settlement before he begins his new term.

It was apparent now that the round of consultations Nixon conducted with his top diplomatic and military advisers last Friday was to inform them of his major decision regarding both Vietnams.

Last Sunday, he dispatched Haig to brief leaders in Saigon, Cambodia, Laos and Thailand on his new tough stand.

Nixon has not publicly discussed the bombing or the chances of peace since his elec-

Three More B52s Are Downed

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command reported the loss of three more B52s today, the most costly day of the air strikes against North Vietnam. It brought to six the number of B52s lost since Monday, and there were indications the B52 effort might be lessening but that the number of fighter-bombers had increased.

Even with the apparent lessened effort by the B52s, the Command confirmed that the massive daily saturation raids by up to 600 planes were continuing in their fourth day today. U.S. military sources said the targets were military but Communist reports from Hanoi told of great loss of civilian life.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim refused Wednesday to embrace the term "terror bombing" to describe the B52 raids. He also said no civilian targets were being aimed at and insisted that mistakes which have resulted in destroying civilian targets have been "extremely rare...isolated instances" throughout the war.

But the B52s have been used commonly against concentrations of enemy troops in the south specifically because they do terrify the men.

Maj. Robert M. Chubbuck of the Strategic Air Command, which operates all 400 B52s in the U.S. arsenal, wrote last year in an official document: "The lack of warning before the normally invisible and inaudible B52s strike leaves no time to take cover, and enemy troops who are not immediate casualties are often in such a state of shock they are completely ineffective.

"Captured enemy troops and documents also stress the psychological impact of these strikes, for they reveal nothing is more feared by the enemy than this unannounced, sudden rain of bombs."

Flying six miles high, the planes are out of sight and beyond hearing. In just 12 seconds a normal mission of three B52s can lay down a carpet of 324 bombs containing 180,000 pounds of explosives.

North Viets Plead For Others To Push U.S. For Bombing Halt

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

North Vietnam called fervently on the Soviet Union, China and other nations tonight to exert pressure on the United States to halt the U.S. bombing which it described as unequalled in the history of war in its scale and devastating intensity.

The official government statement broadcast by Hanoi Radio followed earlier protests by China and the Soviet Union and demands that the bombing be halted. It led the Communist Vietnamese delegations to the Paris peace talks to walk out today in protest.

Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, in a speech commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Union, condemned the bombing and warned that future U.S.U.S.S.R. relations could depend on an end of the war in Indochina.

The Hanoi Radio broadcast of the statement attributed to the "government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam," said:

"The people and government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam fervently call on the people and government of the Soviet Union, China, other Socialist countries, peace and justice-loving countries in the world, (and) the American people to stop in time the crime-laden hand of the Nixon administration, to pressure the Nixon administration into suspending at once its war of aggression against Vietnam and sign immediately the U.S.North Vietnam Oct. 20 Vietnam cease-fire agreement."

The statement described the bombing north of the 20th parallel — resumed at 8 p.m. Monday Hanoi time—and accompanying sea bombardments as "unequalled in the whole history of the war in Indochina in scale and devastating intensity.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in Paris had threatened to boycott today's 171st weekly peace session altogether but showed up just long enough to condemn the bombing and warn that it will not force them into surrender.

Reagan Signs Behr's Rivers Bill; Victory For Marin Senator

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — Environmentalists won a major victory yesterday as Gov. Ronald Reagan signed "wild rivers" legislation by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The signing into law of SB 107 also was a major victory for the freshman senator, who fought for two years to win passage of his proposal over the adamant opposition of the dean of the Senate, Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The powerful chairman of the finance committee, which must pass on virtually all legislation, had introduced a rival measure supported by lobbyists for water developers. Collier's bill, SB 4, was vetoed by Reagan.

In a press statement issued after the signing of Behr's bill, the governor said he favored it over Collier's because it "goes further in solving the problem of protecting the natural state of our north coast rivers."

Behr's bill establishes a permanently-protected waterways system consisting of the Eel, Smith, Trinity, Klamath, and north fork of the American River. It also clamps a 12-year moratorium on new dams on the Eel.

Collier's bill had most of the same provisions, but ordered planning for dams on the Eel while Behr's prohibits even planning.

The governor also said he signed Behr's bill because "we must honor our stewardship and preserve for our children some of the natural beauty that is California, while also providing water for their needs."

Rejecting opponents' arguments that the Eel must be dammed soon to provide water to the rest of the state, Reagan said the river may never be needed because of future reclamation of used water and desalting of sea water.

He stressed that "California will meet its contracted obligations for the supply of water."

Behr praised the governor for "displaying once again the same courage and concern that caused him in 1969 to withdraw the support of the state from the Dos Rios project of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the Eel River." He also credited passage of his bill to the bipartisan backing of the leadership of both houses.

Black Point Man Leaves A Fortune To The State

George Louis Charpentier, who died Dec. 9 on a Novato street at the age of 70, retired from a Marin restaurant about 1952 after amassing a fortune in the stock market, according to his former employer.

Eugene Lochenbach of Eugene's Restaurant in San Rafael said, "he was an outstanding mind on stocks, but he was tight as Scrooge."

Lochenbach said the Black Point man made and lost several fortunes over the years, but "somehow seemed to know what the stocks would do tomorrow."

Charpentier apparently started with little money and built it into a fortune of at least $500,000, the conservative estimate on documents filed with his will in the Marin County Clerk's Office yesterday.

Never married, Charpentier was survived only by his brother, Louis, also of Black Point. The brother was left an undeveloped lot in Novato.

Charpentier also left $10,000 each to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael and Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. His home was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. James B. Sanders of Novato. Another friend, Bessie Parker of Novato, received $1,000.

A state inheritance tax referee in San Rafael said the bequest will not be taxed, but was unsure what the state will do with the windfall.

Friends did not know why he gave his money to California. They said he had always claimed he would probably give it to charity.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Trial Date Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge ruled yesterday that government wiretapping and surveillance were insignificant, and ordered the Pentagon Papers trial to start again Jan. 3.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne cleared the way for the second trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo to begin by ruling that government surveillance did not pertain to the case.

The judge also denied a motion challenging the entire jury selection system in federal courts which contended that persons 18 to 20 years old were underrepresented on the panel.

German Treaty

BERLIN (UPI) — The two rival German states founded 23 years ago on the ruins of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich today signed a treaty for the first time promising good neighborly relatins.

The pact among other things brings East Germany closer to membership in the United Nations.

Egon Bahr, West German minister without portfolio who signed for Chancellor Willy Brandt and Michael Kohl, state secretary, signed for East German Prime Minister Willi Stoph.

Market Toll 15

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Guanabara State authorities today reported 15 persons dead and 228 injured in the collapse of the roof of a supermarket jammed with Christmas shoppers yesterday.

Police said owners of the hastily built store had never obtained a state building permit.

The Legal Medical Institute Morgue said that among the dead was a woman identified as Juanua Reis Cardoso, who gave birth to a boy shortly after being struck by debris. The child died later.

A Cease-Fire?

DUBLIN (UPI) — An unidentified commander of the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) said today the organization will observe an unofficial cease-fire in Northern Ireland during the Christmas holidays.

"For all practical purposes," he said, "there will be a halt to our offensive operations, but we have no plans at the moment to announce a cease-fire."

Critical Flu Days

ATLANTA (UPI) — The next few weeks will be "critical" in determining the impact of an influenza outbreak across the nation, the federal Center for Disease Control (CDC) said yesterday.

The center reported a fourth outbreak of the London flu yesterday in two colleges in southern Massachusetts, bringing to about 40 the number of strains reported in the United States this year.

CRASH WRECKAGE — Firemen search the smoldering wreckage of the North Central Airlines DC9 which collided yesterday with a Delta 880 Convair on takeoff at O'Hare International Airport, killing nine persons and injuring 15 others. More than 100 in the two planes escaped unharmed.

Nine Killed As Airliners Crash At Chicago Airport

CHICAGO (UPI) —A North Central Airlines DC9, taking off in fog at O'Hare International Airport Wednesday night, struck the tail section of a Delta Airlines Convair 880 and burst into flames, killing nine of 45 persons aboard.

At least 15 persons were injured, nine of them seriously. Two of the injured were aboard the Delta jet, which carried 93 persons.

Visibility at the airport was reduced to one quarter mile in the fog, and the smaller North Central jet was taking off when it struck the Delta plane. The Delta plane had crossed the North Central plane's path at an insecting runway after landing.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said that, under normal circumstances, the Delta plane should not have been on the taxi way on the side of the terminal where the accident occurred. However, the FAA spokesman said it was not certain what instructions the ground controller had given the crew.

An air traffic controller at O'Hare said it was highly unusual for a Delta plane to be on that side of the terminal, but that it was not unprecedented.

FAA officials were flown in from Washington to attempt to determine if the crash was pilot error, caused by the tower or the result of the weather. North Central officials flew in from Minneapolis, Minn., to investigate the crash.

After the crash, the North Central jet skidded to a flaming halt on the runway and those who survived made their way to safety through the front exit of the plane.

Crew members led the passengers through the smokefilled plane by shouting, "Come forward. Come forward." One survivor told newsmen he had to keep his head down in order to breath aboard the plane.

Survivors who were not injured were questioned for several hours after the crash, then hustled away from newsmen and taken to an unnamed hotel or motel for the night or taken by bus or plane to their destinations.

One man said he had been instructed not to talk to newsmen. Another said, "The North Central people were great. Without them a lot more people might have died."

The Cook County coroner's office said the bodies of the dead were badly burned, making identification difficult. However, by early today, identification of the dead was complete.

Richard Ojakangas, 40, Duluth, Minn., and his 13-year-old son were sitting about one third of the way back on the North Central plane.

"It seemed to me to be a slightly steep takeoff," he said. "It kind of rumbled. I don't know if the tail left the ground. I just don't know.

"I told Greg to get his head down because we're going to go bang. And then it hit and there were flames on the left side of the plane."

Hanoi Reportedly Will Get Arms Aid, But What Route?

LONDON (UPI) —North Vietnam asked China and the Soviet Union in parallel moves in the past 48 hours for arms and assistance and both Peking and Moscow pledged their support, diplomatic sources said today.

But while both countries promised their support, apparently no detailed commitments were immediately made. The sources said some details of any new arms shipments remain unresolved.

The main problem facing all three parties is the route for shipments of any sizable amounts of new arms since the U.S. blockade of North Vietnamese ports has again been tightened.

The sources said China so far maintains its opposition to united action with the Soviet Union on any new major arms lift to North Vietnam.

Nor, they said, was Peking likely to allow Moscow air or port facilities on its territory for the shipments of Russian arms to Hanoi.

The sources stressed that arms supplies to Hanoi have never stopped altogether despite the American blockade and the recent peace moves. Diplomatic reports said that some Communist arms have arrived partly by sea, but largely by an air lift and through increased movements across the China land route.

Diplomatic sources said China has allowed an increased flow of Russian arms shipments through China following the U.S. blockade, but has been keeping a close watch on these movements, reportedly anxious not to further any Soviet influence in Hanoi.

Arms supplies to North Vietnam, the sources said, have fallen off considerably and lately even slowed beyond the limitations imposed by the blockade. Peking's shipments, according to the sources, fell considerably more than the Soviet shipments in recent months.

The reports said that China and the Soviet Union each continue to favor a peace settlement in Vietnam. But neither wants to appear to be pressuring Hanoi into concessions.

Officially, both back the Hanoi policy line and its peace terms against United States demands and any compromise proposals.

One Serviceman Lost In Combat

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. command announced today that one American serviceman died last week in combat and six others were wounded, two seriously.

The death raised to 45,916 the total number of Americans killed in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961. The figure for this year is 289.

In addition, another 270 Americans have died from causes not connected with the fighting.

Episcopal Diocese Has A Surplus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Northern California Episcopal Diocese is not facing a financial "catastrophe" and in fact has a surplus of $150,000, a spokesman for Bishop C. Kilmer Myers says.

Rev. Canon William Geisler, diocesan controller, said yesterday the church's finances are "excellent" and said reports the diocese is facing a crisis were "slanted."

Canon Geisler acknowledged that pledges from local parishes to the diocese have declined from $800,000 a year to $475,000 since 1966. He said this is a "serious problem for all dioceses.

"But since Bishop Myers came here six years ago we have converted the accumulated deficit of $100,000 to a surplus of $150,000," said Geisler. "Not everyone agrees this is a catastrophe."

He was responding to remarks Tuesday by Rev. Jerome Pollitzer of Monterey that. "We are facing a catastrophe here and we ought to acknowledge it."

Our diocese is in a state of crisis," Pollitzer said. "For the past six years there has been a steadily dwindling financial picture."

Federal grants are planned to test the double-decker bus concept in Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Oakland and Pittsburgh.

Guitar Case To Superior Court

A Fairfax man, arrested because his brother pawned a guitar, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of grand theft and concealing stolen property.

Fairfax police arrested him Dec. 1 after his brother, Larry, pawned the guitar in San Rafael, then told officers who questioned him that his brother gave it to him.

The guitar was stolen in Fairfax the day before from the car of Bruce McDonald, a resident of the town

Your Chances With An Octopus Is Good

CHICAGO (UPI) —In an underwater fight with an octopus you probably would win —depending on the octopus.

There are 36 varieties of these widely distributed mollusks, according to Encyclopaedia Brittannica, and some have an arm spread of only 1 ½ inches. The larger specimens, however, could be troublesome. One, found in Alaskan waters, had an arm spread of 32 feet.

Apollo 17 Team Returns To Houston — 'Best Part Of All'

Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Jack Schmitt —who made the final Apollo landing on the moon —landed at Ellington Air Force Base near the Houston space center at 10:44 a.m. EST, ending a 6,300-mile journey from their South Pacific splashdown point.

"This is the best part of all, right now," said a beaming Barbara Cernan as the Air Force C141 jet transport bearing her husband and his crewmates taxied in under leaden clouds.

The three astronauts, clad in orange flight suits and dark blue baseball-style flight caps, stepped briskly off the plane — Cernan first, then Evans and Schmitt.

"We'd like to thank God for bringing these men back to the planet Earth," Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, said as the spacemen mounted a bunting-draped platform.

A brisk wind, which made the 52-degree temperature seem even colder to approximately 1,000 cheering well-wishers, whipped the U. S. and space agency flags behind the astronauts.

"There's just no place like home," Cernan told the crowd. "You people out there make it what it is."

"Everybody on this flight was a big man," Cernan said, adding that the mission's success —greatest of any Apollo flight —was a tribute to the many people.

"We stood on the shoulders of giants," he said, "and I thank you for those shoulders. We've taken mankind into a new era. The United States has led us into this era and into the future."

Joking about the cold, damp Houston weather, Evans said "the best part of it is coming home and being with the people here in Houston."

He said he only wanted to leave one serious thought —that "we of the U. S. A., I feel, can be proud that we culminated the beginning of man's exploration with Apollo 17."

The final crewmember, civilian geologist Schmitt, also took note of the cold before turning to serious thoughts.

"I've never felt that Houston was home until today," Schmitt said. "Finally, I can say it feels like I'm coming home. We've evolved into space, and let's keep going there."

In contrast to the two who greeted Schmitt, there were 30 in Cernan's official welcoming party and 27 in Evans' party.

The council also shook up the city parks and recreation commission, reappointing Walter Vater and appointing Lois Winterhalder and Sandra Karlovic in place of Commissioners Lou Johnson and Dr. John Kassenbrock. Robert Bliss was appointed to fill a vacant seat.

Appointed to city committees were:

Plan Review — John Haff, John Revelle and Mundhir K. Eljumaily.

Citizens Advisory Committee on Human Needs —Gail Meblin, Joseph Talarico and Thomas Anderson.

Chilling Beginning To Winter

Winter came to the Bay Area at 10:13 a.m. today, enshrouded in a damp chilling fog that has hung on for several days.

Winter's official beginning in North America occurs when the sun reaches its farthest point south of the equator, and that, according to astronomers, took place at 10:13.

The period of daylight today will be the shortest of the year.

The National Weather Service, as it has previously this week, predicted rain today and tonight, with small craft warnings posted for high winds from Cape Mendocino south to Point Arena.

Mild temperatures are to continue, with highs in the mid 50s to low 60s.

ty Control. T. I. Proprties, on the other hand, intends to put in recreational, office and high density apartments on the site. Larkspur businessman, Robert H. Lee, has already announced plans to turn the Remillard brick kiln into a restaurant and museum.

"It doesn't seem to make sense to take so much prime land," Barry said, "and we intend to approach the state to see what we can do on a cooperative basis with the sanitary district."

Larskpur's city manager, Kent B. Bathurst, has suggested the sanitary district build the plant on a site east of the San Quentin prison's gate.

The sanitary district, according to president Eugene Ostaggi, would accept the alternative site only if it meets four conditions:

1. It must be available in time to permit construction to start by mid-1974.
2. Development cannot cost more than at the present site.
3. The state agrees.
4. The site is on solid ground.

At Monday's meeting of the sanitary district board, Ostaggi announced that the state Department of Corrections had rejected the alternative site proposition.

"The department of corrections said the land would not be available for a number of years," he said, "and they're under various pressures from various groups for different types of developments, some want a park, others want something else."

But the City of Larkspur is undeterred.

Holding that the Department of Corrections "isn't high enough on the totem pole" the council will approach other state departments, according to Barry.

The sanitary district's engineer, J. Warren (Ed) Nute told this week's district meeting that some decision on the site for the multimillion-dollar plant should be made by April.

By that time the project report must be submitted to the state Regional Water Quality Control Board, he said, "and we should be able to say where the plant is going to be built."

As to whether the City of Larkspur can get a decision from the state by that time, Barry said, "I think there's an excellent chance of knowing by April. We're working on a really cooperative basis with the sanitary district on this, because we know they're under pressures from the water people — but we don't think a sewage treatment plant is exactly what passengers arriving at the ferry terminal expect to

Suit Seeks Spending Ban On Dam

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Seven Sonoma County residents have filed a lawsuit to enjoin the county from spending more money on the Warm Springs Dam project without a vote of the people.

The suit claims the Sonoma County Water Agency has violated county debt limits by obligating taxpayers to the $12.5 million county share of the project. Plaintiffs are Clement Vanoni, Walter Foppiano, Clarence Foppiano, Florence McCord, Charles McCord, Edward Waltenspiel and Frank Nervo.

The county board of supervisors has directed the county counsel's office to contest the suit on the basis the water agency is not bound to debt limitations. The supervisors sit as water agency directors.

The $100 million dam project north of Healdsburg is planned by the Army Corps of Engineers as a flood control dam on Dry Creek, a tributary of the Russian River.

Airman Struck In Parking Lot

S/Sgt. Edgar A. Flores, 25, of 1250 Palmer Drive, Novato, suffered a fractured left cheek bone and two fractured ribs when struck by an unidentified man in the parking lot at Pinky's Pizza, 5460 Redwood Highway, last night, Novato police reported.

Flores said he was hit after the man asked him for a cigarette and he refused. Police said the incident occurred between 11:30 p.m. and midnight.

Flores was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base and then transferred to Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco.

Author Jailed For Taking Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Norman Wexler, 46, author of the screenplay for the 1970 movie hit "Joe," was back in jail Wednesday.

Last week Wexler was arrested by FBI agents after he allegedly threatened to shoot President Nixon. The writer was aboard a jetliner at the time.

Wexler was freed on bail, but jailed again for making an unauthorized trip to Los Angeles. He said he traveled to Southern California to do "some shopping."

However, federal authorities said the trip was a violation of his $2,000 bail set by U.S. Magistrate Richard S. Goldsmith.

A hearing will be held Thursday before Magistrate Owen Woodruff Jr.

Santa's Present: Search Warrant

HAWYARD, Calif. (UPI) — The only present Santa Claus had for Richard K. Hughes was a search warrant.

A Santa, complete with red suit and beard, showed up at Hughes' front door a week early and asked to be let inside. After Hughes admitted him, Santa pulled out a badge and a search warrant.

A search of the house turned up marijuana, hashish, LSD and other drugs, said officers who arrested Hughes and two companions.

Police said an officer donned a Santa suit so he could get into the house before its occupants disposed of the drugs.

To Run Again

OAKLAND (UPI) — Mayor John Reading said today he has decided to run for re-election because otherwise Oakland could swing towards radical government as Berkeley has.

Man Booked For Probe Into Attack

A San Jose waitress reported she was raped last night by a man who picked her up while she was hitchhiking in San Francisco, drove her around for nearly 12 hours and even had dinner with her in Novato.

Howard Farr, 30, of San Jose, was booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of rape and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

The woman told sheriff's deputies that Farr picked her up in downtown San Francisco about 10:30 a.m. and that they drove around for more than five hours, before having dinner at the Sizzler restaurant in Novato.

She said Farr then promised to take her to her boy friend's home in Contra Costa County, but instead drove her up into the hills above Marin City and raped her.

She reported that the man did not threaten her but had "such a wild, frenzied look," that she became frightened and complied with his wishes.

They drove around for about an hour after that, the woman said, then started back across the Golden Gate Bridge toward San Francisco about 11 p.m.

She jumped out of the car at the toll plaza, and began screaming, according to deputies, and Farr was arrested immediately at the toll gate.

Undergrounding Funds Increased

Some $370,510 will be spent in 1973 by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for undergrounding electric lines in Marin and Southern Sonoma.

The utility company has increased its allocation for undergrounding from $10 million this year to $11 million for 1973.

Amounts allocated to local incorporated cities are: Belvedere, $4,200; Corte Madera, $13,900; Cotati, $3,100; Fairfax, $12,300; Larkspur, $16,800; Mill Valley, $21,000; Novato, $35,800; Petaluma, $41,110; Rohnert Park, $8,600; Ross, $3,600; San Anselmo, $21,000; San Rafael, $63,800; Sausalito, $15,800; and Tiburon, $10,000.

The unincorporated area of Marin County will get $99,500 and Sonoma County, $198,900.

Reagan Delivers Yule Message

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —In a Christmas message, Gov. Ronald Reagan has called on Californians to "reaffirm our faith in the Divine Being, hope in the salvation of mankind, and love for our fellow man."

"As we celebrate this most joyous and holy season of the year," the governor said Wednesday in a statement, "I ask my fellow Californians to join me in comtemplating the one real gift we have received the legacy that the Christ Child of Bethlehem left us —love.

"As we celebrate the birth of the Child Jesus, let's reaffirm our faith in the Divine Being, hope in the salvation of mankind, and love for our fellow man," he said.

Suit Settlement Terms Clarified

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —In reporting an out-of-court $58.5 million settlement of six lawsuits against Boise-Cascade Corp. Monday, United Press International erroneously said that the company and California attorney general's office agreed that some of Boise-Cascade's land sale practices were illegal.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said the question of illegality of the practices was not a part of the settlement agreement.

Boise-Cascade was accused in the suits, two in federal court and four in state court, of misrepresenting lots in its recreational subdivisions in some cases with questionable advertising.

Weather For Inauguration

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When President Nixon takes the oath for his second term in the White House Jan. 20, the U.S. Weather Service says the temperature should be 37 degrees with winds of 10 miles an hour under partly cloudy skies.

"These figures are climatological probabilities, not forecasts, and are based on records of Washington, D.C., weather on Jan. 20 for the past 100 years," the Weather Service said in a statement today.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Daphne Funerals in Corte Madera.

She and her mother, 29, were northbound on Highway 101 en route to see a performance of the "Nutcracker" in Santa Rosa when the accident occurred at 12:25 p.m.

The California Highway Patrol said Mrs. Peckham's car swerved across the center divider strip and plunged down a 40-foot embankment into a tree. Officers said she may have swerved to avoid an oncoming car and asked that witnesses contact the patrol office in Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Peckham was reported in good condition at Hillcrest Hospital with a back injury, cuts and suffering from shcok.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

On Nov. 24, another pedestrian, Allen Stewart Taylor, 28, of San Francisco, died when hit by a car while crossing Highway 101 near the Tiburon turnoff in predawn darkness.

NIXON

tion eve address to the nation, but he had wanted peace proclaimed by Thanksgiving Day, then Christmas. Now it appears that even on inauguration day, Jan. 20, the chances of a cease fire are remote.

American officials say they believe Hanoi may soon make a decision on the one fundamental point that hamstrung the talks. It involves acceptance of some vague reference to a demarcation between two Vietnams.

Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, who accompanied him, laughed off reports of a rift with Nixon over Vietnam policy. Ziegler said Wednesday that the President and Kissinger have a "unity of point of view" on settlement terms. He blamed "diplomatic rumors" for speculation that differences had arisen between the two.

Nixon awaits the return of Kissinger's deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Thursday evening or Friday morning after consultations with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other Southeast Asian leaders.

The President planned to work quietly on his second inaugural address and the new federal budget he will submit to Congress next month.

He planned to announce several new appointments and resignations today. Among the changes expected is the removal of CIA director Richard Helms and his appointment as ambassador to Iran.

Home Burglary Suspect Is Held

A 23-year-old San Rafael man, out on parole after serving time for burglary, was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of committing another.

Robert Louis Arnett Jr., of 22 Sirard Lane, was booked into Marin County Jail with bail not set and a hold was placed on him as a parole violator. He is scheduled to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

He was tied to the burglary by fingerprints in the Craddock home, according to police. He also had been observed going up to doors in the neighborhood, police reported.

Charged With Injuring Auto

Authorities said Wilson rolled down the windows of a small foreign car and proceeded to fill it full of snow with a snowblower.

Wilson, who was identified by photographs taken by witnesses of the incident, said he didn't know the window of the car was down while he was operating his snowblower up and down the sidewalk along which the car was parked.

The owner of the car, Dana Sweeney, 22, a secretary, said Wilson's actions appeared to have been deliberate. Miss Sweeney had to have her car cleaned and dried out at a garage.

Emergency Room Pact Is Signed

District Administrator Joseph M. Horner said the board approved a one-year contract with the Bernstein Medical Group to provide physicians at a cost of $15 per hour or $2,520 per month. The emergency room now has a doctor on duty 12 hours on weekdays and full-time on weekends.

Horner said the medical group serves other Bay Area hospitals and will also be responsible for responding to emergencies within the hospital, emergency training programs and health care programs for hospital employees.

Horner said the service will begin Jan. 15.

The hospital district board also approved a committee of radiologists and pathologists to study ways of expanding X-ray facilities at Hillcrest through both private and public funds and heard Horner report an independent audit has shown Hillcrest employees perform at a 93 per cent efficiency rate as compared to the state average of 77 per cent in hospitals of similar size.

Noted Architect Is Dead At 80

LA JOLLA (AP) — Architect John Lloyd Wright, 80, son of famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright, has died at Scripps Memorial Hospital after a prolonged illness.

Wright, a student of his father, was a licensed architect in Texas, Indiana and Nevada and is credited with inventing Lincoln Logs and Wright Blocks for children. He died Wednesday.

Born in Oak Park, Ill., Wright attended the University of Wisconsin and went on to teach and write a book about his father in addition to his designing work. In 1959 the American Registered Architects honored him with their annual gold medal as the country's most outstanding architect.

He is survived by the widow, a son, a daughter, a stepson, three brothers and a sister. Cremation is planned.

Wright Heads Police Chiefs

The group, composed of police chiefs from the county's 11 cities, the sheriff and the district attorney, is responsible for coordinating the efforts of all law enforcement agencies in Marin.

The 46-year-old Wright replaces Chief Howard Clark of Larkspur, who had served three terms as president. Wright will serve for one year in the post.

Novato Chief Allen W. Klemme was chosen secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Wrong Sizes

The Independent-Journal erred Tuesday in reporting lot sizes of homes planned by Qantas Development Corp. in Petaluma. Company officials reported lot sizes of 6,000 square feet, not 5,000, are proposed.

Board Hires Sewage Plant Chief

The San Rafael Sanitation District board last night hired Ross Tidwell, currently sewage plant manager in Benecia, as plant superintendent for the San Rafael district.

Norris M. Rawles, district administrator, said the former plant superintendent, Louis W. Kennedy, left after only three months to take a better paying job in the East Bay.

Tidwell will be paid $1,201 a month, he said.

The board last night also formally awarded a $590,777 contract for construction of connection lines in the Bayside Acres Sewer Assessment District to the low bidder, Prodanovich Inc. of Oakland.

Hopeful For Vacancy On Hub's Planning Panel Views The Issues

(One of several stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for the vacant seat on the San Anselmo Planning Commission.)

Mary Sue Hulpke, wife of San Anselmo School District trustee John Hulpke, has applied for appointment to the San Anselmo Planning Commission seat vacated by the resignation of Allen J. Creighton.

The council has declared it will fill the seat at 8 p.m. Jan. 9.

Mrs. Hulpke, nominated for the post by Councilman Lewis W. Stewart, said the major problem facing San Anselmo today is the dilemma of preserving the environment and acquiring open space while dealing with problems of jobs and moderate income housing. She said she advocates a "controlled growth" concept that requires both a local and regional approach.

MARY SUE HULPKE

"Housing is an issue we can't handle alone on the local level," she said. "The city just doesn't have the money. The housing problem must be approached on the state and federal levels."

She said that all nonconforming uses in the city, or second lots on parcels zoned for single-family residences, must be reviewed in light of density, parking, traffic patterns, health and safety standards and ability to fill the need for moderate-income housing. Second units that don't conform to the criteria should be abated, she said.

"We need to ask if a nonconforming use fills a moderate-income housing need," she said, adding that though "we can't let those units get out of hand" future nonconforming uses should be allowed on a limited and individual basis if they meet strict criteria.

Mrs. Hulpke, a member of the city's general plan committee, said she supports the city's building and zoning moratorium as a means "to give us time to decide where to go from here." She called for flexible zoning patterns that will allow mixed residential uses.

She said she didn't support the countywide general plan's proposal to widen city throughfares, saying widened roads "would divide the Ross Valley in half."

Mrs. Hulpke, 31, attended Westmont College in Santa Barbara and graduated from California State University at San Francisco with a degree in social science. She has also taken post graduate courses in anthropology and Spanish culture.

She tutored blind children in the Springfield, Mass., public school system in 1966 and was a member of that state's Commonwealth Service Corps in 1967. She was chairman of the San Rafael Methodist Church Social Concern Commission and a member of the San Anselmo School District's citizen advisory committee last year.

She is a volunteer art instructor in the city's elementary school system.

Six-Month Jail Term For Burglar

A 23-year-old Sonoma County man arrested walking down a Novato street with stolen property in his arms, was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail on a burglary charge.

Superior court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed James David McClearn on probation in accord with a plea bargain struck by a visiting judge last month.

Probation Officer Jesse W. Johnson noted McClearn had a lengthy record of burglary and forgery arrests, but said his crimes reflect "pathetic amateurism."

McClearn was arrested Sept. 24 in the 600 block of San Marin Drive, Novato, shortly after he broke into the home of Carl W. Lowry on El Sereno.

He was carrying a television set, tape recorder and trousers taken from the house, police said. Lowry's checkbook was found in McClearn's pocket, according to police.

State Records Show Hike In Marriages

BERKELEY (AP) — The number of marriages and divorces both are up this year in California, the state Department of Public Health said yesterday.

The department estimated that the year's end will see 176,000 marriages in the state for 1972 — 8,000 more than the knots tied in 1971.

But dissolutions are up too, though not to the same extent, said the record-keepers. Through September, 79, 737 final divorce decrees were registered, compared with 79,682 in 1971. In the first nine months of 1970 — the first year of the state's non-adversary divorce law, 81,991 dissolutions were recorded.

Los Angeles County, the state's most populous, led in both marriages and dissolutions from January through September of this year. Marriages numbered 46,647, dissolutions 27,226.

Orange and San Diego counties were about even with a little more than 10,000 marriages and 6,000 divorces each.

Third in the marriage department was Santa Clara County with just over 6,500, followed by Alameda and San Francisco counties with 6,158 and 5,156 marriages respectively.

Divorce statistic rankings for these counties: Santa Clara 4,500; Alameda 4,400, and San Francisco 2,700.

Sacramento County reported 3,771 marriages and 2,751 divorces.

Public health officials said the slight rise in the state's population this year does not completely explain the apparent 1972 increases in knots tied and untied.

Safe Is Looted

The North Marin County Water District reported Tuesday that someone took $176 from an unlocked safe at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, between 5 and 5:40 p.m. Friday.

Terra Linda Shops Hit By Burglars

A barber shop and jewelry store in the Terra Linda Shopping Center were looted Tuesday by burglars who cut through a wall between the shops, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Taken from Terra Linda Jewelers at 633 Del Ganado Road were approximately 45 watches selling for $25 to $55 each, other watches and jewelry of undetermined value, and $50 cash, deputies said.

Cash totaling $115 was stolen from the Terra Linda Barber Shop, through which the burglars gained entry, according to deputies.

A glass door was smashed to gain entry to the barber shop, then a hole was cut in the wall to the jewelry store, officers said.

The burglary was discovered at 1 a.m. when deputies responded to an alarm at the jeweler's.

4 Churches Plan Yule Dinners

Four San Rafael churches will see that persons without families will have a Christmas Day dinner with all the trimmings.

The dinner will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Whistlestop — located in the old San Rafael depot at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

Use of the Whistlestop facilities has been donated by the Senior Citizens Coordinating Council. The dining room and kitchen were also used for a similar feast on Thanksgiving Day.

The dinner, the second annual feast, will be served by members of St. Raphael's Catholic Church, First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the First Presbyterian Church.

Also special delivery service will be provided for those who cannot leave their room or apartment.

Marvin Ford, of the First Presbyterian Church who is head of the laymen's dinner committee, said "the concern is not only to provide food, but also some sort of friendship for the lonely people living in downtown San Rafael."

Horse Worming Clinic Scheduled

A horse worming clinic will be held Saturday at 9 a.m. in the horsemen's ring in Sleepy Hollow, sponsored by the Horsemen's Association of Sleepy Hollow, and administered by the Marin Veterinary Clinic.

Horses will be tube wormed and flu and tetanus shots will be available, said association secretary Maggie Mercer. Reservations must be made in advance by calling Miss Mercer.

ONCE UPON A TIME IS STILL THE BEST

Wonder is mirrored in the wide, wide eyes of Larkspur children as they listen intently to a Christmas story read by Shay Walling at the Larkspur Library. The story hour yesterday and a little puppet show were arranged by the Friends of the Larkspur Library.

And anyone who worries that the 20th Century is breeding a race of television-watching cabbages has only to see the children's expressions to regain their faith in the power of imagination — and the magic of childhood.

Capitol Building Plans Laid Out

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Architects yesterday formally laid out for a legislative committee proposed plans for a twin-tower skyscraper state capitol for the legislature.

At the same time, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, who spearheads the campaign for the new structure, said he doesn't "understand" Gov. Ronald Reagan's newly announced opposition to the proposal.

"I think that he is in the best position to know what his needs are and that we are in the best position to know what our needs are," said Collier, crusty dean of the legislature and powerful chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Reagan said last week he didn't believe the lawmakers "need 30 or 40 stories of new building" and that the current 102-year-old golden-domed Capitol should be preserved as a "working building."

"I don't understand that statement," Collier told newsmen. "The governors traditionally have respected our needs and we've respected the governors' needs."

The proposed plans for a new state capitol were outlined for the Joint Legislative Space Needs Committee by architects Harry J. Devin and Erwin E. Novak at a special meeting.

Basically, the proposal calls for constructing a new legislative building east of the existing structure in downtown Sacramento. The skyscraper towers, one for the Assembly and the other for the Senate, would total 15 to 17 stories each and be connected by a three-floor structure.

Unlike earlier proposed plans for offices of lawmakers, the latest drawings contained rooms considerably larger than the ones legislators now occupy.

The office suites of the speaker of the Assembly and president pro tem of the Senate would be located on the ground floor in corners restricted to public access.

But Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, said he believed they should be moved elsewhere.

"I don't think they should be on the first floor available to all those nit-wits that come in and demonstrate and wave banners," he said.

Collier, who first proposed such a structure in 1967, has roughly estimated cost of the new building at $50 million, but architect Devine refused to estimate a figure until the plans were firmed up.

"Until we get it down in black and white, we'd be stupid to give one out," he said, noting that the building would take about two years to build. Final plans should be ready next autumn.

Collier also said he would not favor legislative action on financing the project until "we get the plans ready. I don't think we'll be ready in 1973 to put in a bill."

A Watchdog Health Panel Sets Study

The Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council, concerned about possible cutbacks in county medical programs, yesterday created a committee to examine proposed reorganization of Marin's public health division.

The 10-member committee, composed of council members and others will meet at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday to consider proposals by Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, the county's chief medical officer, to reshuffle the health division.

The committee will report its findings to the council's executive committee next Thursday, according to board president Michael L. Harris. In turn, the executive committee will make recommendations to the board of supervisors, which is slated to consider Cooke's proposals on Jan. 2.

Cooke's proposal calls for the closing of the county chest clinic, tuberculin minifilm X-ray program and health clinic laboratory. It also suggests increasing various fees, consolidating all public health division offices in downtown San Rafael and a new program of charging Marin's 11 cities for services previously offered free.

Cooke has claimed the cutbacks will save the county up to $100,000 annually, through taxpayers' burdens would not be eased since much of the saving is a shift of cost from the county to the cities.

Some Comprehensive Helath Planning Council members have eyed the reshuffling warily, saying they had not been informed it was in the works.

SMOG-PROOFED

Yes, Joey, Santa's Reindeer Are Fine

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A state legislator has reassured a worried seven-year-old boy that Santa Claus' reindeer will not be bothered by air pollution because they will be wearing "special devices making them smog-proof."

Republican Assemblyman Richard Hayden of Sunnyvale said Wednesday he received a letter signed by a youngster named Joey who was afraid Santa might not make it to his apartment on Christmas Eve.

"My teacher told us many animals are endangered species," the boy said. "I am afraid that Santa's reindeer will not survive our smog, since they are not used to it. What can you do to make sure they will be all right?"

Hayden said he answered the letter and told Joey:

"I have checked with William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, and his office has informed me that Santa's reindeer, including Rudolph, will be equipped with special devices making them smogproof."

Lassie's First Master Nabbed On Pot Charge

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) —Tommy Rettig, the former child actor who was Lassie's first master when the television series began in 1954, was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of cultivating a large quantity of marijuana.

Authorities said Rettig, 30, and his wife, Darlene, 28, were growing the illegal weed on their "Daisy Hill" farm two miles east of Arroyo Grande. They were held in the San Luis Obispo County Correctional Facility here.

Rettig played Jeff Miller on the long-running Lassie series for four years until he became too tall and old for the part.

Bus Service Will Be Expanded To Handle Rush

Bus service for Marin and Sonoma commuters will be expanded after noon tomorrow to handle those lucky enough to get an early start on the Christmas weekend.

Golden Gate Transit buses will start leaving from the Transbay Terminal at noon. Passengers for San Rafael and points north of San Rafael will board on Fremont Street. Those going to destinations south of San Rafael will board on Natoma Street.

All early afternoon expanded service will follow the Civic Center route out of San Francisco.

Commuter service also will be provided after 4 p.m., but with fewer buses than usual.

Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White cautioned commuters against driving themselves to San Francisco in the morning, and predicted heavy northbound congestion throughout the afternoon.

Star's Makeup Kit Is Stolen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Thieves made off with Phyllis Diller's $500 makeup kit at Los Angeles International Airport Wednesday, forcing a delay in shooting of her new movie.

Police said the kit was stolen from Western Airlines' luggage rack at the airport after Miss Diller arrived on a flight from Las Vegas, Nev.

Police said they later recovered the kit in a car near the airport and arrested two men on suspicion of grand theft.

PILOT'S WIFE COMPLAINS

Nixon's Christmas Trip To Florida Causes Grief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — When 10-year-old Phillip Robst learned his father would be away on Christmas guarding President Nixon in Florida, he "cried himself to sleep," his mother said.

"Please daddy, I don't want you to have to be gone for Christmas and not see us open the presents," the youngster said.

Mrs. Joan Robst telephoned UPI Wednesday and complained that her husband, Air Force Maj. Paul Robst, and about 100 other Sacramento-based pilots and crewmen were ordered to fly reconnaissance missions over Florida and Cuba because Nixon plans to spend Christmas day at Key Biscayne.

"I got them most upset," Mrs. Robst said, "when I saw my 200-pound Notre Dame football player husband walk out of the bedroom with tears in his eyes after he told Philip he wouldn't be home for Christmas."

"Why can't Nixon stay in the White House on Christmas?", she asked.

Mrs. Robst said her husband, a 40-year-old navigator who recently returned from Vietnam duty, departed Wednesday from McClellan AFB for the Florida reconnaissance mission.

However, she said they decided to open the Christmas presents early for Philip and their two older children after the youngster cried himself to sleep.

"I don't think Nixon knows that so many families will be apart for Christmas just because he is going to Florida," Mrs. Robst said. "I think there's been enough suffering from this confounded Vietnam war without his (Nixon's) adding to it."

Robst, an 18-year Air Force veteran, is attached to the 194th "early warning" reconnaissance squadron. When Nixon travels to his Key Biscayne home, the squadron and several others like it must fly missions over Florida and Cuba, Mrs. Robst said.

She said the security precaution isn't necessary if the President stays in Washington. If Nixon went to his San Clemente, Calif., home, Mrs. Robst said, the Sacramento pilots could fly out of McClellan and be home for Christmas.

"California is just as good as Florida," she said. "Why couldn't he come to the Western White house?"

"Maybe I'm nutty as a fruitcake for doing this (telling a newsman the story)," Mrs. Robst said. "But it's not just for my family but for all of the other families of the Air Force pilots.

"None of the rest of them have enough guts to speak up about it."

Christmas Feed For 3,000 Set

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Red Andrews is busy making preparations for a turkey dinner for anyone in town who has no place else to spend Christmas Day.

He said he expects 3,000 guests to show up at the Oklahoma Hotel banquet room for his traditional free feast.

"I look for this to be one of the biggest I have ever had. All this bad weather and laborers haven't been able to work and all," said Andrews, 72, a former state legislator.

Strike Agreement Denied By Union

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Federal mediators said Wednesday that CBS and striking technicians had reached tentative agreement on a new pact, but a union spokesman denied it.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service announced late Wednesday that CBS-TV and negotiators for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had reached tentative agreement on a new contract, subject to ratification of union members.

But Arthur Korff, a spokesman for the union in Washington, told UPI: "There is no agreement." He refused to elaborate.

Drunk Patrol

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police Chief Donald Scott announced today that a special force of 40 policemen will patrol San Francisco's streets Friday from 3 p.m. to midnight looking for drivers who have imbibed too heavily at office Christmas parties.

A GM Device Halts The Tippling Driver

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. today explained a new 10-second test aimed at preventing an intoxicated person from being able to start and drive his car.

Dr. Jean A. Ennant of GM's Electronic Control Systems Department unveiled the system at the GM technical center in suburban Warren.

The experimental system makes use of the car's steering wheel and requires the driver to pass a 10-second test by controlling the movement of a needle on an instrumental panel dial.

If the driver, by moving the steering wheel, cannot hold the needle within a certain range, the car cannot be started. Ennant said the needle control action is like steering a car to keep it on the road.

If a driver passes the sobriety test, a green light marked "pass" comes on and the vehicle can be started. If the needle wavers outside the designated area, the driver is determined to be too drunk to drive and a red light turns on and the starter is immobilized.

The National Safety Council has blamed drinking as a factor in about half of all fatal traffic accidents.

Distinguished Pair

FREEVILLE, N.Y.(UPI) — Two brothers who were former citizens of the George Junior Republic, the self-governed teen-age community located here about 10 miles from Ithaca, distinguished themselves in later life. Ralph Dawson became a two-time Academy Award winner for film editing while his brother, Charles, was the youngest member ever to have served in the California legislature at that time.

Earnings Rise For Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wages and other earnings of Americans rose $8.7 billion in November, the Commerce Department reports.

The department said Wednesday that this compared with an unusually large increase of $17 billion in October. About half of the October increase came from a 20 per cent boost in Social Security benefits.

The November increase included a $4.6 billion rise in wages and salaries, compared with a $7 billion rise in October. The slowdown in wages and salaries was in private industry, since government payrolls in November went up.

Schlesinger Picked As Director Of CIA

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — James R. Schlesinger has been chosen by President Nixon as director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and L. Patrick Gray III will be appointed to a full term as director of the FBI, informed administration sources said today.

Schlesinger, now chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, will succeed Richard M. Helms as CIA chief, with Helms being given a diplomatic assignment —after more than a quarter century of intelligence work —as ambassador to Iran.

Gray, who was named by Nixon to be acting FBI director after J. Edgar Hoover died last May, is scheduled to get a full-term nomination early in the new year.

Gray is still recuperating from an operation to remove an intestinal obstruction. He was stricken last month at his Connecticut home. Before moving to the FBI on Hoover's death, he was an assistant attorney general in the Justice Department.

Helms discussed his status with Nixon at Camp David, Md., some weeks ago during the President's conferences with virtually all top-level government appointees, and was said to have suggested himself that he step down.

Helms was reported to have told Nixon that he felt the CIA director should not be over 60. Helms will be 60 in March. He has been with the CIA since it was created in 1947.

It was disclosed that Nixon also intends to reappoint Romana Banuelos as U.S. treasurer. Mrs. Banuelos, 47, of Los Angeles, assumed her post in December, 1971, one of Nixon's first appointees of Mexican-American heritage. A businesswoman, she turned her firm, Ramona Mexican Food Products Inc. at Gardena, Calif., into a successful enterprise.

Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint, also is being asked to serve in Nixon's second term. She is former vice chairman of the Republican National Committee and widow of Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois.

Helms has headed the CIA since June, 1966. A former newspaperman, who got into intelligence work with the Navy during World War II before becoming a CIA agent when the agency was created 25 years ago.

In Iran, Helms will succeed Joseph Farland, a veteran member of the U.S. foreign service, as Washington envoy. Farland is to get a new assignment.

Schlsinger, 43, has been AEC chairman since last year. He is a former university professor (Virginia 1955-63) and formerly was with the Rand Corp., a research organization which does considerable work for the government.

Tax Break To Some Parents

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan reported today signing a bill into law giving a state income tax break to middle and low income families who send their children to private schools.

The new law would apply to the 1973 calendar year and is estimated to cost the state about $16 million a year.

Families with an adjusted gross income of less than $19,000 a year would be eligible for the tax credit.

Board Says McGovern Aides Due Back Wages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two aides in Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign are entitled to more than $2,000 in back wages, a wage board ruled Wednesday.

The wages had been withheld in the final weeks of the campaign because of a shortage.

Joseph Mohbat, press aide to McGovern's campaign manager Lawrence J. O'Brien, and Susan Davis, a secretary, contended that the campaign committee paid off debts and loans to big donors at the expense of staff workers.

Mohbat said $1,730 was due him for the final three weeks, and Miss Davis said $726 was due her. They filed formal complaints with the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Board.

Martin Katz, representing the McGovern committee, argued before the board that Mohbat and Miss Davis were administrative workers and thereby exempt from laws governing wage collection.

The board's chief wage investigator, Louis J. Lamanna, ruled for Mohbat and Miss Davis and said that if the committee failed to pay by Dec. 27 it could be prosecuted in court. But the committee was allowed the opportunity to appeal.

One Santa Has A Rough Time

BOVILL, Idaho (UPI) — George Pingel, an Idaho Department of Highways employe, is recuperating from his brief stint as Santa Claus.

He donned a white beard and red suit to carry out a tradition of delivering sacks of candy to this northern Idaho town's youngsters.

He was bitten on one leg by a German shepherd dog shortly after beginning his round. But he forged on—and slipped on the ice, spraining the ankle on his other leg.

"I've had it," said Pringle as he gave up his short career as St. Nick.

Driver In Fatal Crash Admits Drunken Driving

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A driver involved in an accident that killed a Larkspur physician was placed on probation and fined $500 yesterday after pleading guilty to a reduced charge.

Leonard Lundgren III, 39, of San Francisco, originally had been charged with felony drunken driving, manslaughter and speeding after a collision on Aug. 10 that killed Dr. Steven Michael Sydow, 26, of Larkspur, near the Golden Gate Bridge.

Municipal Court Judge John A. O'Kane allowed Lundgren to change his plea to guilty of misdemeanor drunken driving, dismissed the other two counts and gave Lundren a suspended 90-day jail sentence, fined him $500 and placed him on two years' probation. Judge O'Kane made no recommendation on suspension of Lundgren's driver's license, court aides reported.

Grass Is Grown In Fields Of Slime

MOSCOW (UPI) —Siberian scientists have grown grass a yard high in fields of slime that had been lifeless, the Tass news agency said.

Scientists at Uralsk University tested more than 160 plant species on slime fields. Twenty-four survived, including witch grass, lucerne and red fescue.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office: Take Anacin®.

A Knife-Point Attack Reported

A 25-year-old San Rafael married woman was raped at knife point last night in Gerstle Park, police reported.

According to police, she was walking her dog past the park at 9:50 p.m. when a man grabbed her from behind. He forced her into the rest room, and made her undress holding the knife at her throat. After raping her, he fled into the foggy night. The woman dressed and called police from a nearby friend's home.

The man was described as 20 to 25 years old, medium build, weighing about 150 pounds and having neck length brown hair and a full beard. He was wearing a lightweight, grey jacket, according to police reports.

Suspect In A Robbery Is Arrested

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of robbery was William E. Jackson, 19, of Brooklyn, N.Y. Jackson also was held as absent without leave from the Marine Corps for military authorities.

Police said that Brandon L. Persinger of 175 St. Thomas Way, Tiburon, told them he was robbed Tuesday at about 10:45 p.m. in the abandoned railroad yard at Tiburon Boulevard and Mar West.

Persinger said he was walking through the yard with a friend, but they parted while he waited for the friend to get his car. He said three men approached him, asked him for money and when he refused to give them any, one grabbed him and hit him across the face.

The other two joined in, Persinger told police, and they knocked him down, rolled him over and took his wallet and removed $17 from it.

Jackson was picked up the next morning after a policeman decided he matched the description of one of the robbers. The other two men, described as white and about 20 years old, were still being sought.

Jackson was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Development Vote Results To Be Delayed

The Petaluma Development Allotment board certified its votes last night, but agreed to withhold public notice of the results until Dec. 29.

The board finsihed its voting last Friday and certified results as correct, but said neither the public nor developers will be given results until Dec. 29. The votes will determine which of 16 proposed developments can be built next year under the 500 living unit limitation.

Planning Director William C. McGivern said the Dec. 29 release date was chosen so the required 15-day appeal period will conform with the previously set appeals hearing on Jan. 10. He said if results were released sooner the board would have to hold the appeal hearing at an earlier date.

John Joslyn of Qantas Development Corp. asked the board for a special dispensation and said if given a copy of the results he would use them only for business purposes and not make them public. Board members rejected his request.

Developers may appeal the voting results and ask members to reconsider votes at the hearing Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

RIDGECREST, Calif. (UPI) —A moderate earthquake, followed by more than a dozen aftershocks, shook this small desert community in eastern California Wednesday but there were no reports of damage.

Caltech seismologists in Pasadena said the 6:38 p.m. PST temblor registered 3.8 on the Richter scale and was centered near the Naval Weapons Testing Station at China Lake, about 20 miles north of here.

A spokesman said "there were quite a few aftershocks," the largest occurring at 9:16 p.m. with a magnitude of 3.4.

College Finance Bill Is Vetoed By Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed an omnibus community college finance bill because it would have conflicted with the legislature's $1.1 billion property tax relief and school aid program, it was learned today.

In a veto message, the governor said the legislature should "fully review the issue of community college financial aid during the 1973 legislative session."

The community colleges bill, carried by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, proposed pumping an additional $43.4 million in state aid into the community colleges and an additional $14.3 million in state support for high schools.

At the same time, however, the Alquist measure would have resulted in an unintended $31 million windfall for the community colleges because of technical conflicts with the $1.1 billion property tax relief and school aid bill signed by Reagan Monday.

Representatives of the California Junior College Association, sponsor of the Alquist measure, recommended that Reagan sign the measure anyway and promised to sponsor a measure next month that would prevent the windfall. "We don't want the windfall," said Leland Meyers, an association official.

Reagan said as it was enacted by the Legislature. The Alquist bill was expected to cost approximately $60 million. But he said if he signed the bill it would supersede provisions of the property tax relief-school finance legislation and cost $111 million.

Drug Charge Results In Prison Term

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 22-year-old Mill Valley man has been sent to federal prison for five years for his part in a $40,000 hashish deal.

Kenneth Michael Stevens was sentenced by Judge Samuel S. Conti in U.S. District Court. The judge also said Stevens was to be placed on parole for two years after serving the prison sentence.

Stevens had earlier pleaded guilty to possessing hashish with intent to distribute it.

He and four other persons were arrested in a raid on a Bolinas house last February. Twenty-two pounds of hashish was seized by federal agents.

Stevens is the second of the five to be sentenced in the case. A woman, Barbara Lynn Coffman, 27, of Bolinas, is serving a six-month federal penitentiary sentence after pleading guilty to a misdemeanor count of possessing hashsh.

Peter B. Erlebron, 29, also of Bolinas, is due to be sentenced tomorrow. He has pleaded guilty to a felony count of possessing the drug with intent to distribute it.

A fourth person, Carl Sheldon Wolfe, 29, of Mill Valley, was acquitted last month by a jury in U.S. District Court, and a fifth defendant, William Paul Wyler, 24, of Baltimore, Md., jumped bail and is missing.

Lockheed Draws On Loan Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has been authorized to draw another $20 million from the $250 million government-backed loan fund Congress authorized to bail the big company out of financial trouble.

The new withdrawal was authorized Wednesday by the federal Emergency Loan Guarantee Board, bringing the total Lockheed has drawn from the fund to $150 million.

Tots Place Orders With Santa

"We had a baby sister but God thought she was so good he took her back to be with him," the child said.

Another caller, told by Santa Claus not to build a fire in the fireplace because he would get burned, responded that she would be ready with first aid.

And another caller asked Santa to bring her the full contents of a toy catalogue — except the things aimed at boys.

The comments and requests were noted last night as Santa Claus received more than 1,500 telephone calls from Marin youngsters through an annual project of the Mill Valley Jaycees and the Independent-Journal. Phones at the I-J office in San Rafael and at the Frank Howard Allen Realty office in Mill Valley were used.

Price Of Beef On The Climb

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The price of beef in Northern California has jumped and will increase more because of a shortage of cattle, an industry spokesman said Tuesday.

"The demand for beef between Thanksgiving and now has just been tremendous," said George Strathearn, the California Beef Council manager.

Department of Agriculture statistics show retailers are paying from four to eight cents per pound more for beef this week than they did last week.

New Method Of Feeding Tried On Ailing Truman

Truman, 88, hospitalized 18 days ago, was in "very serious" condition, sufdering from a weak heart, hardening of the arteries, lung congestion and the buildup of poisons in his system because of the inadequately functioning kidneys.

At a midmorning briefing a medical spokesman said the new feeding process had not had enough time to prove its effectiveness.

"There has been no change in President Truman's condition," said Research Hospital spokesman John Dreves. "Doctors say that it is too soon to know how effective the new feeding process will be. At 7 a.m. (CST) blood pressure was 130 over 60, pulse 90, respiration 18 and temperature 98."

Dreves said kidney output was 530 ccs for the past 24 hours and Truman was given 1,500 ccs of high carbohydrate feed and 200 ccs of essential amino acid solution.

Fearful that the buildup of poison in his system would eventually prove fatal, doctors devised what Dreves called "a new approach to feeding designed to provide essential amino acids normally supplied but without the waste byproducts given off in the normal metabolic process."

Dreves said Wednesday the method is "not on the open market," and is being used under the control of the Food and Drug Administration.

Previously, Truman was fed liquid food through a tube to his stomach.

New Zones Worked Out To Check Sausalito's Growth

In an attempt to limit population growth in Sausalito, the city planning commission decided last night to increase the parcel size required for dwelling units in each of the city's five residential zones.

The commission's recommendation will be forwarded to the city council, according to City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr. If ultimately approved by the council, the change would mean that most existing homes and apartments in Sausalito would become legal nonconforming units.

Should this happen, St. Cyr said persons who wish to expand their dwelling would have to seek variances from the city to do so, but could repair and maintain their homes without city approval.

The commission recommended these increases in required lot size for the various residential zones:

1. R-16, from 6,000 to 8,000 square feet for each single-family home.
2. R-18, from 8,000 to 10,000 square feet for each home.
3. R-120, from 20,000 square feet to one acre for each home.
4. R-2.25, from 2,500 to 5,000 square feet for each duplex and from 5,000 to 7,500 for each duplex unit in the R-2.5 zone.
5. R-3, from 1,500 to 2,500 square feet for each apartment unit in the multiple family zone.

St. Cyr said the planning commission agreed that other zones — like the waterfront zone — which permit residential uses should require 2,500 square feet, rather than the current 1,500 for each unit.

The planning commission's suggestions were in response to a recommendation from the council that the city might control future growth by abolishing the multiple family residential zone in the city.

In other business, the commission approved a conditional use permit to allow David Hunter to construct an 18-unit single-family home planned unit development on about 3.2 acres at the corner of Santa Rosa Avenue and Glen Drive.

The commission also granted a request from the Golden Gate Bridge District to extend its conditional use permit to operate a ferry in Sausalito for 90 days.

The Middle Class Gets Involved

By DAVID HOLMSTROM
The Christian Science Monitor News Service
(Third of four articles)

SAN FRANCISCO — Ellsworth Culver is dressed in a dark business suit. Plucked out of a downtown crowd, he could be a typical corporate executive on his way to a lazy lunch at the local men's club.

Solomon (Scooter) Akins has on flare pants and a soft sweater. Plucked out of the same downtown crowd, he could be a black militant or a "cool dude" on welfare looking for work, but not very hard.

So what are they doing in the same office together with almost $500,000 in foundation money ready to back them up?

What they are doing is guiding a nonprofit organization known as the Involvement Corps, which utilizes employees of business firms in aiding community projects. The aim is to involve middle-class people who do not usually work in this type of activity.

The two men — Culver is executive director of the Involvement Corps and Akins an associate director — are also living examples that whites and blacks can reach across racial and cultural barriers and understand each other to the point of love, a noun both men use fearlessly.

The measure of the Involvement Corps' success and promise, aside from almost $500,000 in recent foundation money, is exemplified by Michelle Heisler, a legal secretary at Foremost-McKesson, Inc., here.

Never before involved in volunteer work, Mrs. Heisler joined the company's Involvement Corps Task Force at Centro Latino, a community center in San Francisco's tough Mission district.

In need of an English tutor, the center welcomed Mrs. Heisler one night with three little non-English speaking Mexican children seated quietly in the room. "I didn't speak a word of Spanish, said Mrs. Heisler. "Just being there was a shock to me. I was brought up in private schools all my life."

The object was to teach English. Now, six months later, a total of 47 children and adults are taking the "course," and Mrs. Heisler's husband, Jerry, is there too, five nights a week. You can find both husband and wife laughing, learning, and sharing like members of the student's families.

"I probably would have gone on the rest of my life the way I was," said Mrs. Heisler, her blue eyes sparkling, "and that was prejudiced with a closed mind. Now I love these children and people like my own nephews and relatives. They hav to be the friendliest people anywhere. The change in me . . . I just can't put it into words."

Exactly how does the Involvement Corps bring people together who would not ordinarily meet in an urban society and harness the onten illusive energy needed for positive change?

First, take a big corporation like Foremost-McKesson or Crown Zellerbach or Levi Strauss. Sell them on the idea that they should allow an Involvement Corps task force to be formed among, say, 200 employees.

Connect the task force to an existing community project of their choice — a tutorial project, a halfway house, a community center — and hire a task force corpsman, like an ex-Peace Corps member, to be the liaison between the project and the task force.

Pay the corpsman around $300 a month out of the pockets of the task force (with maybe some help from the corporation). And ask the corporation to chip in $250 a month to help defray the administrative and staff costs of the Involvement Corps itself.

The result, most often, is that everybody "wins." The corporation takes on genuine "social involvement" (at a low cost), the employees become involved in varying degrees of volunteer work, the corpsman or woman, usually a young person dedicated to social change, works with the project and the corporation in a positive way, and most important, the community project is supported and benefited.

In three years, operating mainly in northern California and Denver, the Involvement Corps has grown from one corporation involved to nearly 25. Recently the W. K. Kellogg Foundation gave the corps $346,342 for expansion into other cities. The Arca Foundation donated another $96,500.

"Corporations have Ralph Nader coming at them from one side," said Scooter Akins, "and the Black Panthers and others coming at them from the other side. What can they do?" Answering his own question, Akins said, "Turn to us. We have a proven program and we are mighty cheap."

Peripheral benefits for the corporation include changes in employee attitudes toward work and the company. Statements offered by employees include: "I have no love for this company, but if they are willing to do this, I'd rather work here than somewhere else." Or, "I'm proud of my company." Or, "Once we got involved on the project the morale among the employees seemed to improve."

"A Gallup Poll taken a few years back," said Culver, "indicated that 61 per cent of the middle-class people polled said they would become involved one way or another n worthwhile community projects. We tap that reservoir of energy by helping people take the first step, and then staying with them."

What really makes the Involvement Corps tick is the "hidden agenda" — the continuing process of change that occurs when human beings from different social and economic backgrounds come together in a non-threatening environment.

"This builds new awareness in people," said Culver, "and they realize, maybe slowly, that they cannot fall back on their old judgments or biases about classes of people. Often this new understanding has to be interpreted so that it can be accepted."

Thus, the Involvement Corps sees itself as an "agent for change."

"There is a cycle to a task force," said Doug Carver, a corpsman for nearly two years on several task forces. "They begin with enthusiasm, but then start bumping into reality and the enthusiasm fades . . . Pretty soon he asks himself, "What the heck am I doing?' "

The answer for Carver is that he is involved in "a demanding, rewarding, frustrating, hateful, growing experience."

The range of task force projects is wide. It includes: backing a food store operated by and for blacks, establishing a free podiatry clinic for the elderly, donating books to a prison education program, obtaining large grants for home kitchen equipment, aiding a halfway house for the mentglly troubled, providing equipment and time in refurbishing and painting homes, providing funds through food and bake sales, tax counseling for low-income families, placing juvenile offenders with volunteers, etc.

Yule Eve Meditation Planned

Marin County will be doused with "rainbows of joy" Christmas Eve, according to a Kentfield woman who plans to transform the Veterans Memorial Building auditorium into an arena for mass meditation exercises on the holy night.

The event - aimed at increasing worldwide love and self-awareness - is sponsored by New Opportunities Worldwide and the House of Man, a non profit group headed by Elga Hindin of Kentfield. Residents who participate in the happening, which begins at 8 p.m., will witness a "production of perfect love on stage," she said. Singers, dancers and an Indian begger who chants will spice the event.

"Marin County will become the focal point of divine energy to be transmitted to all spiritual groups and peoples throughout the planet," she said.

Highlighting the occurences will be a presentation of meditation and Indian mythology, she said.

"There's a force far greater than you and I at work," she declared, saying the performance will "turn the world on with a rose."

Donations collected at the door will be used to finance a self awareness center, perhaps in San Rafael, she said.

Higher Court To Hear Drug Case

A 21-year-old Mill Valley resident has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of having methamphetamine and injecting equipment.

Duerner was arrested Nov. 20 by the California Highway Patrol after his car was stopped for erratic driving on Highway 101 near Paradise Drive and California Park Hill.

The patrol said they found 16 packets of white powder, needles, syringes and a spoon in the car.

Attack By FTC Clouds Future Of Xerox

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) attack on Xerox Corporation's alleged monopoly in the office copying machine market has thrown a cloud of uncertainty over one of Wall Street's favorite growth stocks.

"There were rumors that the FTC was preparing a complaint," noted one brokerage firm analyst. "But no one anticipated the severity of the proposed remedies." After the FTC charges were made public Dec. 12, the high multiple stock tumpled 8 points to 149¼ in a flurry of selling by nervous investors.

The FTC accused Xerox of achieving a dominant position in the $1.7-billion-a-year copying machine industry through the use of unfair marketing and patent practices.

The proscribed practices, the FTC alleged, range from Xerox's refusal to sell its newest models outright, rather than lease them, to maintaining a tight monopoly on patents relating to plain-paper copying technology.

In addition, the agency charged the office equipment giant with an attempt to carve up world market for copying machines between itself and Rank Xerox, Ltd., a British affiliate.

Investors are less perturbed by the FTC's allegations of unfair practices than the sweeping goals of the antitrust suit. If implemented, analysts agree, they would produce a major restructuring of the copying machine industry, with a significantly diminished role for Xerox.

Two of the FTC's potentially most damaging demands, says Peter Labe of Smith Barney & Co., are the divestiture of Rank Xerox and the granting of royalty-free patents to competitors.

Rank Xerox, which is 50 per cent owned by Xerox, had pretax profits of $196 million on revenues of $500 million in 1971, and accounted for more than 30 per cent of total corporate income of $213 million.

Rank Xerox's rapidly growing earnings, which have climbed at better than a 20 per cent annual rate recently, are one reason why Xerox has enjoyed a favored status among institutional investors. "Just the threat of splitting off Rank Xerox," says Dean Witter office equipment analyst Richard Schwarz, "will probably dampen the stock's high multiple."

Without its ties to Xerox, the British organization would be severely handicapped in expanding its office copier operations outside the U.S. and Canada. Rank Xerox relies largely on the parent company's $80-million-a-year research and development program to provide it with new products. And many of its successful marketing plans have evolved as a result of close cooperation with Xerox.

The FTC challenge to Xerox's traditionally invulnerable patent position in an "open invitation" to vastly increased competition in the copying machine industry, analysts say.

Xerox owns more than 2,000 patents in th U.S. and abroad on the Xerography process, which it first acquired from the Battelle Memorial Institute in 1956.

The key patents protect the company's know-how for making photo-copies on standard paper that users can buy anywhere. In the past, Xerox has vigorously defended these patents against infringers and has been highly reluctant to make them available under royalty licenses.

As a result, the company now controls more than 90 per cent of the market for "plain paper" copiers, which many users find much more convenient than machines using chemically coated paper.

There are two dozen companies in addition to Xerox that have a stake in the office copying business. Most of the machine makers like Pitney-Bowes and Dennison Company produce low-speed electrostatic copiers, which sell for $1,500 or less. The most popular Xerox models sell for upward of $2,000 and as high as $30,000. Since IBM introduced its first plain paper copier over a year ago, competition has heated up, analysts say. Several business machine firms soon plan to import Japanese-made copiers that don't require chemically coated paper.

Although competitive with Xerox machines to some extent, the imports are not high-speed copier-duplicators. These "second-generation" high-speed copiers currently are the mainstay of Xerox's business. Although they produce copies for as little as two cents a sheet, these high-volume machines can generate billings of about $8,000-$10,000 a year in a large office.

While analysts are inclined to take a more cautious approach to Xerox's stock in view of the FTC complaint, few view it as an "outright sale." "I'd say the stock is a hold at this point," comments Peter Labe, who removed the company from Smith Barney's recommended list earlier this year.

Wall Street expects Xerox to fight the FTC action vigorously in the courts — all the way up to the Supreme Court, if necessary. "They'd never negotiate a consent settlement on these terms," asserts Schwarz.

Coit Tower Is Lighted Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The sailors from the Aircraft Carrier Coral Sea have once again decorated the top of Coit Tower with Christmas lights.

It is the third year the sailors have climbed to the top of the tower to put up the light display as a gift to San Francisco, the carrier's adopted city.

The giant Christmas tree consists of 288 red and green lights, topped by a rotating beacon.

Tuesday night when Mayor Joseph Alioto participated in the lighting ceremony he called the annual event a sign of "the love affair going on between the Coral Sea and San Francisco."

Money Haul At Center Foiled

When nurse Donna MacLean confronted him, he retorted: "Don't go in there. Can't you read?"

Mrs. MacLean called hospital authorities, who asked the "doctor" for his identification.

He fled out of the building, leaving behind the money changing machine, which contained about $500.

Burton In Race For State Chairmanship

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Liberal Assemblyman John L. Burton formally announced his candidacy for state Democratic chairman yesterday and said his ardent support of Sen. George S. McGovern should not be held against him.

"I don't think because a person supported Sen. McGovern he should be ruled out of the party any more than anyone who supported Sen. Humphrey or Sen. Muskie or anyone else," the San Francisco lawmaker told a news conference.

"What we are trying to do is bring all Democrats—as many as we can—back together."

Burton, co-chairman of McGovern's California campaign, also shrugged off an unfriendly resolution adopted by the party's state executive committee last Saturday. The resolution, approved 26-22 by the 150-member ruling committee, sought to bar partisan public officials from becoming state chairman.

But Burton noted the resolution was not binding on the full State Democratic Central Committee, which will elect a new chairman at its convention Jan. 27-28 in Sacramento.

"I personally feel the resolution was kind of a divisive thing at a time when we're trying to bring the party back together," he said.

Burton, 40, an attorney by profession, is considered the leading candidate to replace Van Nuys lawyer Charles T. Manatt as chairman. Manatt's term will expire after the convention.

Other announced candidates are northern women's chairman Pat Nisbet of Berkeley and northern division chairman of John Merlo of Chico, who contends Burton "represents the errors of the past which have lost us the big one"—the presidential election.

Charles O'Brien of Danville, former chief deputy state attorney general who won the Democratic nomination for attorney general in 1970, also is considering entering the race.

Burton said for Democrats "to be united, we have to draw not only on the young voter but the old voter, not only the hilltop liberal but the flatland blue collar worker. We have to draw on the pensioners and every segment of society."

Burton said he supports the controversial "quota" system of choosing national convention delegates as it was implemented in California. Under that system, traditionally underrepresented women and minorities were placed on the delegation in proportion to their numbers in the population. This irritated many old-line Democrats who were excluded from the delegation.

Top Cadets

Joseph M. Robinson and Gary C. Vanderpool recently were names outstanding cadets in the Air Force Junior Reserve Officer Training Corp at Novato High School during the 1971-72 school year, according to Walter C. Van Emon, aerospace education instructor.

A LOOK AT 1972

Politics, Equal Rights In The Year's Spotlight

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —It was Right On with the women's liberation movement in 1972. And it'll be the same in 1973.

Granted, there were fewer screaming headlines about activists, fewer demonstrations and marches for assorted causes. The biggest news-making events were in politics and in finally getting an equal rights amendment through Congress.

But the progress goes deep in the many areas in which women are especially active.

"This is a behavioral revolution we're in," is the way Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW) put it. Mrs. Heide is a behavioral scientist, lecturer, consultant, writer and former commissioner of the Pennsylvania Human Relations Committee.

"IT'S A mushrooming, cumulative thing," she continues. "Hard to measure, though, because how do you measure what's in one's head? How do you know when a woman decides, 'I think I'll assert myself.'

"I believe in '72 we made enormous gains in self-awareness, self-determination."

Maybe the overt actions were fewer, but the noise has not subsided by any means. "I do not countenance violence," said Mrs. Heide in a telephone interview from her Vernon, Conn., home. "I don't believe in an eye for an eye. But if our commitment is serious, we must be heard. We will march if necessary. We must do everything to prevent violence to the spirit.

"ACTIVISM WORKS. Only when we have taken action have we gotten results in some cases."

She points to the women who interrupted a Senate subcommittee hearing back in 1970 "to get the equal rights legislation moving." The year marked the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage and one of the most headline-making years for the liberationists.

Congress finally in March 1972 ratified the 27th amendment which prohibits discrimination based on sex by any law or action of federal, state or local government. Now, it's up to the states in sufficient number—38—to ratify it. Some already have but there still are many to go.

Mrs. Heide says when 1973 state legislatures go into session, NOW and other organizations will be working at state level to force favorable action.

Feminist groups, of which NOW is the largest, cite other legislative breakthroughs. Among them is a change in the Civil Rights Act which adds a ban on sex discrimination to the ban on racial bias; strengthening powers of the Equal Employment Commission to enforce non-discrimination in employment; extension of the Equal Pay Act which gives additional economic benefits to an estimated 15 million women executives, administrative and professional employes.

ONE OF the major gains Mrs. Heide counts for women is in the world of religion — not only with more women in leadership and ministerial roles (the Jewish faith ordained its first woman rabbi in '72) but in a new awareness that "religion has to become more humane."

By contrast, however, women of the Catholic Church were barred from even the smallest formal role in the ministry in an edict from Pope Paul in 1972. "I sent him a sympathy card," said Mrs. Heide.

NOW, with its 400 chapters around the nation (and a few overseas) is looking in several directions for '73. Ms. Heide said that all told there are about 30 crash programs underway at local and national levels.

First off, scheduled in New York in early May, is an international conference of feminist groups. Mrs. Heide believes it will be the first such session.

IN THE year ahead, women will push for child care legislation — President Nixon vetoed a child care development bill a year ago, calling it fiscally irresponsible, administratively unworkable.

The NOW president sees a need also for further advances in education to get rid of "sexism" and provide education with stress on programs for the individual.

And the organization will push for more women in broadcasting, pressuring the Federal Communications Commission to withhold licenses if stations practice sex discrimination in hiring.

To the question of whether women's activist groups had created a backlash, Mrs. Heide said, "A backlash was predictable. But I like to think of a frontlash. We've had the status quo for centuries.

Women, with 52.5 per cent of the nation's voting strength, reaped the rewards of persistence in the campaign by being named top advisers to the candidates, having their problems considered as important issues and putting more women candidates in the field than ever before. More women than ever before were delegates to both national conventions.

There were three women on minor presidential party tickets but the results of their efforts were obscured by President Nixon's landslide.

Women fared better in the races for House of Representatives. Fourteen were elected or reelected, three of them blacks.

PARENT AND CHILD

Uproar Looms Over School Counseling

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Most public schools and a few private ones are recommending special psychiatric counseling for some students. A noted school psychologist, who must remain anonymous because of his position, declares that parents should exercise their right, if they wish, to refuse any and all such help. He recommends further that parents should refuse all types of help provided by public authorities if they don't agree with the diagnosis or don't wish to use that particular "cure."

Frequently, school officials will, on the basis of a superficial diagnosis, recommend some special program for a child they think is "difficlt." For example, schools have recommended that certain youngsetrs from Spanish speaking homes be assigned to special classes for retarded children on the basis of results on an English-language test.

For many children, this could prove disastrous. Due to the type of schooling in most special-education programs, the normally intelligent, but possibly functionally illiterate child, becomes a victim and not a product of his education. Too often, the child who is tracked or selected for such a program, regardless of lip service to the contrary by school authorities, is stuck in it for the remainder of his schooling years.

WHAT MANY parents do not realize is that they have the right to refuse to have their children placed in such a program. This is particularly true for parents whose native language is not English. Since the school authorities send home reports in English, hold school conferences in English, and many appear to the parents to know what's "best," parents may unknowingly agree to that which is not progressive for their children.

Some communities are getting around this problem by providing translators at every school conference. And some school systems hire well-educated, bilingual community members to make home visits and talk over school problems with parents. Unfortunately, they seldom explain to parents that they have the option to refuse the recommended help.

It's not just the non-English-speaking children who are ill-served by some achievement and intelligence tests. The so-called IQ tests purport to tell a school about the ability of a specific child to learn. But even the designers of the tests know that the tests do no such thing. The fact that there is some correlation between scores on IQ tests and "success" in school is not due so much to native learning ability as to the fact that school programs are based often on those few skills that IQ tests do measure.

Children who misbehave in school are also subject to a battery of tests. School authorities have even been known to tell parents that their children could not stay in school unless they first underwent certain tests and secondly accepted the psychiatric counseling and whatever else was perscribed.

BUT THE SCHOOL psychologist quoted in the opening of the column, who works with deviant youngsters in a large inner-city high school, insists adamantly that parents have the right to refuse to have their children counseled by him — or by any other psychologist or psychiatrist.

A Class In Beginning Chinese Cooking Is Set

Nancy Lee Jue is offering a beginners' series of five Chinese cooking lessons beginning Jan. 10 at the Marin Jewish Community Center in San Rafael. Sessions will begin at 10 a.m.

Because of the strange ingredients and utensils and unusual preparations, Chinese cookery, more than any other, demands demonstrations, according to Nancy Lee Jue.

Over the five-week period she will give a working familiarity with Chinese cooking that she learned at her mother's side and over 25 years of cooking and teaching.

Courses in flower arranging, folk dancing, babysitting and exercising are also offered at the center. All are five or six-week courses and begin in January.

Pierre Bitterer will teach instant gourmet cooking Thursdays at 10:30 a.m.

Flower arranging, taught by Mickey Collins, will meet Tuesdays at 10 a.m. She will demonstrate how to assemble party centerpieces, arrangements of pods, seeds, dried flowers, greens and fresh flowers.

Yvonne Rich will teach Israeli dances Wednesdays at 8 p.m. Sylvia Boorstein will combine music, movement and yoga in an exercise class Fridays.

The babysitter training class has two purposes. Teen-aged boys and girls will be trained in first aid, educational activities and basic concepts of child psychology to improve babysitting techniques. Babysitters who have completed the course will be put on a list for parents who need sitters.

Mail Early

Formal invitations to a large wedding and reception are usually mailed three to four weeks in advance.

Easy Desserts With Gelatin

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make your own natural fruit-flavored gelatin desserts as easily as you prepare a box of commercial fruit-flavored gelatin. No presoftening of unflavored gelatin is needed if you first mix it well with an equal measure of sugar, or more to taste.

Heat canned or fresh fruit juice to boiling — 2 cups for each envelope, or tablespoon, of gelatin — and pour all at once over dry ingredients. Stir until crystals dissolve. Pour into mold and chill until set.

Foil Shouldn't Block Air Flow

If you use aluminum foil in the oven, make sure it is not blocking circulation from vents or the oven will lose heat. Foil directly under a pan will divert heat from the pan.

Instead, place a slightly larger pan or piece of foil on the next lower rack to catch spillovers, suggests the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association.

Ideas On Gifts For Bicyclists

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gift suggestions for boys and girls and men and women with bicycles:

School Rules Are Not Helpful In Learning How To Grow Up

HELEN AND SUE:

I have a good, steady girlfriend. When we meet in the hall at school we think it's okay to hold hands, but our principal has a rule that says there can be no physical contact between boys and girls. Heck, I wouldn't kiss her madly or anything, but what's wrong with walking down the hall hand-in-hand? Yet the teachers watch us like hawks.

They keep preaching "maturity" at high school and how we should act grown up. Well, adults show these little signs of affection and everyone thinks it's great that they care. Wjhy not us? — SLAPPED DOWN FOR HOLDING HANDS

SDFHH:

Good point! Why not make it to your principal? Like with a letter to the editor of your school paper? If the principal and teachers still thumbs-down hand-holding, then ask them nicely to knock off the "grown-up" jargon. — SUE

DEAR SLAPPED DOWN:

Principals who waste time enforcing silly rules subtract valuable time from the learning process. They end up with resentful students and teachers-turned-hall monitors (often against their wills).

I suspect hand-holding isn't the big issue here, but rather the general "Big Brother is watching you" attitude.

Good luck with your campaign. —HELEN

DEAR RAP:

This is a different kind of question. I have a dog that I want mated to the male dog of a good-looking man friend. No problem —he gets one of the pups. But we're both kind of shy — and kind of attracted to each other, though we haven't dated yet.

It's going to be very embarrassing, taking my dog over to get her married. Could you give me some kind of bright little offhand quip to say as we (the guy and I) meet at the door? — NEW WORKING GIRL

DEAR GIRL:

How about: "Well, here's my dog to meet her maker."? — HELEN

DEAR N.W.G.:

Why be embarrassed? Just hope the guy will take you out for dinner during the doggie honeymoon. — SUE

HELEN AND SUE:

Here's one way of teaching these chicks that women's liberation has its drawbacks.

My girl figures she can do anything a man can do, and to prove it she's operating a fork lift in a manufacturing plant. She doesn't look like the truck-driver type.

The other night I asked her over to meet my folks, but I told them only that I was bringing a fork lift operator from the plant. Then I sat back and guffawed at the startled looks on my parents' faces.

Lemme tell you, even the most liberated girl doesn't want to be introduced as "My friend, the truck driver." She spent the whole evening showing us all how feminine she was. — CHUCK THE TRUCK DRIVER'S FRIEND

DEAR CHUCK:

We'll bet she spent the next week making you repentant for practical jokes. Right? — HELEN AND SUE

The Graceful Look

Some fashion observers are using the word "grace" to describe spring looks being served up by American designers. The clothes are the ultimate in romantic and feminine looks.

Invite Clergy

If there is to be a wedding reception, even just for the immediate families and close friends, the clergyman (and his wife, if applicable) should always receive an invitation.

What To Wear

For a semiformal-day-time wedding the bride wears a white or pale pastel floor-length or shorter gown with an elbow-length or shorter veil.

It's Party Time In Marin During Yuletide Holidays

By MOLLY MARIN

The next few days are party time in Southern Marin.

Old fashioned decorations will deck the Belvedere Lagoon home of Mrs. Cort Majors when she and her sister, Mrs. John Stanford Brown of Belvedere, entertain 70 friends on Thursday evening, Dec. 21. Assisting Mrs. Brown will be her granddaughter, Jennifer Stice, a University of California student.

Outdoor colored lights, hung on decks and reflected by the lagoon, are a source of pleasure to lagoon neighbors.

Mrs. Majors has just returned from a three month tour of the East.

She saw Broadway productions of "Peppin," "Godspell," and particularly enjoyed seeing Ruby Keeler perform in "No, No, Nanette." and then visiting with her old friend.

Next she went to Washington, D. C. and toured the White House.

She spent Thanksgiving at a fox hunt at the home of her daughter and husband, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Banner of Kingsport, Tenn. Seventy guests attended their hunt breakfast.

Mrs. Majors plans to visit another daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Voorheis of LaJolla after Christmas.

ONE HUNDRED friends and family members will gather at an afternoon open house on Saturday at the Belvedere residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Westberg. The family moved from Mill Valley to the old Belvedere home in August.

A TRADITIONAL "Christmas Eve Chowder and Marching Society" party will be held at the Belvedere home of Mr. and Mrs. William Main. The 24 guests will be the friends of their sons, Bill and Rob, and their friends' parents.

Guests will gather after religious services for egg-nog, followed by chowder and "Buche de Noel," a chocolate Yule log cake.

Attending with their children will be Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Elbert, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Moody, Mrs. David Mushet and Mrs. Eugene Rauscher.

MR. AND Mrs. Robert Marshall, who moved to Belvedere last year when their ranch home became part of Point Reyes National Seashore, plan a cocktail party tonight.

Mrs. Marshall has invited 50 friends and relatives to enjoy soup and sandwiches from her buffet with houseguests Col. and Mrs. Edward Serrem of Lakewood, Wash., her parents, and Lt. and Mrs. John Reitz, her brother and sister-in-law.

A COCKTAIL party for a few neighbors will be held at the Tiburon home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rutkowski tomorrow evening.

A DINNER for 16 relatives and neighbors will celebrate the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coyne of Kennilworth, Ill., at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison of Belvedere tomorrow. They will be Christmas visitors.

Class Offered On Nutrition And Health

The classes are scheduled weekly for four sessions to help parents and day care home operators and instructors learn the nutritional needs of children, according to Frances Dahl, nutrionist, who will be the instructor. She is nutritionist with the Marin Department of Health Services.

Classes will be held in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium in San Rafael.

Explains It

There's no need for a bride to panic about something going wrong at her wedding. The clergyman will explain what everyone must do during the ceremony at the wedding rehearsal which should be held before rather than after the traditional dinner.

Ring Moved

Before the wedding, preferably that morning, the bride places her engagement ring on her right hand, leaving the third finger on her left hand bare for the wedding ceremony. Of course it is proper for her to slip the engagement ring over the wedding ring on her left hand before the reception.

Sealing Cracks Cuts Fuel Cost

Sealing off cracks and openings around doors and windows can save you from 10 to 30 per cent of your heating costs, advises the American Gas Association.

It also suggests closing draperies at night to keep heat in and keeping the furnace thermostat no higher than 72 degrees for maximum heat without exceptional cost.

In Static Society, No Room At The Inn

The woes of the world, we are told, result in large part from "growthmania" (a word coined by Herman E. Daly, associate professor of economics at Louisiana State University).

The only answer to increasing crowding and increasing pollution, we are told by planners, demographers, sociologists and environmentalists, is a stationary state, with zero population growth.

To achieve this, they propose an assortment of controls. Among them is limitation on population in any given locality by planning. If each county, for instance, would place a limit on the number of households it would permit (as is proposed in Marin County), it could prevent growth by in-migration.

But that would not be enough. The control might still be ruptured by large families. And so the birth control advocates urge that somehow limitations be imposed on family size. One of their most ingenious suggestions is that of Kenneth Boulding, an economist, to require licenses for having children — as we have now for owning dogs or driving automobiles. Each couple would be licensed at marriage to have two children — no more.

SUPPOSE THE GOALS of these advocates of the stationary state were realized. Growth was halted by planning. Only enough births were licensed to replace those who died. Theoretically, zero population growth would be achieved — and with it, the stationary state.

But there are always some who will not abide by the rules.

Despite the most earnest enforcement efforts, there would be some who refused to fit the plan. Some married couples would have illegal children; so would some unmarried couples.

But these could not be absorbed by the pre-planned communities. There would be no homes for them, for the planners would permit only enough homes for the pre-ordained population.

So what would we have?

WE WOULD HAVE a strange, nomadic population outside of the controls —a sad reminder of the "hippy communes" of today. It would not be by choice of the members of these nomadic tribes, however. They simply would have no place to go.

They would be, permanently, like many people of the Roman Empire were temporarily nearly 2,000 years ago, when the Emperor Augustus ordered that all families go to designated cities to pay their taxes.

Among those ordered to go to Bethlehem to be taxed were a man named Joseph and his pregnant wife, Mary, from Nazareth.

They were no different from thousands of others who made the trip, except that while in Bethlehem, Mary gave birth to a son, and, as related in Luke 2:7:

"And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn."

JOSEPH HAD a home in Nazareth to which, after paying his taxes, he could return with his wife and their new-born son, whom he named Jesus.

The nomads created by "zero population growth" planning would have none. There would be no room for them in the inn — ever.

Should State Help Train For Non-Existent Jobs?

By EARL G. WATERS

In his discussion with the University of California Board of Regents over costs of higher education, State Finance Director Verne Orr pointed to a disturbing tendency on the part of those in charge of running the university.

"In auditing and budgeting," Orr said, "it sometimes seems we do not have a single university, but nine autonomous campuses competing with each other for the largest share of available dollars with no regard for duplication or the welfare of the whole."

The same thing might apply to the 19 state colleges.

The thought provokes the question of what should be the main objective of higher public education? Obviously one of the principal goals should be to equip the young for productive endeavors.

Is this being done?

WITH EDUCATIONAL costs skyrocketing and tax sources being strained, perhaps it is time for some serious review of the college and university programs.

One question which deserves study is the validity of open enrollments in fields of study which lead to occupations already overcrowded.

Should there be a correlation between courses offered and tne employment market?

There will be those who immediately challenge such a suggestion. Who, they will ask, is to play God with the desires and ambitions of individuals? If someone wants to become an engineer, is it proper to bar him by establishing restrictions upon enrollment in courses leading to that fulfillment?

But there is another side to that coin.

THERE IS AT PRESENT an oversupply of teachers in this state. There is also a declining enrollment, so the overabundance will become more so. Yet, we keep on training teachers without limit at all of the state-supported schools.

Is it fair to the taxpayers to ask them to pay for the training of people for jobs that don't exist? Is it fair to the students to encourage them in taking educational programs for which there are no jobs?

This same oversupply exists in other fields.

The college people will tell you the labor markets are unstable. They fluctuate. Limiting courses because of transitory oversupplies would result in disrupting shortages.

Those arguments don't seem valid. Certainly such things are predictable. Would it not be better to direct students into programs with brighter prospects?

THE IDEA of restricted enrollments is not new. The fact is it exists of necessity in fields where there are shortages. The medical schools have always limited enrollments.

As for depriving a student with a burning desire to achieve in his chosen field, limited enrollments won't stop that fellow. He'll get there one way or another. Many an aspiring medical doctor has overcome that barrier.

Whether limiting enrollments in crowded fields would reduce the overall costs of higher public education, the responsibility of those managing the schools seems clear. They should make the most of the educational dollar and not waste it training people for jobs that don't exist.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

The first day of winter is a reminder that it's later than you think sooner than you thought.

It's time for all you happily married men to stop arguing with your wives and start complaining about the weather.

Seems unfair that the shortest day in the year comes just when you have so much Christmas shopping to do.

This is the time of year when used-car salesmen are as honest as the day is long.

Campaign Contribitions Fully Reported

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Peterzell did not direct his questions regarding my campaign spending report to my treasurer, Mrs. Miriam Beall of San Anselmo, or to me personally.

My statement included the names of every contributor-even those who gave $1 to my recent campaign for supervisor. These individual contributions added up to the $3,431 figure which he said was "missing". In addition, Mr. Peterzell had received these figures as the campaign progressed. All these many names were listed in my report with pride, as those names represented the essence of my campaign . . .

'Zoning By Loophole' In Marin County Areas

Few people know that our neighborhood is zoned for private country clubs as well as single family residences, therefore making it legal to say you are subdividing land for one acre residences when you really intend to rip out thirty-five large trees and two hillsides, fill, grade and pave for three tennis courts and a 35-car parking lot, and dump the run-off directly onto an already flood-tormented neighborhood. It is legal for the planning department to notify adjacent residents that the land is to be used for homes, even when their maps show the name of a tennis club. In fact, notices are not actually required, as no variance is involved. It is entirely legal for the Planning Department to tell questioners that the land will indeed be used for homes and that no courts are planned. It is legal for the planners to approve the land for home use, when they know a tennis club is proposed.

It is legal, but it is also frightening. Law by loophole is threatening at any level. As environmental concerns increase and land use agencies multiply in number and complexity, developers must become even more skillful at working the loopholes. If Marin County is serious about protecting its superb environment, loopholes must be closed. Citizens must be able to get at the truth easily. Perhaps someone at Civic Center should be designated to help inexperienced protesters through the land agency maze.

Many Fail To Report Abuse Of Animals

The article on the front page of the Independent Dec. 16 with a picture of a dog being fed by an employee of the Sausalito Post Office was not only beautifully written by Jay Goodwin, but made me aware, as I'm sure others, why is this abuse to animals allowed to go on? The two five-year-old dogs were half starved and thrown out of a car on Bridgeway.

If everyone made it a point to observe and report animal abuse to the humane societies, and made sure these societies investigated, maybe the human societies wouldn't have the rather "careless" reputation they have. Too many people take the attitude, "It's not my concern," and are too cowardly, afraid they might be involved. So the poor helpless animals suffer unnecessarily.

Birthright Official Describes Policies

Communications are so important and we welcome the chance to make clear our position at Birthright in response to the letter from Barbara George of Planned Parenthood.

Since we are a pro-life group we naturally think and act in a manner that will convince our clients of the value of two human lives, theirs and their baby's.

There are many difficulties that can occur in a pregnancy and our volunteers are committed to the ideal that problems can be solved in a less violent way than killing a human life in utero.

Our philosophy concerning an unwanted child is that every child conceived has a right to life, and given the opportunity to live will be wanted by himself if by no one else.

We thank Planned Parenthood for the referrals, assuring them that we are fully aware of the nature and scope of their services.

Businessmen Not All For Shopping Center

Pat Parry's article, "Corte Madera Maintains Center Spirit" (Dec. 1) sounds more like an advertisement for the firm of Bartels, Norville and Hahn or, possibly, it's affiliate, Sedway and Cooke. . . . It is interesting to note that Mr. Bartels is getting the "feeling" from public meetings that there is little opposition. With an approximate 90 per cent attendance record at those meetings, I am forced to conclude that we are either attending different meetings or Bartels has lost the faculty for hearing or his capacity for sorting out the difference between truth, fiction and/or fantasy.

It goes on to cite the C of C's "enthusiastic endorsement" of the redevelopment agency and the proposed new shopping center. It fails to make mention of a recent private canvass of in excess of 90 per cent of the local businesses where 82 per cent of the owners/managers indicated opposition to the proposed shopping center.

The chamber's president is then quoted (courtesy of Town Hall) concerning "a sprinkling" of people who don't understand the immense advantageous impact of the agency and the new center. Quite the contrary, Mrs. Valk, "parrots" do not understand, informed, intelligent people do. There are one heck of a lot more of them in this town than the council, the expensive consultants or the vested interests realize.

Mrs. Valk also (again, courtesy of Town Hall) cites the fantastic revenues that will be forthcoming from the proposed center. It is rather disheartening to consider that the chamber, which is supposed to represent the business establishment, doesn't approach it's public pronouncements in a more businesslike manner. In order to produce the kinds of revenues being quoted, Hahn's center has to produce additional, equivalent sales that approximate one third of the total taxable sales for the entire County of Marin for last year. . .

New Resurgence Of Racism Worries Kennedy, Other Leaders

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy sent a shock wave through the ranks of the divided Democrats when he came out with praise for President Nixon and the pledge of full cooperation in the Congress. Did this mean that the leader whom many of the faithful see as the champ in 1976 had capitulated in the face of the landslide with only his own state of Massachusetts failing to join the parade?

At the Pearson Foundation awards lunch, Averell Harriman interpreted it as meaning that Kennedy was merely setting up the target to knock it down. But it is more than that.

Kennedy sees as surely as perhaps anyone in his party the perilous dilemma Democrats face. He understands that the public doesn't relish the idea of the opposition coming out fighting at the opening bell when the new Congress convenes. Mere obstructionism is not going to win any prizes.

THE SICKNESS, as Kennedy sees it, goes much deeper than the tactics of Congress vs. the President; deeper than Robert Strauss vs. Jean Westwood. It can be put in one word: racism.

The most disturbing aspect of the campaign and the aftermath was the way in which racism won respectability of a sort. At a wide level, integration of the races had begun to be accepted. Now the current has been reversed and the evidence comes from a variety of sources.

Leonard Woodcock, head of the United Auto Workers, was dismayed to find members who openly expressed their racial antagonism. They may have been submerged George Wallaceites at the beginning of the 1968 campaign when the union went to work to bring them back into the Democratic fold. They certainly contributed to Wallace's 50 per cent-plus majority in the Michigan primary this year. Woodcock's impression was that they had moved beyond this to a declared hostility toward any easing of the racial barriers.

That same racism, as Kennedy observed it, occurred at the levels of Little League football coaches and ward and precinct workers. They seemed to be saying, "No more, we've had enough."

PUBLIC CONVEYANCES were integrated, so were lunch counters, theaters and other places of normal public access. But none of this touched the fundamental grievance of blacks locked in the core cities and ringed around by white suburbs. With a radical approach in housing and land use, that lock must be broken if the Democratic party is to have a chance of pulling itself together; or it should be added in a far more serious vein if we are to be one nation indivisible.

The odds against this happening are considerable. The issue of busing to integrate the schools used so insidiously by the Nixon strategists scared the life out of many liberal Democrats. In Michigan, Rep. James G. O'Hara, once rated liberal on civil rights, told all and sundry at every rally that he was against busing. He barely squeaked through.

A LOOK at the black side of the dilemma is equally dismaying. Increasingly, the militants are also separatists. They want no truck with Whitey; they intend to go their own separate way, and this can mean a separate black presidential ticket in 1976.

Recent all-black movies are loaded with antiwhite racism. Their theme is that Whitey may be vicious but we can be twice as vicious and overcome him. Pauline Kael, the discerning movie critic of the New Yorker, writes of how M-G-M and Warner Brothers are exploiting this type of film to save the downtown theaters and their own bacon. Super Fly with a black hero who is a cocaine seller and a pimp puts down two black civil rights workers by telling them he will support them only if they buy guns to shoot Whitey. This scene, according to Miss Kael, drew cheers when she saw the film. The low-budget picture, about a half million, has already grossed $12 million.

Here is peril, imminent peril, not for some remote time but for the day after tomorrow. Crime in the streets is another code expression for racism. It is being generated by both sides of what is rapidly becoming a great divide.

No Chance For Tidy Frontier In Any Vietnam Settlement

No matter what happens now in the form of an agreement for ending the Vietnam war (if there is one), the result will not be like Germany or Korea.

In both of those cases the settlement was at least geographically tidy. There are clear, elaborately marked and massively armed frontiers which separate the two Germanies and the two Koreas. Nothing seems likely to change those frontiers for a long time ahead. The longer they last, the more fixed they seem to become.

It was always an American hope that a similar geographic tidiness could be had in Vietnam. That sort of thing was certainly in Lyndon Johnson's mind when he used to talk about "nailing the coonskin to the door." And that sort of thing is something President Thieu of South Vietnam still yearns to have. But his chances are negligible.

THE MOST President Thieu can possibly hope for now is that he and his armed forces will be in reasonably firm control of the cities and of the highway and rail lines connecting the cities after the American forces pull out.

But in the countryside between the cities, and all along the road and rail lines, there still will be units of the Viet Cong tilling the fields by day, but ready on call to toss a grenade or lay an ambush at night.

And will there also be substantial units of the regular army of North Vietnam holding important mountain areas in which will be ample supplies of all the things that guerrilla armies need to keep up their activities indefinitely?

Henry Kissinger won a lot from Le Duc Tho in his long negotiations. There is not going to be any coalition government which the Communists might be able to control in short order. And President Thieu will have a veto in the new council to be set up to supervise an election.

But, so far as we know at this writing, Mr. Kissinger could not get the one last thing President Thieu needs to gain security. Mr. Kissinger could not get agreement by Hanoi to pull all of its regular troops out of the South and bring them back above the old so-called demilitarized zone (DMZ.)

If all the North Vietnamese troops were to go home and if the DMZ were to be respected, then the result would be something like the tidy geographic division which exists in Germany and Korea. But one cannot expect to gain at the peace table something which the armed forces were unable to gain on the battlefield.

IT IS ONLY a military fact of today that Hanoi has deployed an army of 14 divisions into South Vietnam and that it has been able to stay there in spite of everything which the Saigon army, backed by air and sea forces of the United States, could do to drive it out.

Obviously, Hanoi will not want to keep the bulk of its regular forces south of the DMZ after a formal peace is signed, if it is. But it would not take much of those 14 divisions to hang on to the mountain enclaves which are now firmly in their control.

The result is bound to be that "leopard skin" type of condition which President Thieu has so often warned against.

And so long as there are the spots of North Vietnam bases there will be an opportunity for linking those spots together into ever bigger blotches of Viet Cong control.

BOTH IN KOREA and in Germany the dividing line between the two parts was fixed by the movements of great armies. Where the armies came to rest the lines were drawn.

But there has never been a single battle line in Vietnam. The armies have been mixed up. There hasn't been a war like this since the French and Indian wars on the American frontier. And the fighting is tapering off now in this inconclusive and geographically mixed-up condition.

In other words, don't be surprised by anything that happens in Vietnam.

We have no recent precedent. The results will certainly not be like those in Germany or Korea. It is highly unlikely that all fighting will cease even if there is a formal cease-fire. And political stability may be a decade away. Besides, no one can possibly foresee what will be the eventual political pattern.

It's All Paris' Fault That Peace Talks Get Nowhere

WASHINGTON — Everyone has his own theory as to why the Paris peace talks bogged down so badly. My theory is they failed because they were held in Paris.

If anyone is to blame for the disastrous course the peace negotiations have taken, it's the French. When France invited all parties to Paris to work out a settlement of the war in Indochina, she unknowingly set the stage for one of the longest stalemates in history.

THIS IS WHAT happened: As soon as the French made their offer, both sides accepted with alacrity. Is there a peace negotiator alive who wouldn't want to work out a just and honorable end to a war, any war, in Paris?

Where else are there so many diversions when the talks get tough and the going is hard? Where else can you invite the enemy to your villa for dinner and then go to his chateau for lunch the next day? Waht other city offers three-star restaurants to discuss the finer points of a treaty, and plus hotel suites to button down the conditions for a cease-fire?

The French in their ignorance have provided the most luxurious surroundings for the representatives of North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Viet Cong and the United States.

Is it any wonder that although everyone has been struggling for five years, we're still no closer to an agreement than we were at the beginning?

If you were from Hanoi or Saigon, would you be in a hurry to work out a settlement, when there are so many things in Paris to take your mind off the war? While American diplomats complain about the intransigence of the other side, there isn't one of them who isn't secretly thrilled to spend two or three weeks haggling at the peace table and dining at the Rothschilds'.

THE UGLY TRUTH of the matter is that if we ever hope to reach any sort of peace in Indochina, we have to move the talks out of Paris and hold them either in the Arctic Circle or the Sahara Desert.

We must make the scene of the negotiations as primitive and as uncomfortable as possible. The negotiators should be exposed to extreme heat, with despicable food, bug-ridden accommodations, and the threat of frostbite or malaria hanging over them every day.

Instead of long, black limousines to take them to and from the conference, they should be supplied with dog sleds or camels, and their own camps should be 50 miles from the site of the talks.

Instead of meeting once a week in the ballroom of the Majestic Hotel, they should be required to sit in an igloo or a tent seven days a week, 16 hours a day, exposed to each other's body odors.

No more comfortable walks in the garden in the Paris suburbs for Le Duc Tho and Henry Kissinger. Let them sit in the middle of a sandstorm and work out their differences. Or, if they prefer, let them squat over a hole in the ice in the Arctic and talk while they're fishing for their supper.

IT IS TIME world pressure is put on the French to kick the peace talks out of Paris. We can thank them for their hospitality and their good intentions, but now it is obvious to everyone that ever since the talks began in the French capital neither side has had any sense of urgency to reach a final agreement.

The North and South Vietnamese, the Viet Cong and the American delegations may protest at being so unceremoniously booted out, but it is now clear they'll never see a light at the end of the tunnel as long as they have so many lights in Paree.

Contract For 101 Overpass Is Awarded

The state has awarded for $886,713 contract for construction of a new four-lane overpass for Highway 101 at East Washington Street, Petaluma.

Wilmac Constructors Inc. of Sacramento received the contract and was the lowest of seven bidders when bids were opened Nov. 22.

The new structure will replace the present two lane bridge. The lanes will be separated by a 12-foot median strip and include a five foot walkway on the southside. Plans also call for a barrier railing to prevent pedestrians from dropping objects onto the freeway.

The contractor has 290 working days to finish the project.

San Anselman Admits Burglary

A 26-year-old San Anselmo man had admitted a burglary charge on condition he receives no more than six months in jail.

Edward Calvin Hunt pleaded guilty after a sentencing agreement was arranged between Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court, Hunt's attorney and the district attorney.

Hunt was arrested Oct. 17 after the Western Sport Shop in San Rafael reported he sold two guns at the store. The weapons were stolen from a San Anselmo residence Oct. 6, police said.

Two Guilty In Cooper Fraud Case

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Two men were found guilty by a federal court jury Wednesday of defrauding a former Newsweek magazine writer of $30,000 for a fake interview with the legendary skyjacker, D.B. Cooper.

William "Jack" Lewis, 33, ad Donald S. Murphy, 49, both of the Bremerton, Wash., area where they have engaged in real estate development, were found guilty on all three counts of fraud and conspiracy to defraud.

They claimed the writer, Karl P. Fleming, knew he was buying an interview from a man impersonating Cooper, who is wanted for the 1971 Thanksgiving eve hijacking of a Northwest Airlines jet and extorting $200,000 in marked currency.

Lewis was accused of setting up an interview for Fleming with Murphy impersonating the skyjacker. Testimony showed that Murphy obtained $9,000 of the $30,000 Fleming paid for the interview. Murphy said Lewis deducted $3,000 for expenses and split the rest with his father, William J. "Bill" Lewis. Lewis denied his father had obtained any of the money.

The jury received the case Tuesday evening but was unable to reach a verdict immediately and was sent home by Judge Walter Mc Govern. The nine men and three women returned their verdict about two hours after resuming deliberations.

Fleming said he originally sought the story for Newsweek, of which he was a contributing editor, but later obtained it for the new Los Angeles weekly, La, of which he became editor.

Marriages, Dissolutions Show Increase

Couples in Marin and Sonoma counties are marrying in greater numbers this year but more of them are also splitting, the state Department of Public Health said today.

Marriage licenses issued in Marin totalled 1,106 this year as compared to 765 in 1966. Divorce or dissolutions granted in the county totalled 931 this year as compared to 485 in 1966.

Marriage licenses issued in Sonoma totalled 1,297 this year as compared to 832 in 1966. Divorce or dissolutions granted totalled 889 this year as compared to 411 in 1966.

Pair To Prison In Fraud Case

MODESTO (UPI) — Former Justice Court Judge Lowell Jensen, 46, of Newman, and his business partner Robert Griffiths, 46, were sentenced to prison Tuesday by Alpine County Superior Court Judge Hiliary Cook.

The two men previously pleaded guilty to 12 counts including defrauding investors in their investment service company, misrepresenting securities and violating state cease and desist orders.

The pair was indicted by the county grand jury after a state audit revealed their investment service company had taken in $2.2 million from 350 investors but only had $400,000 in assets.

Australia Is Now Under Labor Rule

CANBERRA (UPI) —Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and members of the first Labor government in 23 years were sworn into office Tuesday by Governor-General Sir Paul Hasluck.

The 27 new ministers actually constituted Whitlam's second cabinet. He was sworn in first on Dec. 5 as head of a two-member interim cabinet which ran the country until final vote counts were in.

He resigned today and was sworn in again as prime minister with Lance Barnard as his deputy.

Current Cocktail Patter: The Post's Social Snub

By RICHARD L. STROUT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Under headline "White House Bans Post from Parties" the society page of the Washington Post charges that it is being penalized for the paper's Watergate coverage by being excluded from three social events given by President and Mrs. Nixon.

Society news is important in the capital, and exclusion of the morning paper, or even the threat of it, must be weighed by editors.

Veteran Washington Post reporter Dorothy McCardle was assigned to cover three events — two of the paid for by taxpayers — but was restricted to the press lobby, according to the newspaper, while a "pool" covered the affairs.

Nixon administration spokesmen have been harsh toward the paper for its energetic coverage of the Watergate bugging episode; in which the White House charges that the paper drew unfair inferences. The trial of the case starts next month and there may be a congressional investigation. The issue involves espionage and sabotage efforts in the election with alleged links to the White House.

The Washington Post's managing editor, Howard Simons, commented, "I'm dismayed . . . if this is true . . . that the White House would act this way toward the Washington Post when social events at the White House are so much a part of the community of news."

Few cities give so much attention to society as does Washington, and often international events find their first airing in these columns.

Others discuss astronauts and Vietnam. But today many Washington families debate whether Mrs. McCardle was, or was not, "restricted."

It began last Friday when the veteran Mrs. McCardle arrived to cover a White House reception for so-called "new majority" supporters. She was told that a "pool" (a representative group) of five reporters had been picked to cover the affair, and that she and five other reporters were not. The pool is supposed to report back to the excluded reporters after the event.

The White House said that with 600 guests they had to limit coverage.

On Saturday evening Mrs. McCardle arrived to cover a formal dinner the Nixons were giving to past, present and future Cabinet members.

Mrs. McCardle found that a pool of six was covering that affair without her. She was the only reporter excluded, says the Post which printed the story discreetly inside. Nothing personal, a White House spokesman explained graciously.

Mrs. McCardle wanted, however, to be in the swim.

Mrs. McCardle began to feel persecuted when she arrived Sunday to cover a worship service at the White House, at which John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia officiated.

"Sorry", the White House spokesman said. She had not been included in a pool of 10 reporters. She sat out the services in the press lobby along with one other reporter who had failed to pick up his credentials in time.

Mrs. McCardle has been covering White House social events for years. A "pool" is not uncommon but, normally, reporters from all Washington papers are included.

Mrs. McCardle says she also was informed that she would be excluded from a Monday affair at the White House at which the Nixons entertain children of foreign diplomats.

Washington is watching Mrs. McCardle with interest.

President Nixon gave a spectacular scoop to the Washington Star, an afternoon rival of the Washington Post, in a frank preelection hour-long interview published right after the landslide. This was the interview in which Nixon referred to Americans as "children" who could be spoiled by permissiveness.

The Star has recently merged with the tabloid Washington News and tends to be less liberal than its competitor, the Post.

Some have seen a post-election White House policy of deliberate exclusives going to the Star. The latter, however, maintains an independent political stance, though it supported Nixon for re-election.

Boy, 6, Saved In Dog Attack

SAN JOSE (UPI) — A 6-year-old-boy was savagely attacked by a dog and would have been killed if a neighbor had not rescued him, police reported yesterday.

Officers said the child, Warren Laughlin, apparently wandered into a back yard where he was attacked by a powerful pit bull terrier.

Mrs. Dennis O'Neil, next door, heard screams. She and her husband rushed out and O'Neil battled the animal while his wife grabbed the youngster and rushed him to a hospital.

The boy was reported recovering from serious bites on his head, arms and body.

Plane Lagoon Will Be Filled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Airport Commission approved a plan Tuesday to fill in an unused seaplane lagoon at San Francisco International Airport.

The lagoon once was used by Coast Guard seaplanes, since replaced by land based search and rescue planes and helicopters.

The commission voted to spend $358,000 on preparation of construction plans. The lagoon covers a 160-acre site ad its filling is part of an airport expansion program.

Cruise of the Challenger

One hundred years ago this month, the HMS Challenger set out on a 4-year voyage to study the oceans. The steam-assisted sailing ship, commissioned by the Royal Society of London for Improving Natural Knowledge, had been converted to a scientific laboratory by removing most of its guns. On its journey over 7,000 species of animals were collected. Over half of these species were new to science. The ship visited many remote places in the Atlantic and Pacific. It was the first steam ship to cross the Antarctic Circle. As a result of the Challenger's voyage, much was learned about the depth and character of the seas.

DO YOU KNOW — What section of the Apollo 17 ship was named Challenger?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Willy Brandt.

Simon's 'The Sunshine Boys' Arrives; A Truly Funny Play

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) —What Broadway has needed for many weeks—a truly funny play— finally arrived last night at the Broadhurst Theater with the premiere of "The Sunshine Boys."

And it has two of the theater's most skilled players of comedy in the top roles, Jack Albertson and Sam Levene, who get knowing and affection direction from Alan Arkin, who is no novice when he plays comedy in the acting phase of his career.

At a quick glance, this might seem like the most insubstantial of Simon's comedies. But there is a certain depth to it in the sense of the study of two elderly men, and this could be viewed as applying to certain aspects of old age in general terms. Laughs pile upon laughs, yet there is much of human nature exposed, and a little pathos can be discerned in retrospect.

Willie Clark, played by Albertson, and Al Lewis, the role for Levene, spent 43 years in vaudeville as a top comedy team doing sketches. As the play begins, it has been 11 years since Al, apparently seeing the end of their career approaching, retired from show business, went into Wall Street for a spell and finally retired to his daughter's home in New Jersey.

Willie has had little chance to get work during those 11 years. He is bitter because, although he had no desire to retire, Al, for all practical purposes, retired him. He has built up a hate for Al all this time, especially recalling certain tricks Al used in their act that always irritated him.

Willie's young nephew, in advertising, brings the offer of a television network for the team to make one reunion appearance on a broadcast saluting comedy greats of the past.

Willie fights the idea, which Al has agreed to. The nephew finally gets the two of them together in Willie's room to brush up on one of their sketches. Old arguments are dug up, new ones develop and the deal is in jeopardy.

However, the two finally are coaxed into going ahead, and they go through a rehearsal in a television studio that proceeds hilariously until Al used the old tricks so annoying to Willie. The latter blows up, Al walks out of the deal and Willie has a heart attack.

In the final scene, the two old partners get together again as Willie is recovering, have some more arguments and then simmer down to the reality that both have nowhere to go but to a home for retired actors.

Simon, of course, began his career as a writer of sketches for radio and television for top comedians, and he has not lost his skill in this department, as witness, for one thing, the doctor-patient sketch he has written for the two vaudevillians. It is corny, but it is very funny, and the two actors play it to the hilt.

One Bandit Has Holiday Spirit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Karen Voltz, 27, had just returned to her car in an underground parking garage in downtown Columbus after doing some Christmas shopping when a man walked up, jerked open her car door, pointed a gun at her and demanded money.

When she began crying, the bandit asked her if she was all right, cautioned her "next time keep your door locked," wished her a merry Christmas and walked away.

Evidence To Shepherds' Angel Story

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-Occupied Jordan (UPI) —The New Testament says an angel sent by God announced the birth of Christ to shepherds in a field near this town 1,972 years ago.

The Greek Orthodox church said Wednesday it has found archeolooical evidence to support that Christian belief.

But it said the evidence shows the shepherds recieved the word on land the Greek Orthodox church holds sacred—and not on two pieces of nearby land which Roman Catholics and Protestants revere.

All three areas are called shepherds fields.

Archbishop Constantine told newsmen excavators unearthed a 5th Century church that is nearly completely preserved in a cave about one mile east of Bethlehem. A mosaic floor also was uncovered.

"From a Christian point of view, these findings provide clear evidence for the identification of the Christian holy site known as shepherds field mentioned in early Christian sources," he said.

The field is mentioned in Luke in the New Testament.

The archbishop said the Byzantine era church was the oldest found on any of the three shepherds fields, proving that the Greek Orthodox site was the true field. He said a new church will go up near the cave, leaving the cave intact and accessible.

"In my opinion, it's the true site," Constantine said. "We knew that there were ruins and we wanted to be certain through excavation finds—the signs and the mosaic floors"that this was the true shepherds field.

"The other denominations, the Catholics and later the Protestants, said their places were the correct fields from where the shepherds saw the star," the archbishop said.

"We did not make this excavation really to prove that this is our place and our place is the correct one, but as the excavation carried on, from what we found, I think that this is the correct place," he said.

Argentine Troupe To Present Show

Action Theatre of Buenos Aires, Argentina, will perform "Ssshagrada" tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall at College of Marin.

The show, described as "a theatrical ceremony in eight sequences dealing with contemporary Latin American issues" is sponsored by the college's ethnic studies program and the Associated Students, College of Marin.

Adriana Ulrich, of the ethnic studies program, said the show is essentially body movement, but includes slides taken during the troupe's four-year trip through Latin America. Some of these are clandestine, such as photographs of tortures under the present government in Brazil, she said.

Tests Show Little Booze Impairs Driving Ability

The finding came in a demonstration at Ontario Motor Speedway supervised by law enforcement officers and Dr. Slade Hulbert, a UCLA research psychologist who is studying the effects of alcohol on driving.

Hulbert said he has found in his studies that the driving ability of a person who driks small amounts of alcohol can be impaired without there being any noticeable effect on his motor skills.

He said the main impairment is the shortening of attention span rather than the ability to control muscles.

Giving an example, Hulbert said a person may be driving in a perfectly straight line but fail to notice one or both of two cars coming at him on either side.

Those taking part in the demonstration were George Follmer, winner of the Riverside Grand Prix; Bob Bondurant, a professional race driver instructor and Bob Earl, one of Bondurant's instructors.

Bondurant devised a precision driving course which the subjects were asked to drive in as fast a time as possible while knocking over as few roadmarkers as possible. They first completed the course sober and again after drinking from two to 10 ounces of vodka or scotch over a time period of about 45 minutes.

In every case driving ability was impaired after drinking.

Zsa Zsa Suing Film Producer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Zsa Zsa Gabor filed a $1.5 million breach of contract suit against the producers of her forthcoming movie, "How to Seduce a Woman," saying she was "scandalized" when she learned she would have to utter such "off color" lines as:

"The king fell in love with me, but he got nowhere. Even the queen tried to make me, and she got nowhere."

Miss Gabor's suit, filed Tuesday against Forward Films Inc. and producer Charles Martin, claimed the final version of the party scene was not edited from the "racy" dialogue as she had requested.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS SICK CHILDREN

Scott Spencer, 9, looks with pleasure at the pictures in a book, turning the pages with his one good hand while the other heals at the pediatrics department of Marin General Hospital. Scott was just one of the hospitalized children who received a visit and gifts from Santa Claus in the form of Jay Gates of the Strawberry Town and Country Shopping Center. The project to bring gifts to the children in the hospital was sponsored by the Jack and Jill Branch of Hospital Volunteers.

Woman Is Convicted Of Fraud

A San Rafael mother of five, said to have had $20,000 or more in income last year, was convicted yesterday of fraudulently receiving $4,438 in welfare payments from Marin.

A jury of eight women and four men returned the guilty verdict after considering nine days of testimony in the felony trial of 32-year-old Virgie Simmons. Superior Court Judge E.Warren McGuire then told the jury, "The evidence was practically overwhelming."

The judge set sentencing for Jan. 9.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams, who headed the long investigation of Mrs.Simmons, said a conservative estimate of her 1971 income is $20,000, including welfare overpayments, social security checks, veteran's benefits, support from fathers of her children and her own earnings.

She owns a home at 152 Villa Avenue in San Rafael and bought an $8,400 Chrysler last December, Hyams said.

She was charged with welfare cheating three months later.

Her known income was $205 a month from social security, $59 veterans' benefits because of a late husband who was in the Navy, and $388 to $405 a month in welfare.

On top of the public assistance was her salary as a clerk at the San Rafael Post Office and support for three of her children from their fathers.

Although the woman, also known as Virgie Rubit, was at times eligible for welfare aid, Hyams said, she "grossly underexaggerated her other income" to receive the overpayments during a 14-month period ending last January.

She received about $1,400 she was entitled to during the period, according to Hyams.

Baptiste Calls For Vote On Redevelopment Plans

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A Marin County supervisor today urged that redevelopment projects proposed by various communities be placed before voters on the next countywide ballot.

"If the public is willing to add a certain amount to the tax rate for redevelopment, then let's put it to a vote like we did with open space," Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste proposed.

His comments came today on Radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board" which probed three supervisors for their views on major issues facing the county during 1973.

Besides Baptiste, Supervisors Michael Wornum and Robert A. Roumiguiere expressed opinions during the hour-long show, which is moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer and will be rebroadcast Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Baptiste, the supervisors' most vocal critic of San Rafael's redevelopment plan, said he didn't oppose redevelopment as such but rather the scope of San Rafael's plan.

He said if the city would reduce by half its proposed $6 million redevelopment bond and would agree to use the funds only for projects which would increase assessed valuation, he would not oppose it.

Roumiguiere, who supports San Rafael's project, said redevelopment was needed not only in San Rafael but elsewhere to revitalize the business community and shore up crumbling assessed valuation levels.

"Redevelopment, properly done, can be the Savior of homeowners throughout the county," he said, adding sales and property taxes on businesses lift the tax burden from homeowners.

Conversely, he said, if business districts are allowed to decay, it will become the burden of homeowners to make up the tax difference.

Wornum disagreed saying redevelopment amounted to "a rip off" of homeowners since it would initially divert tax revenues to pay off the bonds. He suggested businesses pay for their own upgrading.

The City of San Rafael, he said, has tools available for street and other downtown improvements without forming a redevelopment agency which will siphon off tax revenues from the county, school and special districts.

Among other major issues facing the county, supervisors agreed, are facets of the proposed countywide plan dealing with public transit, open space and low and moderate-income housing.

The three said they endorsed many of the plan's general goals but said the full scope of some goals are not attainable.

Baptiste, who has been critical of the plan's "balanced transportation program," said he agreed with the need for more public transit but said the proposal for 300 intracounty buses was economically impossible.

Roumiguiere agreed, saying the proposal was "pie in the sky" because it would cost every resident $1,600 over the next 20 years but would provide transit for only 7 per cent of the population.

A listener's question about the plan's contradiction in calling for both more open space and more moderate-income housing brought a direct answer from Wornum who said "we're not going to be able to achieve both" without massive federal help which hasn't been forthcoming in the past.

Baptiste said he was more optimistic and didn't think the two goals are in direct conflict.

Roumiguiere criticized the plan for jamming nearly all Marin's 1990 population on 10 per cent of the county land area while leaving 90 per cent open.

"I would rather see the density lower in the eastern corridor and greater expansion in other areas" than called for in the plan, he said.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni and Louis H. Baar were not present.

Driver Ordered To Higher Court

A 52-year-old San Francisco man has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of felony drunken driving, as the result of an auto accident in which two persons were injured.

Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Wilfred Henry Wiseman to appear in the higher court Jan. 4.

The California Highway Patrol arrested Wiseman Oct. 27 after his car swerved off Highway 101 near San Rafael and hit a stalled car. His two passengers were hospitalized with injuries, according to the patrol.

Charcoal Blamed For House Blaze

An accidentally dropped scrap of lighted charcoal started a fire yesterday that damaged half the interior of the William R. Wilson home at 757 Diablo Avenue, according to Novato Fire Chief Jack W. Kidder.

Brian Wilson, 16, preparing a handwarmer, dropped the charcoal on a couch, Kidder said. Thinking he had cleaned up the lighted debris, Wilson left the home between 12:15 and 12:30 p.m.

When he returned shortly before 2 p.m., the couch was ablaze. After failing to extinguish the fire, Wilson called the fire department, the chief said.

The fire damaged the living room and hallway and had "started into the kitchen," Kidder said. He reported heavy smoke damage.

Stafford's Seating Is Protested

By PAT ANGLE

A Tamalpais Valley resident has filed a complaint with the state attorney general's office charging that Dr. Ronald T. Stafford did not have a residence in the Marin Municipal Water District at the time of his election to the district board.

Stafford, a 29-year-old Sausalito physician and conservationist, was elected June 6 to represent Division 5, which includes Marin City, Tamalpais Valley, Tiburon, Belvedere and Sausalito. He said today the charges by Charles S. Adkins, of 256 Cardinal Road, are "a form of harassment" and "have no basis in fact."

Adkins is seeking permission from the attorney general to sue Stafford to keep him from holding office in the water district. The writ, filed yesterday, is necessary because a routine election challenge was not filed within the required 90 days, according to Adkins' attorney, Craig Sommers of San Rafael.

The Tamalpais Valley resident said he was taking the action "strictly on a matter of principal" and not because he disagrees with Stafford's policies or philosophy.

"I believe our public servants have to be qualified to seek office and that includes living in the communities they intend to serve," Adkins said. "If we don't hold to these qualifications, we might as well go ahead and appoint just anyone and forget about elections altogether."

(On Aug. 9 an attorney for Adkins asked water district directors not to seat Stafford on the board until they had determined whether he had been a legal resident of the district on election day. The board declined to investigate the matter further after Stafford told them he lives at 270 Currey Avenue in Sausalito, within the district, and seated him on the board.)

Stafford's residency problems began soon after he filed his declaration of candidacy in March, when he learned that his home at 19 Wolfback Ridge Road in Sausalito, was outside district boundaries.

On April 12, Stafford registered to vote in Marin and gave his address as 71 Sunshine Avenue, a home located in the district.

In his complaint, Adkins contends that Stafford did not actually live at the Sunshine Avenue address at the time he registered to vote, but continued to reside on Wolfback Ridge until after the election.

As evidence he offers the fact that 71 Sunshine is zoned for single-family residential use and that Mr. and Mrs. Bruce F. Wolfe own the home, live there and are registered to vote at that address.

The complaint also states that Dr. Stafford's listed and unlisted phone numbers continued to be located at the Wolfback Ridge residence until after June 6 and that on July 18 a slot in the garage wall there had mail in it addressed to Stafford.

Stafford responded by saying, "I made no secret of the fact I was continuing to rent the Wolfback Ridge place and had phones there until after the election. I was using it as a campaign office, but lived in the Wolfe residence, which has a separate apartment in it," the physician said.

He said he could not understand why the matter was again being brought up at this late date. "I feel the whole issue was aired — and settled — before the election and at the August board meeting," Stafford said.

Stafford said that "developers may be behind the move to oust me from the board, although I can't be sure of that.

He said the recent resignation of Director Eugene A. Miller has left the board "divided 2-2 between prodevelopers and conservationists. If a third conservationist is seated to replace Miller the balance of power will change and that will certainly affect Marin developers, so they may be behind this and eager to get rid of me."

Attorney Sommers said Stafford has approximately two weeks to refute the allegations contained in Adkins' petition. Adkins will then have a week to respond to Stafford's answer and a hearing will be held after all the responses are in.

Sommers said it will take about three months for the attorney general's office to make a ruling in the case. If the state's top legal officer finds for Adkins, then the complainant will have the right to sue Stafford in Marin Superior Court to prevent him from retaining his seat on the MMWD board.

Multiple Sclerosis Is Truly A Mystery

Multiple sclerosis, sometimes called MS, is truly a mystery. No one knows what causes it, or what cures it. No one knows why it strikes some people and not others, or why it affects each of its victims differently. MS and related diseases affect about 500,000 persons in the United States; it is this country's most serious crippling neurological disease.

MS is a disease of the nervous system. The protective sheath around the nerve fibres inside the brain and spinal cord breaks down in places, allowing interferences with the communications among nerve cells and muscle cells. For those who have MS, the outcome can be anything from minor ailments to serious disabilities.

The damage to the protective sheath, which is made of a substance called myelin, is unfortunately done by the body's own immune system — the white blood cells and the antibodies that are supposed to protect the body from disease. Somehow, their ability to distinguish between friend and foe, or "self" and "nonself", has gone awry.

What sets this misguided process into motion? Some scientists believe the cause might be a virus, one that stays inactive in the host for many years before beginning to do its damaging work. Or perhaps MS is started, as well as carried out, by a malfunction in the immune system. Both points of view have some evidence to support them, but more basic research is needed.

Some of the most important research is on a disease that can be induced in animals and is similar to MS. The disease is called EAE, short for experimental allergic encephalomyelitis. If an animal is injected with nerve tissue from another animal, its own immune system becomes sensitized and then begins to attack its own nerve tissue. Although the symptoms vary from species to species as well as from animal to animal, it is the most relevant experimental system available for MS research.

At The Salk Institute, in San Diego, as well as at other laboratories around the world, scientists have isolated the particular molecule in the injected material — a constituent of normal brain tissue — that is responsible for the animal disease.

Some researchers think that a molecule designed to resemble this one could, if injected into an already diseased animal, distract the immune system and arrest the course of the disease. However, there has not yet been enough experimentation to establish this theory.

Other research is needed too — virus studies, epidemiological surveys and clinical tests.. (From the Salk Institute, San Diego.)

Nixon Will Likely Face An End-Of-War Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —If the peace that was almost "at hand" when Congress adjourned in October is not achieved by the time it returns in January, look for a new and more determined effort on Capitol Hill to legislate an end to U.S. participation in the Vietnam War.

Even though the breakoff of peace talks, the resumption of intense bombing and the heavy loss of U.S. aircraft and airmen have stiffened the spine of the end-the-war bloc,the prospect of success appears no stronger than in the past.

In any event, it will take months for Congress first to find its collective will and then to force its will on President Nixon, who has managed for four years to run the war free of congressional restraints.

Even before Congress has assembled, there have been— and there will be more— demands:

That Congress set the final date for a U.S. presence in Southeast Asia, contingent only upon the Communists' release of American prisoners and regardless of the effect withdrawal may have upon the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

That Congress punish or prod Thieu by denying him further military or economic aid. Surprisingly, even Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., an administration loyalist on foreign policy matters, came out Wednesday for an aid cut off.

That Henry A. Kissinger be summoned before a joint session or a committee of Congress to explain what went wrong between his Oct. 26 "peace is at hand" statement and last week's apparent impasse in the talks. Many in Congress blame Thieu.

That the United States return to Paris to sign—over Thieu's objections—the tentative agreement that Kissinger worked out in October.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on Nixon at a news conference Wednesday to take that course. He said the size of the international peacekeeping force to police the agreed-upon cease-fire was an insignificant issue.

Three times in the last Congress the Senate voted to cut off funds for prosecution of the war by a stipulated date if the Communists would release the POWs and account for the missing.

Each time the House balked, willing to state congressional policy but unwilling to impose it on the President.

The election apparently strengthened Nixon's hand in the House, where Republicans picked up 13 seats. The Senate appears to be a shade more liberal and more antiwar.

Last week, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. said, "We in Congress, and I for one, will extend the olive branch to the administration in the coming Congress."

"One way or another, we must be out of Vietnam in early 1973," he said in a speech delivered in New York.

"The dashed hopes of recent weeks will give new strength to our resolve," he said. "I am confident now, as never before, that if the President and Dr. Kissinger cannot end America's role in the war themselves, then Congress will end it for them."

Even such staunch an administration supporter as conservative Sen. William E. Brock III, R-Tenn., said he would keep his options open on whether to support the White House in another end-the-war debate. He said, though, that he tended to back Nixon and believed the new round of bombing was designed to head off a Communist offensive and was unrelated to the negotiations.

Rep. Donald W. Riegle Jr., R-Mich., an adamant dove, called the bombing a "monstrous outrage," accused Nixon of a "deliberate deception" in holding out the prospect of a settlement before the election and suggested an Inauguration Day demonstration to show "we will no longer tolerate political deceit in America."

Scott, who led the administration's fight to increase aid to South Vietnam last fall, while backing a cut off of aid, this time refused to support an end-the-war amendment.

The GOP leader said he was "heartsick" over the Paris impasse and said he suspected that Nixon "is disappointed and heartsick also."

Nonetheless, he said he knew of no policy other than Nixon's which would disengage the United States—a view that may reflect Congress' reluctant sentiment.

State Taxpayers Due For Refund

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If you're an average Californian, you're due for a $42 refund on your state income tax as part of a whopping $227 million in refunds beginning next month, State Controller Houston Flournoy says.

An estimated 5.4 million Californians — more than two-thirds of all those expected to file returns this year — will get state income tax refunds during the next five months, Flournoy said Wednesday.

It will be the first year of large scale state income tax refunds due to imposition of payroll withholding of state income taxes last Jan. 1, Flournoy said in a news release.

Resignation Is Accepted

Trustees of the Lagunitas School District last night accepted the resignation of board member Gary T. Giacomini, but said his seat will remain vacant until the April 17 school elections.

Giacomini, elected in November to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, resigned from the school board effective Jan. 9.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Psychiatric Problem Usually Behind Factitious Fever Case

Factitious fever is an elevation of temperature brought on by clever deception. Several examples were reported in The New Physician by two Boston doctors. A 25-year-old man came to the emergency room with a rectal temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit. He complained of shaking chills, headache, sore neck, and poor appetite.

Physicians examined him and when his temperature was taken an hour later, it was 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. While in the hospital, the afternoon temperature again rose to 103.2. It was normal five minutes later when taken by the nurse.

MEANWHILE, there was no corresponding increase in the pulse or sweating when the temperature was elevated. All of the blood tests and x-rays proved normal. He finally confessed that he had rubbed the end of the thermometer to create a "fever".

Why did he do this? During the preceding three months, his behavior had been aberrant following the death of his first child. He drank heavily, stayed away from home, and developed poor wrk habits. The man admitted he wanted to get into the hospital to avoid arrest by the police for a serious offense. offense.

A psychiatric problem usually is responsible for factitious fever. The deception can be detected by the nurse or physician by staying with the patient while the temperature is being taken.

THESE INDIVIDUALS have ingenious ways to elevate their temperature. Some rub the end of the thermometer with the fingers or against the sheet. Others hold the device against a light bulb, steam pipe, hot water bottle, or cigarette lighter. Still others move the anal sphincters, or the teeth or gums to produce friction. There have been instances in which several thermometers with elevated readings are hidden and then handed to the nurse.

Clues suggestive of factitious fever appear within a few days. The individual is otherwise healthy; the pulse fails to quicken as the temperature goes up. A bona fide fever is highest in the afternoon and lowest in the morning; this is not true when self-induced fever is involved. Furthermore, in adults, temperatures in excess of 105 degrees Fahrenheit are rare.

HARD WATER

C.S. writes: Can hard water (the community supply) cause stones, arthritis, or constipation?

REPLY

No. Hard water offers no health hazards. A controversy continues relative to the possibility that soft water contributes to the development of arteriosclerosis.

ALLERGIC TENDENCY

Mrs. G. writes: I have hay fever and my baby has eczema. Did he get it from me?

REPLY

The allergic tendency is inherited, though the allergy may not appear in the same form in succeeding generations.

PILLS ON ICE

REPLY

Not necessarily. They should, however, be kept in a cool place and the refrigerator is as good a spot as any.

New Water System Will Be Sought

North Marin County Water District directors have approved formation of a water system to serve the Olema area and Point Reyes National Seashore.

Directors voted after a public hearings Tuesday at West Marin School attended by about 35 to 40 persons, according to Dist. Mgr. John A. Nelson.

"The problem now is financing," he said.

The system is expected to cost about $140,000, with the Seashore share at $72,000. Approval of federal participation is being sought from the National Park Service.

The system will include a pipeline from Point Reyes Station and a 100,000-gallon redwood tank.

Nelson said directors agreed that an environmental impact report wouldn't be necessary because the only physical impact, the tank, will not be visible from the main part of Olema and the system has limited expansion potential.

"The system essentially is for the existing area of Olema, and doesn't include much in way of expansion," Nelson said.

Directors also set a policy that environmental impact reports will be required on any project that would have significant effect on the environment.

The board adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 2 at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

Hilliard Plea Booted By Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Court of Appeal Wednesday upheld Black Panther chief of staff David Hilliard's conviction on two counts of assault with a deadly weapon for his part in a 1968 gun battle between the Panthers and Oakland police.

Hilliard, who is serving a sentence of six months to 10 years, argued that he was convicted on insufficient evidence and that the prosecution committed several prejudicial errors during his trial.

Hilliard was convicted in connection with a shootout that killed Panther Treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, and wounded Eldridge Cleaver, who fled to Algeria when state authorities tried to return him to prison as a parole violator. Cleaver is still in exile in Algiers.

She joined the Monitor in 1962 and served in the overseas news department and as a correspondent in Tokyo before her assignment to Moscow in 1968. She speaks both Russian and Polish. Miss Saikowski taught English at the University of Warsaw for three years, returning to the United States in 1950 to study at the Russian Institute and the School of International Affairs at Columbia University. A few of the world-respected journalists now writing for the I-J

We show these five distinguished writers merely to give you an idea of the caliber of The Christian Science Monitor News Service . . . the prestigious new syndicate to which the I-J now subscribes.

Through them and other Monitor specialists you will discover the difference between "news" and an understanding of the events which make it. For Monitor reporting probes beneath the surface for the causes. It tells you what happened, but most importantly, why.

The Independent-Journal will publish not only selected news stories but editorials, news analyses, features and special series. Also maps, charts, artwork and photography for which the Monitor is justly renowned.

We invite you to read and form your own judgment of these unusual dispatches.

5-Month-Old Beats Odds To Survive

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Like hundreds of thousands of other 5-month-old babies, this will be the first Christmas for Andrea Chambers. But unlike the others, when the big day arrives Andrea will still be enjoying her first week at home.

The toys she has to play with were not bought as Christmas presents. Craig and Clarena Chambers hoped their chid would start using them soon after she was born.

But when Andrea arrived July 19, her stomach and intestines were outside her body. She underwent surgery 20 hours later. Two more major operations followed as 23 doctors at Navy Hospital gave her their attention, feeding her intravenously and helping her fight off two potentially fatal infections.

"Add up the odds from all her problems and she really had little chance," said Navy Dr. N.G. Tsoulos. "If all this had happened about five years ago her odds to live would have been about 10 per cent or less."

Andrea beat the odds, though. Wednesday was her first full day at home after leaving the hospital Tuesday.

"You name the type of medical specialist and Andrea needed his services at one time or another," Tsoulos said.

Mrs. Chambers, whose husband is a sonar technician, found it all hard to believe as the little girl was dressed to leave the hospital.

"It seems strange to be taking a 4-month-old baby home for the first time," the mother said. "We've had her crib and her toys ready for nine months."

DISCOVERER OF CALIFORNIA

Gravemarker Believed Cabrillo's

BERKELEY (UPI) — A University of California anthropologist believes he has found the gravemarker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the Spanish "discover of California."

Heizer said he believes it was placed over Cabrillo's grave after he died Jan. 3, 1543, while leading the first exploration of the California coast by Europeans.

Heizer conceded that it was impossible to prove the stone was the oldest historical relic of Spanish California because of the fragmentary accounts of Cabrillo's voyage and a lack of scientific tests to date the block.

"Without the means of proving that the stone is or is not the one which marked Cabrillo's grave, we are simply left with the possibility it may be that marker," Heizer said in a monograph published Wednesday by U.C.'s Lowie Museum of Anthropology, where the stone went on display.

"I personally believe that it is probably the grave marker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo," said the anthropologist, who later described his conclusion as "an intuitive one."

Heizer found the stone on campus in the Lowie Museum's collection. It was placed there by Philip Mills Jones, who picked it up from Santa Rosa Island in the Channel group in 1901.

The UC professor began researching the possibility it was Cabrillo's gravestone last summer after looking through a report on Jones' trip that Heizer and a colleague edited 16 years ago.

On reviewing the report, it occurred to him "that the initials might be those of the discoverer of California, Juan Rodriguez, usually known as Cabrillo."

He said Spanish historians confirmed that a stone, rather than the usual wooden cross, might well have been used to mark the grave of the leader of an expedition. And they said the joined letters were consistent with lettering used in 16th Century Spain.

OLDEST RELIC? — Lupe Godinez of the University of California's Berkeley campus staff holds a stone which could be the gravemarker of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo and thus California's oldest relic of European civilization; The stone was found on the Channel Islands off Santa Barbara in 1901. Cabrillo, called "the discoverer of California," was buried there in 1543.

(UPI Telephoto)

Cabrillo voyaged north from Mexico in 1542 after serving with Cortez in San Diego Bay in September, 1542, the first Europeans to land on the shores of California. They sailed further north, making several stops before arriving at Monterey Bay.

They turned back to winter on the Channel Islands, where Cabrillo died on Jan. 3, 1543 from injuries suffered in a fall during a previous stop at the islands off Santa Barbara.

The two ships later sailed north past the mouth of San Francisco Bay, to Point Arena, then returned to Mexico. The voyages had little impact, except to convince the Spanish the Indians possessed no gold or silver. The next Spanish voyage of exploration didn't come for 60 years and settlement began a full two centuries later.

Heizer said objections to the stone being accepted as Cabrillo's grave marker includes the possibility it is a fake, the possibility the initials refer to some missionized Indian, a vaquero, a shepherd or a casual visitor of recent centuries, and historians' generally accepted view that Cabrillo was buried on San Miguel Island and not Santa Rosa Island were Jones picked up the 13.5-inch long, 4.5-inch wide, 2-inch thick chunk of sandstone.

It was not marking a grave at the time and may have been carried to Santa Rosa from some other island, Heizer said. He also noted that records of Cabrillo's voyages are a confuse abstract of the original log which is unclear about the exact burial site.

"The fact of his death resulting from a broken limb we can accept, and we can also take as fact that his body was taken ashore and buried," he wrote. "But where he was interred we are not told with certainty, and nothing at all is uaid about the circumstances of his burial."

"The fact of his death resulting from a broken limb we can accept, and we can also take as fact that his body was taken ashore and buried," he wrote. "But where he was interred we are not told with certainty, and nothing at all is said about the circumstances of his burial."

"Drake's plate of brass is another artifact whose authenticity is not proved to everyone's satisfaction," Heizer said.

Felony Charge Is Reduced To A Misdemeanor

A 21-year-old Novato man, who had been charged with assaulting a man with his car during an argument over a towing charge, was sentenced yesterday to time already served in jail after pleading no contest to a lesser charge.

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner reduced the felony to misdemeanor disturbing the peace after a plea bargaining session with Given's attorney and the district attorney.

Arrested Oct. 12, Given was released without bail Nov. 9 after a hearing in municipal court.

Given was arrested at Third and Irwin streets in San Rafael, police said, after he refused to pay a towing fee, then reportedly ran into the man trying to collect from him.

49ers Plan Trying To Forget A Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A team that went through what San Francisco did to reach the National Football League playoffs should relish every victory, but there's one the 49ers are trying hard to forget — their 31-10 conquest of Dallas.

"We've just got to forget what we did to Dallas back there or what they didn't do last week," said 49er linebacker Ed Beard Wednesday. The Cowboys dropped their final regular season game to the New York Giants 23-3.

A sellout crowd of 61,214 is expected at Candlestick Park for Saturday's playoff. It will be the seventh straight playoff for the Cowboys who beat the 49ers the last two years by 17-10 and 14-3 to earn the National Conference spot in the Super Bowl.

Coach Tom Landry has a workout scheduled at Candlestick Friday for his Cowboys. The 49ers moved onto Candlestick's artificial turf Wednesday because their practice field at Redwood City was soggy from steady rains.

The series between the 49ers and Cowboys, including the two playoff games, stands at 4-3-1 in favor of San Francisco, and the 31-10 49er victory in Dallas Thanksgiving Day was the most lopsided result of the lot.

San Francisco sacked Dallas quarterbacks nine times in that game —their most effective pass rush in a season that saw the 49ers top the NFL in sackings with 46.

One change is assured in the starting lineup Coach Dick Nolan said he would announce today. Strong safety Mel Phillips fractured his left shoulder in last Saturday's game, and rookie Windlan Hall, a fourth-round draft choice from Arizona State, is the likely replacement.

Nolan said Wednesday Hall is "a tough kid with real good speed and a lot of poise. Beard, who directs the defense, commented: "You lose something when you lose a guy with seven years, but nobody on this team has any doubts about Windlan. He's a hitter."

The Cowboys will be missing linebacker Chuck Howley, at 36 their oldest player by three years. He has a knee injury and has been replaced by D. D. Lewis.

The Cowboys also face the prospect of losing All-Pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly and getting possible sub-par performances from running back Calvin Hill and cornerback Mel Renfro.

Lilly's back tightened up during practice Wednesday and he was sent to a hospital to be placed in traction to ease the pain.No one knows whether, or how long, he'll be able to play Saturday.

Renfro is nursing an injured foot. He was held out of the 23-3 drubbing Dallas suffered last week at the hands of the New York Giants. But Renfro will probably play against the 49ers.

Hill returned to the team Wednesday after a bout of flu but he still was in a weakened condition.

Raiders Heading To Steelers' Showdown

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders headed for Pittsburgh today to begin their playoff quest of a world football championship trophy as a companion piece for the world baseball championship the Athletics brought to Oakland in October.

It will be the fifth time in six years the Raiders have reached the playoffs, but only once did they get all the way to the championship game, only to lose. They figure they're overdue, and a victory over the Steelers Saturday might well be the biggest step of all along the way.

"I'll be against an odd defense about 20 per cent of the time," said Otto, meaning that he will have a man lined up head to head with him and have much the same job as an offensive tackle.

Sports
Independent-Journal, 31
Thursday, December 21, 1972

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica said Wednesday that Otto "is the most important man in our offensive line. He calls the blocking and helps control the middle."

Upshaw, a major factor in the success of the Raider running game, expects to face a fresh man on nearly every play.

"The Steelers alternate Ben McGee and Ernie Holmes at the job — both about equal and both pretty good," said Upshaw, whose blocking helped fullback Marv Hubbard set a club rushing record of 1,100 yards.

"They'll try to wear me out before the day's over." Uzshaw said. I think they alternate so as to take some of the blocking pressure off Joe Greene. Both do a lot of illegal slapping and stuff like that."

One reason for Upshaw's effective blocking is that he is strong enough to run over an opponent without leaving his feet.

"If you throw your body, you're selling yourself out," Upshaw explained. "If you can knock him down and still hold your feet, you can get somebody else. That's happened on three touchdowns this year."

Brotherly Love In Prep Baseball

Oh brother!

A few days ago there was a piece in this corner about brother acts on the Redwood High School basketball team. The school's athletic director and baseball coach, Al Endriss, said he felt he had a list of brother acts in varsity baseball through the years that couldn't be topped.

Four times Endriss had brothers playing on the same baseball teams. First time this happened was 1960 with Rick and Barry Basco. I understand their friends got together to form the first Rick-Barry fan club. (I just couldn't resist that.) Anyway, Rick Basco went on to win All-Marin County Athletic League honors in 1962.

In 1967 there were Bill and Rusty Poole who followed brother Don by four years. Don Mantooth (class of '69) and brother Mike ('70) were teammates, as were Jim and Phil Bacigalupi last season.

Two sets of brothers were all-league: Mike (1962) and Pete (1970) Conney and Russell (1964) and Roger (1970) Smith.

Then there were Terry ('63) and Blair ('71) Jarcik; Jim ('62) and John ('72) Troppmann; Bob ('62) and Jim ('67) Scoville; Stan ('63) and Vic ('67) Saulenas; Steve ('65) and Rob ('69) Dorinson' Don ('65) and Ken ('69) Roby; Dennis ('69) and Gary ('71) Schunk; Joe ('70) and Jim ('72) Caito, and Ross ('70) and Matt ('72) Gondak.

RETURN TRIP: Ex-Olympic Club athletic star Percy Locey, now in private business in Oregon, was one of the players in the first shrine East-West Football game back in 1925. He'll be back in San Francisco Dec. 30 for the 48th East-West game — and he'll be bringing a group of 100 people from Oregon with him.

BRUCE KILBY, who missed a few games because of injuries, will be back in the Arizona State University starting lineup Saturday when the Sun Devils, champs of the Western Athletic Conference for the fourth straight year, play Missouri of the Big Eight Conference in the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz. Kilby, a 6-foot-2, 196-pound senior who prepped at Terra Linda High, is one of the stars of the Arizona State defensive team. For instance: in the team's nationally televised season opener against Houston, Kilby, a linebacker, had a hand in 10 tackles, eight unassisted and blocked a punt which set up a Sun Devil touchdown in a wild 33-28 victory. Saturday's game will be televised, 5 p.m. on channels 2 and 40.

WHEN ANTHONY DAVIS of USC ran back those Notre Dame kickoffs for 97 and 96 yards, two of his six touchdowns that warm (in Los Angeles) Dec. 2 day, he broke a record long held by a man who used to excite Kezar Stadium fans with his running. Ollie Matson, the University of San Francisco superstar of the past, had run back kickoffs 94 and 90 yards against Fordham in 1951.

49ers Place Six Players On Bowl Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Western Division champion San Francisco Forty Niners and Eastern Division runner-up Dallas Cowboys, who meet Saturday in one of the four National Football League playoff games, placed six men each on the National Football Conference All-Star team announced Wednesday.

The NFC squad will meet the American Football Conference all-stars in the Pro Bowl game in Texas Stadium, Jan. 21.

Named from the Cowboys to the offensive team were Rayfield Wright at tackle, John Niland at guard and Calvin Hill at running back. On defense from Dallas are Bob Lilly at tackle, Mel Renfro at safety and Cornell Green at cornerback.

Joining Hill in the backfield are quarterbacks Bill Kilmer of Washington and Norm Snead of the New York Giants along with running backs Larry Brown of

HICKLIN RETIRING

College Of Marin Losing A Friend

By RON LENT

The 62-year-old Novatan has taped countless athlete appendages, accounted for an endless array of sports equipment, and served as an integral part in Tars' sports for 14 years and nine months.

During this period, commencing April 1, 1958, Hicklin encountered numerous experiences, but the one incident standing out in his mind involves the basketball team.

"One year," he recalled, "we were going to the state basketball tourney in Santa Maria. Along the way, we stopped at a gas station. The attendant asked us if we were a basketball team. When we said yes, he watched us as we got off the bus. After seeing we were a pretty small team, he said: 'Well, you've got one tall guy there.' And our driver then said: 'Hell, he's (Cal Riemcke, 6-foot-4) our coach!' "

"We were so small, they called us the Mighty Midgets."

In reminiscing about his College of Marin career, Hicklin, a native of Wapello, Iowa, mentioned several names, notably: Doug Dressler, Mike Waters and Ron Blum.

When discussing Dressler, Hicklin said: "I never expected Doug to be a fullback. He played tackle for us, and he was a good one. He was also a fine wrestler. . .I just never took him as a fullback. Hicklin didn't but Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown did, and Dressler went on to become the starting fullback with the National Football League club this past season.

Mike Waters was another Tar football star who stuck out in Hicklin's memory. "He was a small college All-American in 1958. He was a fine, aggressive ballplayer" and a two-way end.

Although Waters was versatile, Hicklin believed that "Ron Blum was the best all-around athlete I encountered here. He was 6-foot-2 and weighed 170. He was slender but very strong. Blum was one of the best (football) passers I've seen at Marin. He was also the center on the 'Mighty Midgets,' and a shortstop on the baseball team."

While groping for superlatives in describing Tar athletes, Hicklin reserved a few for the coaching staff.

"We have one of the best coaching staffs anywhere in the state on the junior college level. The coaches do a real good job with the available material" — particularly in basketball.

Through the years, Rievcke and current coach John Panagakis have fashioned a winning tradition in Kentfield.

"Reimcke was the old pro, but Panagakis is young and coming. Panagakis coaches a great deal like Riemcke," Hicklin pointed out in referring to the Tars' penchant for one-on-one defenses.

Five Raiders On All-Stars' First Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five Oakland Raiders were named to the United Press International 1972 American Football Conference All-Star team announced yesterday. They were: wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, tackle Bob Brown, guard Gene Upshaw, tight end Raymond Chester and cornerback Willie Brown.

Three Raiders were named to the second team and six others were given honorable mention listings. The three second team members were tackle Art Shell, quarterback Daryl Lamonica, and linebacker Phil Villapiano.

The New York Jets' Joe Namath, who tied for the league lead in touchdown passes with 19 after being idled two years by injuries, was named at quarterback, outpolling Oakland's Daryle Lamonica by six votes.

NIXON LOSES

Blackouts Kept By Czar Rozelle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the urgings of President Nixon, the National Football League playoff games during the next two weekends will not be shown on local television in the cities where they are played.

Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle rejected Wednesday the request of the President to lift the television blackout in the playoff cities.

Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who negotiated with the NFL Tuesday and Wednesday on behalf of Nixon, said in a statement: "I have advised Mr. Rozelle that as a result of the league's decision, the Nixon administration would strongly urge the new Congress to re-examine the entire anti-trust exemption statute and seek legislation that is more in keeping with the public interest."

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said President Nixon agrees wholeheartedly with Kleindienst's statement.

Pro football received an anti-trust exemption in 1961 when Congress specifically permitted any joint agreement by organized professional team sports for the sale of television rights which permitted pro football to offer its games to a TV network as a package instead of individual stations.

In 1966, legislation again was passed to permit the merger of the American and National Football Leagues into the current NFL and the television exemption was extended to the combined leagues.

The debate over the blackout has been the subject of congressional scrutiny for the past few years and came to the forefront last fall before the Senate communications subcommittee chaired by Sen. John O. Pastore.

The Rhode Island Democrat told Rozelle that unless something was worked out for lifting the TV ban on regular season games, in addition to the playoffs, he would push ahead with a bill similar to that requested by Nixon.

The Justice Department statement, supported by Nixon, could add new strength to his commitment.

Rozelle said he didn't want to see pro football, as had pro boxing, become what he called a "studio show."

He aid in a statement that six of the last 10 conference championship games have not been sold out and that since 1967, when playoff games were begun, only 11 of 17 were played to capacity.

VS. NORTH STARS

Seal Leads Continue To Fizzle

OAKLAND (UPI) —Blowing leads has become commonplace with the California Golden Seals.

They led twice in the opening period Wednesday night but eventually fell 5-2 to the Minnesota North Stars who snapped a five-game losing streak on the road.

After Dennis Hextall tallied the only goal in the second period to make it 4-2 Minnesota, things got interesting pugilistically but not artistically for the Seals.

California defenseman Bob Stewart and Lou Nanne got two minutes each when they bumped each other around at 5:08 of the middle period. Six minutes later, Stewart began trading punches with Bill Goldsworthy.

That's when Minnesota's Judge Drouin decided to get into the act. He entered the melee between Stewart and Goldsworth and was banished with a game misconduct much to the delight of the 3,194 home fans.

College Grid Stars In Hospital Visit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — College football stars from both East and West Wednesday came to talk with the children at Shriner's Hospital, which has received $7 million from the 47 previous Shrine battles.

The annual visit by the strong-legged athletes to the crippled but cheerful infants at the hospital produced the usual smiles on the faces of all concerned.

Joe Ingaychock, defensive back from Temple, held Mike Siani of Villanova (and now the Oakland Raiders) to one reception in their confrontation last season. But Wednesday, he was faked out by a little cutie named Wendy. They played "Snoopy and the Red Baron" in which the trick is to trap the right color ball rolling down a chute. Wendy had far too many moves for him.

Dennis Johnson, 265-pounder from Delaware who has the pro scouts drooling, spent the afternoon with Heather, who showed interest in his camera. So he told her how it worked.

Brad Van Pelt, the much-honored Michigan State safety man, baseball pitcher and basketball player, and his attactive wife, Mary, spent most of the time with a little blonde cutie.

Idaho center Ken Muhlbeier commented that "you just can't walk through places like this, and see kids in beds and braces, without thinking of your own child (he has a son who is almost two). You look at them and think 'it might be mine.' It really makes you think."

Today, the 10 days of workouts begin leading up to the Dec. 30 clash at Candlestick Park.

Warriors Have 'Find' In Charlie Johnson

He was a sixth-round draft pick in 1971 but didn't even bother to try out, preferring to spend a year in Mexico.

Fortunately for the Warriors, he showed up in 1972 and now he keeps turning games around.

He scored two key baskets on tip-ins over players nearly a foot taller and tallied 15 points in 27 minutes Tuesday night as the Warriors nipped Boston 115112 in what is being hailed as one of the team's greatest games.

Johnson could even be moving toward a starting berth.

Coach Al Attles has tried veteran Mahdi Abdul-Rahman, Jim Barnett and Fritz Williams at the other spot along with sharp-shooting Jeff Mullins, but Attles says Johnson may make him "re-assess" the situation.

2 Changes Planned In Baseball

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — The possibility of limited inter-league play and designated pinch-hitters for the 1973 major league baseball season is matter club owners will hammer out at a joint meeting next month.

In an apparent effort to stimulate interest, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Wednesday that club owners would take under consideration natural rivals opposing each other for not more than six games for 1973. The proposal would limit inter-league play to such neighboring teams as the Mets and Yankees in New York, the Cubs and White Sox in Chicago, the California Angels and Los Angeles Dodgers, and the St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City Royals.

More Baseball

The 34-year-old Oakland A's veteran Wednesday asked to be placed on the voluntarily retired list.

Football

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Colts yesterday fired coach John Sandusky and his staff of five assistants to assure a "clean slate" for the 1973 National Football League season, Colts general manager Joe Thomas said.

Olympics

STATELINE, Nev. — The Tahoe Regional Planning Agency has desked for further study a resolution endorsing the idea of holding the Olympic Games at Tahoe in 1976.

Five members of the board Wednesday abstained from voting, claiming they didn't have time to study the proposal and that it was too soon to make a decision.

Walter MacKenzie, the author of the resolution, said the Olympic bid must be submitted to the Games Committee by Tuesday.

He said, however, he didn't think the lack of support from the agency would hurt the effort to bring the Games back.

MacKenzie and the board's newest member, Jim Henry, supervisor elect of Placer County, were the only two who voted for the resolution.

Basketball

LOS ANGELES — University of California at Los Angeles basketball coach John Wooden was to return to his coaching duties today following 10 days of treatment for a mild heart condition.

Wooden, 62, who was released from a hospital last Sunday, will be on the bench handling the Bruins when they meet Pittsburgh tomorrow.

General

NEW YORK — John Wooden, who coached University of California at Los Angeles to six consecutive National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament titles, and tennis star Billie Jean King Wednesday were named Sports Illustrated's Sportsman and Sportswoman of the year.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Spot Of Wind

By LEE TREVINO

If the wind never blew, golf might be a lot easier game, but it wouldn't be as much fun . You can assume that a crosswind makes a difference of half a club in the length of a shot.

On a 150-yard shot, normally a seven-iron for me, I'll hit a six-iron into the wind. If the wind is behind me I'll swing a smooth eight.

Always check the tops of the trees for movement, particularly when you're protected by them from the wind. Once a ball gets beyond them the wind will start working on it.

There are times to hook into a wind blowing from the left. From 150 yards I'll hit my seven-iron hard. A gentle grip with the left hand and a firm right hand will help you hook into a wind from the left.

Sonics' Nissalke On Way Out As Coach?

SEATTLE (UPI) —Rumors on the coaching future of Tom Nissalke of the Seattle Supersonics of the National Basketball Association were a dime a dozen today.

Both Seattle daily newspapers, the Seattle Times and Seattle Post-Intelligencer, indicated Wednesday Nissalke may be on the way out.

Nissalke said Wednesday night at Omaha following the Sonics' 121-110 loss to the Kansas City-Omaha Kings that he had no indication his job was in jeopardy.

He said Seattle owner Sam Schulman had not been in contact with him and a report in the Times that he may be fired before the end of the year was "news to me."

"He hasn't been in contact with me," said the first-year NBA coach who earned Coach of the Year honors in the American Basketball Association at Dallas last year. "This is the first I've heard about it."

The Times indicated Elgin Baylor, former Seattle University All-America player and later a pro star, may succeed Nissalke as the Sonics head coach.

At Los Angeles, Baylor reported he had just returned from a trip and had had no personal contact with Shulman.

Scout Report

Former southpaw pitcher Al Hollingsworth of San Leon, Texas, turned in his first World Series scouting report with much success. A scout for Oakland A's, he saw the Reds Play 30 National League games.

St. Vincent Triumphs In Basketball

A third quarter scoring spree led St. Vincent High School of Petaluma to an easy 72-60 non-league basketball victory over California School for the Deaf in Berkeley Tuesday night.

The win upped the Mustangs record for the year to 6-2.

The Mustangs, who held a 32-25 halftime lead, scored 22 points in the third quarter to take a 21-point lead and put the game out of the Eagles' reach.

Jim Leoni and Bob Vyenielo led St. Vincent's in scoring with 15 and 13 points.

Attorney Files Suit Vs. Rams

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A Florida attorney who tried unsuccessfuly last summer to purchase the Los Angeles Rams has filed a $6 million suit against football commissioner Pete Rozelle, the new Rams owner and four other men.

The suit was filed in Superior Court Wednesday by Hugh F. Culverhouse, Jacksonville, Fla., who said he contracted orally to purchase the Rams for $17 million from the estate of the late Dan Reeves.

The team later was sold by executors of the estate for $19 million to Chicago businessman Robert Irsay who traded the club to Carroll Rosenbloom for the Baltimore Colts.

THE SKI SCENE

No Neighbors At Bear Valley

By CHARLIE COANE

"Ski Bare" is a phrase coined several years ago to help promote one of the Sierra's newest resorts, Bear Valley at Mt. Reba. This, coupled with a photo of a girl with skis on (that's it), presented a very remembered piece of advertising.

Bear is all by itself — about 50 miles up Highway 4 from Angel's Camp, whose claim to fame is that it is the site of the World Frog Jumping Championships every year in May. If you're at Bear Valley, you don't try out other areas nearby, because there are no areas nearby. But then again, there doesn't have to be. Bear has a bit of everything.

This is the sixth season for the Mother Lode resort and it's doing quite well. The facts and figures are that Bear has five double chairlifts, two rope tows, 2,200 foot vertical drop and a lift capacity of approximately 6,000 skiers per hour. An educated guess (mine) would say that the skiing terrain is about the size of Alpine Meadows, give or take a foot or two. Plans on the books call for many more lifts and much more skiing area. But those things don't come easy these days. The ecological red tape is overwhelming. But Bear does plan one or two new chairs before next season.

Bear Valley gets lots of snow; more than most Sierra resorts. The set-up is very nice at Bear with the lodge and other overnight facilities located a few miles from the slopes. The utilities are underground and the whole place has a very nice atmosphere. To get to the slopes from the lodge area, you simply jump on a bus that shuttles to and from — no parking problems and "leave the driving to us." No one forces you to do that. You can drive if you want to. Connected to the lodge is a heated outdoor pool, saunas and Jacuzzi. If you don't like that, you can play tennis. That's right, in the middle of winter on a "bubbled" tennis court. One of California's top players, Barry MacKay of Ross, heads up that angle of Bear Valley.

Up at the slopes, the day lodge improvements this season have doubled the number of skiers it can accommodate. One of skiing's best known ski school directors, Peter Brinkman, is new at Bear this season. Peter has experience at many top resorts in the United States. His school, which leans toward the French technique, uses the GLM approach. Bear is also one of the few areas that teaches cross country skiing this season. It's in the development stage and perhaps a unique idea would be to offer a combo cross country alpine skiing day.

The NASTAR pargram is very heavy at Bear; it's one of the top participating areas in the country.

The area's best known event is the Celebrity Pro-Am weekend, this season being the third. On the weekend of March 2-4, the top pro racers will descend upon Bear — including Spider Sabich and probably the incomparable Jean-Claude Killy. A flock of movie stars and other personalities join in, and it's all a pretty wild weekend.

Four Teen-Agers In Northern Cal Tennis Tourney

Four Marin teen-agers have been invited to the Northern California Tennis Association's 11th annual Round Robin Junior Tournament Invitational Dec. 26-28 at the Fremont Hills Country Club in Los Altos Hills.

Participants will include one boy and four girls from Marin. Cary Standsbury of Tiburon will compete in the boys 14 category. Bea Kilgore and Sue Beatty of Tiburon will be in 18 and 16 brackets respectively for girls. In the 14-year-old bracket are Diane DeMartini of Greenbrae and Carrie Zarraonandia of San Rafael.

Juniors in the first seven rankings in the Northern California Tennis Association are invited.

HICKLIN

dedication to work in football through the years."

Hicklin is apparently well versed when analyzing football. He was a standout halfback in the single wing attack of the Wapello Higp School Indians. "We used to get about 250 fans out there," he noted. After completing his three-year prep career in 1928, Hicklin began a 20-year Army stint that concluded in 1957. "I was in and out several times," he continued, "before getting out for good (in 1957)."

After leaving the service, Hicklin began searching for a job. "I answered an ad and applied for this job. And I got it."

He picked up the trainer skills while on the job, and his six years of army supplies experience put him in good stead for the Marin duties.

"I did lots of studying and got plenty of help from coaches when I got started. I made a lot of friends and I enjoyed it."

But all this will be but memories by Dec. 31, so Hicklin has found other interests to fill his winter days.

"I'm moving to Oroville next month, and I'll be living out of a mobile trailer I just bought. I'll be doing a lot of fishing and traveling."

He will also find time for shooting his bow and arrow. "I've been doing this since 1959 and I enjoy it. . .but my son (Merle, 30) is much better." With such a busy schedule set for his retirement years, Hicklin can be believed when he says: "I'll keep busy."

He always has.

Won On Wild Pitch

CINCINNATI (AP) — People will always forget that Hal McRawe was at bat with two out and runners on first and third for the Cincinnati Reds. All they will remember is that Bob Moose of Pittsburgh made a wild pitch in the bottom of the ninth and Denis Menke scored from third base. That run gave the Reds a 4-3 victory in the fifth and deciding National League pennant playoff game of the 1972 season in Cincinnati on Oct. 11.

PREP BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

Drake Bidding For Title

By LEW CODDINGTON
(Third in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

When Bob Fitzhenry resigned as Drake High School basketball coach in a surprise move in March, he placed the pressure squarely on the shoulders of his successor, Pyte Hayward.

"I expect the (varsity) team to win the championship," Fitzhenry declared. He said that was a factor in his decision to quit. As North Bay Officials Association coordinator, he assigns officials to Drake's games (and others), and he didn't want any conflict-of-interest charges to mar the Pirates' season.

Hayward inherits a team laden with talented seniors who saw vast amounts of playing time as underclassmen last year. To this he has added players who starred for his junior varsity team a year ago, which was unbeaten in the Marin County Athletic League.

The result is an astonishing amount of depth which enables the Pirates to play two full platoons without any noticeable dropoff in efficiency. It also produces a competition for spots so fierce that Tom Carlisle, a 6-foot-4 forward who was honorable mention all-league last year, is on the second platoon this season.

The Pirates' starting center is 6-foot-4 John Channell, a powerful offensive rebounder who was named the most valuable player as Drake won its own invitational tournament for the first time since 1965.

"Channell really should be playing forward," Hayward said, "but we need him underneath." Assisting him is 6-1 forward Greg Shaw, and their presence under the boards illustrates Drake's major problem: lack of height. Only three players on the 15-man roster exceed six feet.

Lurking in the corners are 6-foot Eddie Joe Chavez, a crowd-pleasing junior who is the son of former Tamalpais High coach Ed Chavez, and 5-11 John (Skipper) Schmitz, a J.V. player last year. Both behave more like guards than forwards.

Pencilled in for just as much playing time as these five, however, are guards Jeff Guidi, Don Asay and Rick Herbert (beginning to play more while recovering from a football thigh ailment), and forwards Dan Trimble, Bruce Katuna and Channell. Guidi, Asay and Katuna are ex-J.V.'s.

The Pirates run a fast-break offense, substitute freely, and tend to wear their opponents down in the second half. They averaged 71 points a game through their first six encounters, five of which they won.

At the very least, the Pirates should improve markedly over last year's record of 7-7 in the MCAL (good for fourth place) and 14-13 overall. At the most, they could annex the title for the first time since 1967.

If you haven't seen the '73 Fords, maybe you haven't seen what's new.

On July 27, 1972, General Radio Co. tested a '73 LTD against an airborne glider. Both at 60 mph and with identical sound level meters. The result: the Ford was quieter. But the new LTD is more than just quiet. It is well made from its power front disc brakes, power steering and automatic transmission, standard equipment, to its luxurious, comfortable, roomy interior. There are 16 new Ford models to choose from and each will convince you that quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

A'73 Torino rode so smooth, a high wire artist kept balance on a road of 2x4's.

Chances are you won't try to balance yourself on top of your new Torino. But, when you're riding inside, you'll still appreciate Torino's refined suspension—because it helps to cushion bumps, absorb road vibrations and reduce body sway. You feel solidly in control while you ride in comfort and luxury.

Ford, the company that built the first basic, solid, reliable car seventy years ago—has built today's basic, solid reliable car: Pinto. It's become America's top selling economy car for more reasons than economy. Here are some of those reasons:
A 1600 cc. engine developed and perfected in over 10 years of actual driving. Rack-and-pinion steering. Solid welded body, electrocoated to fight corrosion. 4-speed transmission—lubed for life. Everything we've learned in seventy years of car making—all the basics—we build into every Pinto Wagon, Runabout and Sedan. When you get back to basics, you get back to Pinto.

There are 39 new models to choose from.

And every 1973 Ford, Thunderbird, Torino, Mustang, Maverick and Pinto—comes equipped with new energy-absorbing bumpers and steel guard rails in all side doors. Steel-belted radial ply tires and AM/FM stereo radios are options on all models. Test-drive these new Fords at your Ford Dealer's now.

Suit By Sierra Club Dismissed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A suit by the Sierra Club against the Forest Service and a Humboldt County lumber company has been dismissed by Federal District Judge Alfonso Zirpoli.

The order was issued Tuesday after the Sierra Club moved for voluntary dismissal.

The club brought suit in June, charging that the Forest Service and Humboldt Fir of Hoopa, violated the 1964 Wilderness Act and the National Environmental Policy Act. The Forest Service had made four timber sales on undeveloped land near the Salmon-Trinity Alps Primitive Area in Northern California. Humboldt Fir has held one of these contracts since 1965, the timber association said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Strange Feeling—Get Bitten By Your Own Teeth

I had a strange feeling during the recent playoff in Lancaster, Pa., to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship. My team was soundly beaten by a team that included Michael Becker, who learned to play bridge by reading my "First Book of Bridge." It feels a bit odd to get bitten by your own teeth! Young Michael, son of B. Jay Becker (also a member of the winning team), had no chance to shine on the hand shown today because Edgar Kaplan, far behind in the match, took a shot at game and then found a way to make it.

STATE OF SCORE

Kaplan would have passed the invitational bid of two no-trump under ordinary circumstances, but the state of the score called for energetic measures. He won the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts and led the jack of clubs.

West thought for a long moment or two before taking the trick with the king. A hold-up play would shut out South's clubs, but then declarer would lead the queen of spades from dummy. He would later get to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead a spade for a finesse with dummy's ten, thus winning four spades, two hearts, one club and two diamonds.

CONTINUES HEART

West actually took the first club and led another heart. East won with the queen and returned a heart to dummy's ace. Now Kaplan led the four of clubs from dummy and tried a finesse with the nine.

On a bad day this would lose to the ten, but it was a good day. West had to win with the ace of clubs. West cashed the last heart, and East signaled with the nine of spades.

QUEEN GUESSING

When West then led a spade, South wisely refused to finesse. By now he was sure of one spade, two hearts and three clubs. He needed three diamonds for his bold game contract. Who had the queen?

It seemed likely that East had started with only three cards in spades, hearts and clubs. Hence East held four diamonds, while West held only three. So declarer led the jack of diamonds from dummy and let it ride for a finesse, making his contract when the finesse worked and the clubs broke favorably.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Balanced Portfolio Is Best For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We need income and hold the following New York Stock Exchange stocks: American Telephone, Columbia Gas, Eaton Corp., Greyhound, MEI, National City Lines, Surveyor Fund and United Merchants & Mfg. What can we do to increase our income? — E.P.

A. Your portfolio, valued at $62,000, returns $2,875 or 4.6 per cent. By moving out of the five lowest paying issues into bonds you will achieve a more impressive return on your capital. American Telephone, Columbia Gas and Greyhound, which yield 5.5 per cent or better, should be held for modest appreciation in the years ahead.

With the $34,000 realized from the suggested sales I would purchase: Detroit Edison 9s of 1999, Southern Counties Gas 9½s of 1995 and Vermont Yankee Atomic 9⅝s of 1998. These bonds are rated A or better by Standard & Poor's. By purchasing 10 bonds in each of these three utilities you will receive $2,812 in annual interest for an average current return of 8.4 per cent. From your total portfolio the income will be $4,612, 60 per cent more than your capital is now earning.

For readers interested in bond portfolios either for monthly income, capital gains or convertible for growth I have prepared a list which is available free of charge. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope requesting "Bond Portfolios," to Roger E. Spear care of the Independent-Journal.

Q. We invested $40,000 in farm land netting us 8 per cent interest. The land is now worth substantially more than we paid. Isn't this better than investing in stocks? — E.W.

A. From the facts you have given I would certainly agree that you have made a wise investment. However, I see no reason why an individual must make a choice between one form of investment and another. In fact it would be safe to assume that the average stockholder owns one or more pieces of real estate. There is no best form of investment, each has its own merits as well as drawbacks. What form or forms you choose would depend on both your temperament and your needs.

Bay Area's Business View Good

Bay Area's business outlook is rosy for 1973, with business executives anticipating more sales and pre-tax profits and more employment than in 1972.

That is the picture gleaned from the Bay Area Executive Poll conducted in October by the San Francisco Bay Area Council. Questionnaires were mailed to 302 of the Bay Area's senior business executives. A total of 201 replied, a 62 per cent response. The respondents included 110 who hold positions of board chairman or company president; the others were executive and senior vice presidents, regional vice presidents, and other key executives.

The executives generally anticipate improved performance for their companies and increased business activity. Only 8 per cent expect a decline in pre-tax profits next year, compared with 24 per cent this year.

Three-fourths of the senior executives expect more employment in the year ahead, but about half of them think that unemployment will remain about the same as in 1972. (Increased employment does not necessarily mean a decline in unemployment because of increases in the size of the labor force). More than 55 per cent anticipate that there will be more inflation in 1973 than in 1972. Eighty per cent feel that interest rates will rise, while 20 per cent expect them to remain about the same.

Taxes and the cost of doing business — particularly the high cost of labor — are seen as the most important economic problems currently affecting the Bay Area. The same factors showed up as major disadvantages of doing business in the area. The advantages of doing business here, in the opinion of the executives, are climate, quality of life and variety of enterprises.

Viet Peace Still Key On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices on the New York Stock Exchange moved irregularly today in moderate trading. Analysts said Vietnam peace uncertainties kept investors on the sidelines.

Wall Street observers noted the uncertainty surrounding the future of the U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia still was a worry to investors. The United States continued its intensive bombing of North Vietnam, and at Paris the North Vietnamese walked out of peace talks to protest the resumption of the bombing.

Also, Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev said the future of U.S.-Soviet relations depended on the enging of the Indochina war.

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd., was the most active issue, up 1 ½ at 29 ⅝ on 185,600 shares, including several block trades.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were lower in moderate trading. Candian Javelin, LTD. was most active issue, up 2 at 7 on 33,200 shares.

On the Big Board, Union Pacific Corp. was off 2 ½. The company has a part interest in an oil well mentioned in a Wall Street Journal story saying it may not be as big a producer as some speculators imagined.

The story quoted a brokerage as saying stock of Mountain Fuel Supply, also mentioned in the story was "well overpriced." The issue was delayed in opening.

Steels, motors, rails, chemicals, oils, airlines and aircrafts were mostly mixed in fractions.

U.S. Dilemma—Frustrated Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A worker jumps up from his job and assaults coworkers. Another man takes drugs or nips of whisky to allay boredom. An employable youth becomes a beggar. Workers strike against the inhumanity of a perfect assembly line.

These seemingly isolated examples are patterns occurring with alarming frequency as traditional concepts of work become obsolete, according to a 211-page report "Work in America" submitted today to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Significant numbers of American workers are dissatisfied with the quality of their working lives" because of dull, repetitive, meaningless tasks that offer little challenge or autonomy, the study said.

The report, a departmental study conducted by a panel of 10, suggested that employers modify traditional views of work to include employes in profit-sharing and decisionmaking.

"Several dozen well-documented experiments show that productivity increases and social problems decrease when workers participate in the work decisions affecting their lives and when their responsibility for their work is buttressed by participation in profits," the report said.

HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson received the report warmly at a news conference, saying, "I cannot recall any other governmental report which is more doughty, controversial and yet responsible than this one."

"Young workers appear to be as committed to the institution of work as their elders have been, but many are rebelling against the anachronistic authoritatianism of the work place," the report said.

"Older Americans suffer the ultimate job dissatisfaction: they are denied meaningful jobs even when they have demonstrable skills and are physically capable of being productive."

As an example of frustration, the report cited a case in which "a jury refused to convict an employe who killed two foremen and another worker in an auto plant on the grounds of temporary insanity, when testimony pointed up inhumane working conditions."

And the report said frustration exists even in the best of working conditions, identifying the efficiency of an assembly line as the cause of a wildcat strike in Lordstown, Ohio.

"This event highlights the role of the human element in productivity: What does it gain the employer to have a perfectly efficient assembly line, if his workers are out on strike because of the oppressive and dehumanized experience of working on the perfect line?"

The 10-member panel headed by HEW's James O'Toole, an anthropologist who formerly directed field investigations for the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, concluded its report by saying alienation from jobs is "manifested in worker alienation, alcoholism, drug addiction and other symptoms of poor mental health."

Official Says Smugglers Won't Use Bodies Again

HONOLULU (UPI) —A high-ranking federal official said today that the smuggling of heroin into the United States in the bodies and coffins of Vietnam war dead probably won't be tried again.

"I don't think they'll try this any more," said the official, who told UPI earlier this week that several hundred millions of dollars worth of heroin have been brought into the U.S. in coffins by an international syndicate of drug smugglers. He declined to be identified.

He and other authorities believe vast amounts of heroin may have been removed from the bodies and the hermetically-sealed coffins of the dead servicemen while military flights sat on the ground at Hickam Air Force Base outside Honolulu.

"Once they got the stuff into Hawaii they were home free," one official said. "Even though there's 2,600 miles of water between Hawaii and the West Coast, it's legally inter-state travel. They can't be searched without probable cause and there's no customs inspections."

The officials said members of the organization, comprised of ex-GI's with Southeast Asian experience, had infiltrated many levels of the armed forces in Vietnam, including sites where bodies are autopsied and prepared for hometown shipment.
